INTRODUCTORY.

NOW, I have reached the "Preface," which, in book making, is always written last. This compilation has been a "labor of love" for the family LEVERING. To them, individually and collectively, and to the children's children, I dedicate it.

It is an aggregation of personal annals and sketches, carefully woven, woof and warp, that makes a family history. History is fact; other than fact is not history. The collection of family events is not fiction, nor is it fulsome epitaph, though some inflated persons, whose plebeian origin may be seen by a glance backward, without climbing a hill, or even a ladder, would have "family dignity" emphasized.

This volume appears to be supplemental to "The Levering Family," as compiled and published in the year 1858, by my boyhood friend, Horatio Gates Jones, of Roxborough (then called Leverington), Philadelphia. When inaugurating my work, I contemplated an easy start in the genealogical feature, by beginning where he ended, save supplying the poverty of dates which characterized his publication. I found this a difficult undertaking. A third of a century had elapsed since he gleaned the field. A generation had passed away, and the scent had become cold. Notwithstanding these disadvantages the emendations must be undertaken, as his work needs clothing.

So, my first labor was expended in dusting old bibles and family registers. Many of these revealed a condition in the publication of 1858, that I had not anticipated, viz. : Want of names, as well as dates. Members of families, and whole families of lineal descent, had been omitted. As instanced in my circular of February 22, 1893, not one descendant appeared to No. 68½. Mary Levering, of the fifth generation, of Roxborough, Philadelphia, and she, being designated by a half number, in the consecutive order, indicates that Mary "came within (the half of) one", of being omitted altogether. After months of labor I have credited Mary with more than 400 lineal descendants; of these, about one-half were eligible to representation in "The Levering Family." Like remarks will apply to his No. 5, Anna Catharine³ Frey, and No. 15, Waldeniana (1850) — up to No. 17, Amelia's Shoemaker, to which I have attached more than 400, 750, and 1,100, respectively.

Other individuals and families would fit the same category, unfortunately so, as the type of type destroyed all trace, to some of them.

So, again, the case of my maternal friend and relative — whose recent descent I mean — of great inestimable value to me as a pointer to my own descent in his family, I could use it only as material, "bricks without straw," in the ornamental structure I have built, regretting that the crossing of time have obliterated some of the data, which, as architectural ornaments, should have graced the plinth stone.

The national feature of the publication of 1858 was of local surroundings and quite limited in this respect. Notwithstanding the shortcomings of the composition, the need of praise is due its author for having united family unity, and rendered the clan Levering, a possibility. But for his piety in his maternal ancestry, no history of the Levering family might have been written.

Said Professor Withers: "Every writer is necessarily indebted to his contemporaries, and to his predecessors." With this license from a high source, I trust now, to some extent, the statements of my old friend, and not be chargeable with "building upon another man's foundation."

From the time I learned of the existence of the ancient town of Leverington, in Cambridgeshire, England, I have been impressed that the place had relation to the first or earliest families of the name LEVERING. After consulting with the Levering Historical Association to undertake the compilation of a family history, my early efforts were directed toward determining that relation. Of course, the initial steps of inquiry must be taken in, or near to the town. Happily, my brother, William H. Leorning, was a member of the literary association known as the Virginia Institute of London, England. He placed me in communication with the Honorable Secretary of that organization, who, promptly answered requests for local correspondents of skill, as historical and genealogical workers. Fortunately, the rector of the Ancient Protestant Episcopal Church at Leverington, Rev. C. B. Drake, occupying the "Leverington Rectory," was commended as an expert. His services have proven very valuable to me: diligent in search and patient in co-operation.

Responding to my request for an exhaustive examination of all old local records for the family name, he performed the labor and reported me within the Registers of the Parish, which have been preserved for many generations, for the Rolls of the Manorial Courts of the town, back to the time of their establishment in the reign of Edward IV (1461-83), contained the family name, LEVERING. He informed me, however, that the Rolls, also the surviving tablets in and about the venerable church of the town, contained names of families which had become extinct in the neighborhood. Verifying, "The places that knew them shall know them no more."

It became patent to me, at once, that the appellation of the town, proved to be the most enduring memorial, and has kept green the memory of the object of my quest, while the material cenotaph attests, "old things are passed away." The corroding rust of antiquity is irresistible.

Hugh Miller states that the oldest monumental epitaphs known in the English language, are found in a church yard at Oxfordshire, England. The language, he says, is almost obsolete, and the lettering scarcely legible from decay. Some dates are in the latter part of the fourteenth century.

If the archives mentioned preserved other family names, and not ours, then the latter must be older than the Manorial Rolls—older than the tablets and existing monuments, which the erosions of time are obliterating.

An appeal was taken to the British Museum, where tomes of the long-ago are gathered together and preserved with jealous care. A few pounds sterling proved an "open sesame" to the searchers employed. The result of their labor was of considerable interest, though neither the family name nor the origin of the town designation was discovered.

Undaunted, I reached out for other sources of information. What of hidden secrets in the ancient towns of York, of Chester, of Lincoln, which in almost pre-historic times were walled against invasions by Visigoths and other semi-barbarians? What of ancient Ely, but a Sabbath day's journey from our family town, and which has been a geographical feature upon the face of every map from earliest Anglia to modern England? Aye, as will appear in subsequent pages, the muniment rooms of this literary fortress, shared her stores with us, and we here learned of Leverings three hundred years before ROSIER, who had been the rock upon which we built our family structure.

This discovery, from records preserved so near to Leverington, indicated the supposed relation between the family and the town. Still, the origin of the town was undetermined. Resort was had to reading all authorities upon early settlements and analogous subjects. The volumes of Freeman were closely scanned, feeling that the Norman Conquest may have had added strength from the Levering family, traditionally of English origin. Following this, Lewis upon English sources, was corrected.

It soon transpired that the nation visited from Verrington (1550-1612), and other royal entries, especially from Camden (1551-1622), who, according to a contemporary, "is argument upon the origin of thirty names, ancient & modern, & especially sheweth, that WILBURTON and LEVINGTON, were in a country," etc. Eureka! Who was Ingulf? Based on that goodly source of information, the Encyclopaedia Britannica, identified him as Egulf of Crowland (1030-1100), who was "sent by King William the Conqueror at the time of the Norman Conquest of England in 1066." And was Levington (Levensington) named before 1066? This added two and a half centuries to the record of Ing.

A poor scholar's record of finding the record or writing of Ingulf, which would be in manuscript, as printing was not invented, nor were books made, until long thereafter, was not late. It was an interesting inquiry, but my learned friend, Prof. Drake, was equal to the demand upon me. He obtained access to the old record, and furnished a copy of the original expression by Camden, to which a line above refers. The text was written in Latin, so obsolete in idiom as to require the services of a learned Professor in the University of Chicago, to translate it, which was faithfully done, and the result was an added surprise, a revelation, as is shown in this volume: proving Levington's, or his early allyship, Levington*—to have been contemporary with Prince Arthur and his favored knights, of the 16th century.

Further, in the good work, The Norman Conquest, referring to investigations for topographical matter, says: "There are many points in which it is impossible to go beyond conjecture." I believe my readers will learn from these pages, that I have reduced some conjectures of the past, to certainties, and have established a reliable foundation for the family structure.

Were I have discovered beyond evidence of the existence of Levington, during the time of Rosier, it is matter for serious regret to me, that I have not discovered the missing genealogical links which should connect them. It may be that a more extensive search in the possible recesses of hidden treasure, would reveal secrets of great value to us, but certainly would complain that more thorough scrutiny was not made, to bridge between John de Lovevng and Rosier, if he was not a contributor to the mystery.

*In the English language, the name "L" was used indiscriminately, with the letter "v," having the same sound. The name may be said to "L" in the Ancient English and Welsh languages.

The pursuit of information, both historical and genealogical, has cost several years of labor in extensive reading and correspondence, which has been intensely interesting at times, especially when some "foot-prints in the sands of time," have been half revealed to me, nor was I discouraged in earnest pursuit of my main purpose, when, after a tiresome chase for some object in the dark, I discovered the illusive light an ignis fatuus.

The facts which I have collated have, in many instances, come to me as grains of gold from mountains of sand, worked over with untiring scrutiny, because they are gold, to the family.

I feel under lasting obligations to some persons, who, with an appreciation of the enterprise, lent willing hands and time, in gleaning and giving such information as I sought. Even authors of valuable historical publications gave personal attention in answering questions as to sources of information. Here I may name Hon. Douglas Campbell, author of "The Puritan in Holland, England and America," and Professor Hoppin, author of "Old England," also Professor Dexter, of Yale, and Professors Lawrence and Henderson, of the University of Chicago, and I repeat obligations to Rev. C. B. Drake, of Leverington, England, whose attentions consumed more than two years. Adding George R. Howell, Esq., of Albany, N. Y., Archivist of the New York State Library, and Hon. Jones Detwiler, of Montgomery County, Pa., Historian of Whitpain Township, who assisted me greatly in determining the new location of pioneer Gerhard Levering, in the year 1731. Henry S. Dotterer, Esq., author of History of Boehm Church, in the same neighborhood. Abram H. Cassel, the extensively-known antiquarian, of Harleysville, Pa. Mr. T. B. Drew, Librarian of Plymouth Society, Mass., and Hon. John Slingluff, President of Montgomery National Bank, Norristown, Pa.

And in genealogical researches among the family connections, I must recognize assistance from Hon. John C. Levering, of Levering, Ohio, corresponding Secretary of the Levering Historical Society, Mrs. Kate Levering Bradshaw, of Germantown, Philadelphia, who caused the old bibles of some unwilling owners to be dusted while she waited. Colonel T. Ellwood Zell, of Philadelphia, the well-known author and publisher, whose insistence in his branch of the family added many to the aggregation. Hon. Charles S. Keyser, of Philadelphia, author of "The Keyser Family," who aided greatly in developing one of the most numerous branches of the Levering connections. Hon. Eugene Levering, of Baltimore, who contributed extensively to his part of the household, which may be repeated in tribute to Walter George Smith, Esq., of Philadelphia.

THE LEVERING FAMILY.

BENJAMIN JOSEPH WYOMER Levering, of Bethlehem, Pa., whose researches to the honor of his great-great-grandfather, "Rev." John Levering, called many a soul to dissipate the imaginary line of a "New England" of the family. Hon. T. Guilford Smith, chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York, Mrs. Abby J. Holgate Hamford, of Seattle, Wash., who labored long and industriously with Miss Clementina Gilbert, of Philadelphia (recently deceased), to regain the lost sheep of the fold of Holgate, left scattered by the author of "The Levering Family."

Mrs. Caroline H. Roney, of Eugene, Oregon (recently deceased), who gathered an extensive family from several States, into her report, as when gathereth her chickens under her wings. M. Louise Harper, of Philadelphia, who, as censor of the press, in my behalf, suffered no item relating to the family to escape her scrutiny. Mr. Silas J. Levering, of Philadelphia (recently deceased), who by careful approach explored the blind side of several indifferent individuals, secured information. Dr. J. Gilbert Young, of Philadelphia, genealogist of the Holgate family, who furnished me considerable data relating to that branch. Hon. Joseph Sater, of Preston, Ohio, who ably assisted Mr. Jones, prior to 1858, and, as a repository of Sater History, shared his store of information with me.

The venerable Rev. Eugene P. Greider, of Lebanon, Pa., whose archives stored with family annals relating to his branch of the household, was generous in giving aid to me, and similar acknowledgment to Mrs. Kate B. Keyser Fracker, who is spending the sunset of her busy life at Zanesville, Ohio.

Though my acknowledgments may be tedious to the general reader, I must express obligations to others who have been helpful in my study. Allow me to name Miss Emily Harris Levering, Perry Levering Alderman, Dr. Edward Augustus Levering and Capt. Abraham Levering, Woodlot Quartermaster-General of the Department of Pennsylvania, U. S. A. R. of Philadelphia.

Also, Dr. Edward A. Morris and Mr. George Wentz, of Baltimore; Mrs. Lydia B. Emley, of Pass Christian, Miss. (recently deceased); Mrs. Minnie J. Cleveland, of Wapakoneta, Ohio; Mrs. Lizzie Smick Leamon, of Abbeville, Md.; Mrs. S. Jennie Hoffman, of Sadsburyville, Pa.; Mrs. Cora C. Green, of Lancaster, Ohio; Mrs. Carrie E. Hilly, of Hinesville, Fla.; Mr. Charles A. Brady, of Buffalo Forge, Va.; Mr. Squire Robinson, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. Levi L. Levering, of Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. Blount S. Levering, of Piqua, Ohio; Mr. Silas G. Holgate, of Dunwoody, Minn.; Professor Alex. A. Brooks, of Corpus Christi, Texas; Mr. John E. Levering, of Wray, Colo.; Lillie E.

Waggoner, of Iberia, Ohio; Mr. Oliver M. Evans, of Lansdale, Pa.; Jas. Y. Heckler, Esq., of Hatfield, Pa.; and for collecting the most numerous branch—the Shoemaker family—I am indebted to Mr. Benj. H. Shoemaker, Thos. H. Shoemaker, Harold E. Gillingham and Daniel Pastorius Bruner, of Philadelphia, also, to Miss Susan Stroud, of Haverford, Pa., not omitting Howard M. Levering, who industriously gathered remnants of several branches in the valley where I failed to stir the dry bones of ancestral indifference, which henceforth shall live.

Adversely, there are others whom I might name, but who should be grateful to me for the several return postage stamps which each absorbed. When I addressed educated, cultured persons, I felt sure of a prompt return, but my very numerous letters of inquiry exposed the existence of some mere bas-reliefs in the connection; lacking individuality.

In all well regulated families there are persons, who, when weaned as calves, have Topsy's idea of parentage. The Bible says of such: "For he beholdeth himself and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was."

I might dip my stylus in gall and draw pen pictures of a few, but perhaps I had better —— don't!

Some who were addressed, depended upon their sisters, as custodians of the family Bible, to furnish information, but the latter, dear souls, thought to conceal a wrinkle, or to efface the crowsfeet which had crept upon them unawares, by preserving the stamp.

If a few of the "waxed fat" find more rings on their horns than the almanac entitles them to, it is no fault of mine. The proud-flesh of the family—of which there are two kinds—has been a source of irritation to me.

Miss Mulock, in one of her admirable literary productions relates similar quandary as to the pedigree of her hero: "This is all I ever knew of the boy's parentage; nor do I believe he knew more himself. He was indebted to no forefathers for a family history; the chronicle commenced with himself and was altogether of his own making. No romantic antecedents ever turned up; his lineage remained uninvestigated, and his pedigree began and ended with his own name—JOHN HALIFAX."

A like obscurity is accorded to a few, who seemed to prefer darkness rather than light. Daniel Webster, in a speech upon an important occasion, said: "Men who are regardless of their ancestors and of their posterity, are very apt to be regardless of themselves.

In April, 1862, the accidental discovery was made that the Levering family name had been assumed, as a surname, by a family of full blooded Indians of the Ojibwa tribe.

A youth named Louis Levering, was a pupil in the Government School for Indians, at Carlisle, Pa. In answer to inquiries made of him, I was referred to his elder brother, Levi Levering, formerly at Carlisle, who was then in the more advanced Government School, known as Bellevue College, at Bellevue, Nebraska.

Correspondence with the latter showed him to be quite intelligent and well advanced in school education. I learned from him that he was the original Indian Levering, so named by a former teacher, but he could not explain why this Adam, called him, LEVERING. "And whatsoever Adam called every creature, that was the name thereof."

Levi informed me that he had an uncle in Nebraska who was named for him. The only instance made known to me of a senior generation being "named after" a junior. In letter of November 23, 1860, Mr. L. informs me that he is employed as a teacher in the Government Indian School, at Fort Hall, Idaho.

I conclude on this, lest the scattered descendants of these natives may sometime attract the attention of a future family historian, who may assume that he has discovered evidence of prehistoric or aboriginal existence of the family name in America.

While I have been very particular in requesting properly spelled names and definite dates, from correspondents, I have had to wrestle with most careless writing, and have been compelled, in some instances, to ask such writers to repeat.

I rec'd a report received from a man of business experience, who told me and named eight children, three of whom he reported as born within two years, at single births, and his youngest, as having been born two months after the date given, of its mother's decease.

Careless of dates, and names has cost much labor and many corrections. When a two-year-old has been reported as named "Lochley," I have felt compelled to save the matured man from mortification by substituting Rickard. In like manner I have transformed some gentleman's "Billy" into William. But, when confronted with Puss Thomas Dow, I preferred to write back, than to translate it Finn-Cat, which would, at best, leave the gender in confusion.

I do not escape typographical errors in this publication, but, where mistakes of name, or of date, are observed, they may, frequently, be charged to the person who furnished them, just as they are printed, rather than blame the types.

In "The Levering Family," at page 145, may be seen three separate births in one family as having occurred from March 24 to October 17, in the year 1851.

The errors may be typographical, but I have had just as reckless dating in "letters from home." I could not, however, admit them so, to my record.

In the arrangement of the genealogical display of the work, I have formulated the descendants of Wigard, and of Gerhard, respectively, in families, under the succeeding generations, assuming that Rosier, who was the direct source of the family in America, is entitled to be recognized as of the first generation. The breach between Rosier and John de Levering being too wide to bridge over.

As the Leverings of Bethlehem and Nazareth, Pa., are the descendants of Gerhard, there is no distinctive "Nazareth Branch" (as designated by Mr. Jones), to pedigree.

I have often been attracted by the similarity of our family surname to that of the family Lovering, resident, notably, in Boston, and the New England States, and have entertained the opinion that our families were of the same origin.

Local pronunciation often changes the spelling of a name. It is known that some related families in Ohio, accepted the pronunciation and adopted the spelling as Lavering, and this form prevailed generations ago in England, in collateral branches, as evidenced by an old Encyclopedia Heraldica, by Sir Bernard Burke, C. B., LL. D.

Mr. Jones directs attention to the Lovering name, on page 16, of THE LEVERING FAMILY. States that he conferred with Joseph S. Lovering, then of Philadelphia, and learned from him "that his ancestors were of English descent, and settled originally in Boston, Mass.," and so determined that no relation existed.

But Mr. Jones was adhering to the unstable tradition that Rosier Levering was of French nationality; basing his conclusions thereon.

In my correspondence with Hon. William C. Lovering, of Taunton, Mass., he stated: "I have quite an extensive account of the ancestry of my family. They were among the first to appear in the early colonial history of Massachusetts, dating back in the early part of the seventeenth century. My early ancestry in this country were in the old Colonial Army. One of my ancestors, direct, having been Aide-de-Camp to General Wolf at the Battle of Quebec. I am not aware that the two names are in any way connected, although they are singularly alike."

As I will show upon the following pages, little doubt exists, that Rosier Levering—probably with his father—was of the band of Separatists, who left Scrooby, in Nottinghamshire, England, in 1608, and settled temporarily at Leyden, in Holland; that a part of that band came to America in the May Flower; that others followed later, and some came not at all. I am impressed that the primogenitor of the Loverings was, as stated, "among the first to appear in the early Colonial History of Massachusetts," while the primogenitor of the Leverings in America, was of those who "came not at all."

WHENCE CAME WE?

THE LEVERING FAMILY, of the United States of America, may be traced to an individual source.

As the children of Israel were of one fatherhead, so the present representatives of the name LEVERING, and connections of other surnames, related by consanguinity, are the lineage of a common progenitor, ROSIER.

Tradition ascribed to him French origin, and related him to the heroic band of religious devotees that expatriated themselves from their native land, the better to serve their Lord and Master. We have even accepted this traditional, this intangible testimony, unto a belief that the family name was derived from the French language, having a French definition, if not derivation.

I, myself, accepted this family creed, as most persons accept the dogmas of their parent church, with unquestioning faith, until investigation has shaken my belief.

When the Levering Historical Association imposed upon me the task of providing a family history, I felt that I could not accept hearsay evidence as a foundation upon which to build. It is hay, stubble and straw, and will be consumed by the fire of reasonable criticism. The question, What proof have we of Huguenot origin? presented itself. I could find none. Even circumstantial evidence as learned from family annals is testimony in rebuttal of the theory. The oldest record evidence we possessed—that furnished by Wigard Levering, in his well written family register—related his parents to Holland.

Though his father was named by Wigard, without specifying his domicile, he recorded of his mother and of his wife that they were of the old cities of Wesel and Leyden, respectively, in and near to Holland. Wigard was born in Germany. By his family register, and other records, we know his language was Teutonic. What evidence have we that Rosier was not of the same mold? I believe none.

This exposed me to an open field of inquiry: to search all things, prove all things, and hold fast only to that which is good.

Is Levering a French surname? As I had not given the question any serious thought, and being unskilled in family nomenclature, I accepted it as such, because others had said so, until the representative of the French government at our national capitol, in answer to an inquiry made of him, suggested other orthographical construction, "as," he wrote, "French surnames do not end in ing."

In my desire to "prove all things" I made diligent search through several publications relating to surnames. The work most prolific of information, allied to my quest, is that entitled English Surnames, by Mark Antony Lower. Notwithstanding the volumes purport to discuss English Surnames, the Author treats of all family names represented in English domain, including those of Teutonic and Norman origin. He presents in his publication 5,360 surnames, from these and other sources, of which but 23 (1 in 233) end with ing.

In a genealogical work by H. R. Cooke, 1880, entitled, "The Driver Family," appears a roster of the troops that accompanied William of Normandy to England (1066), as copied from the Roll in the Church of Dives, a village in Calvados, Normandy. The name of LEVERING does not appear, nor other name which could be construed into it, nor does any one of the names end with ing.

In the roll of the survivors of the battle of Hastings, or Senlac (1066), as contained in Battle Abbey, Leland lists two hundred and fifty-seven names, and in a roster of the same survivors, by Hollinshead, embracing six hundred and fifty-three names, but one of the entire number ends with ing, and an explanation or foot-note of doubt is appended to this.

Leland further states as to the ending of names, "The termination ville,—equivalent to our own English ton,—was a prevalent one among the Normans," and Noble, gives a general rule for determining the locality from which French names originated, viz.: "The Norman names end chiefly in ville; those of Anjou, in lerc; those in Guienne and the banks of Garonne, in ac, and those of Picardy, in cour."

As to French, or purely Norman surnames, this disposes of a tradition that there were Leverings or Le Verings in the Norman army of invasion.

In contrast with this, Teutonic surnames are considered. Kemble says, "ing, inge, or inger, is found in the sense of progeny or offspring, in the most of Teutonic languages," adding: "ing in modern German, is a young man." By way of illustration he states, that "in the early part of the ninth century, we find Eadgar^{ing}, or the son of Eadgar; Esning, or the son of Esne."

These citations tend to support a theory of ancient Teutonic origin for our family name. The Teutonic conquests of old Anglia (subsequently England), occurred in the fifth and sixth centuries. The Celtic inhabitants called the invaders Saxons, while the conquerors called themselves Angles, or English.

Freeman, in his "Norman Conquest," Vol. I, p. 6, states: "The Norman invaders in the eleventh century found in the Isle of Britain, three nations, speaking three languages—English, Welsh and Gaelic. Then as now, the dominant Teuton knew himself by no name but that of Englishman, and was known to his Celtic neighbor by no name but that of Saxon."

I have not, however, disposed of the subject.

The idiosyncracies of a family reasonably indicate origin. A study of half a century, directed to descendants of the family, in many localities, including the propagating ground where the seed of Rosier was first implanted in the year 1685, tends to convince me, that the perseverance of the English, and stability of the Teuton, rather than the mercurial tendencies of the French, characterize the family, and the physical developments in mature manhood, point in the same direction.

Professor Matthews wrote, "French human nature is not like the English or German human nature; it is human nature elaborated and adorned by art," adding: "Give an Englishman a home and he can easily forego society. Even the solitude of the wilderness has no terrors for him, and he is happy on the very borders of civilization. The French, on the other hand, have failed almost utterly as colonizers, because of their intense, social instincts."

Ergo: These distinctions appear to determine, that the diligent, assiduous, enterprising attributes, which characterize Levering manhood and womanhood, indicate clearly, a more substantial origin than we have heretofore claimed, and entitle us to Anglo-Saxon birth-rights.

While members of the family may not have attained fame or popularity, it can truthfully be said they have not aspired to such distinction, but their brain and brawn is felt in any community where their lot may be cast. A sturdy and worthy ancestry has, through many generations, been honored by industrious and frugal descendants; none hanging around public cribs; no mendicants; no plebeians or parvenues; no rumsellers; no criminals; none ashamed of toiling ancestors. There are very few drones in Levering hives.

If the history of one of the families of "the 400," of our great metropolis was being written, and it should be stated that the original settler once carried a pack and retailed small wares—in short, was a peddler—it would be stating fact, but it would not dishonor his descendants, who would rather dishonor themselves, if they suppress the fact of humble origin. Elihu Burritt was a blacksmith, Hugh Miller, a stone mason. Rittenhouse was a clock mender, and Grant a tanner; Webster a farmer and Lincoln a laborer, while "me lord Tomnobody was son of an Earl." Better an aristocracy of learning and mechanical skill, than of coon skins and beaver pelts, or even of greenbacks, as seems to prevail in this country. Labor, mental and physical, has ever been the indestructible mud-sill upon which true American character, or aristocracy, if you will, has been built, and in these ranks LEVERINGS are found. The old Jewish saying, "He who does not teach his children a trade, trains them to steal," appears to be exemplified in the accumulations of most of the rich of the present day.

I have stated upon other pages, my conviction, that the ancient town of Leverington, in Cambridgeshire, England, was related to our family surname. Judging by the practice in this country, I assumed that the town was named for the family, but, after much epistolary argument with my learned correspondent in England, and extensive reading of old publications upon the subject, I was convinced against my will.

Camden (1551-1623)—who first published his Britannia, about the year 1586, and his Anglia Normannica, in 1603—wrote: "Whereas therefore these locall denominations of families are of no great antiquitie, I can not see why men should thinke there ancestors gave names to places, when the places bare those very names before any men did their surnames."

Lower said: "There is a vulgar error that places borrowed their designations from families, instead of to the contrary," and further on he qualifies the brusque remark, viz.: "While on this subject I would remind the reader that the practice of borrowing the designations of places from personal* names has prevailed in various ages and countries."

Freeman, a more modern authority, states: "The main divisions of the country, the local names of its mass of towns and villages, were fixed when the Normans came, and they have survived, with little change, to our day. The map of England, now, differs little from the map in the reign of William," and as to language, he wrote:

* i. e., Christian names, not surnames.

“The conquered did not become Normans, but the conquerors did become Englishmen,” adding, “In speaking of the Teutonic inhabitants of Britain, I use the word English, never the words Saxon or Anglo-Saxon; we should call nations as they call themselves.”

Camden maintained that surnames first occurred in the Domesday Book, say 1086, while Lower offers evidence of old MSS., that there were some dual names before that period, or before the Norman conquest.

The practice in this age and country of naming geographical areas and towns from family surnames, excludes us from imbibing the “vulgar errors” imputed by Lower. There are in the United States twenty-three Camden postoffices, with six cities, or county seats of the name, all of which, are, no doubt, designated for the antiquarian, who disclaimed such baptismal origin for place appellations.

By way of further illustration of the practice in our country: In the State of Indiana there are ninety-two counties, all but fourteen of them bear the surnames of persons or families. In Iowa there are ninety-nine counties, all but twenty-eight of them bear similar designations, while of the twenty-eight there are twenty individual and tribal Indian names. Even in the old State of Pennsylvania, thirty-nine of the sixty-seven counties bear family surnames.

Following the theories laid down by Camden, and having discovered that the family name existed centuries before Rosier's time, I pursued a line of inquiry for the advent of the ancient town, Leverington, about which, as I have stated, were associated names of families which had become extinct in the locality, verifying another statement by Camden, viz.: “It may also be proved that many places which now have lords denominated of them, had owners of other surnames and families not many hundred yeeres since,” adding, “I know, never-the-lesse, that albeit most townes haue borrowed their names from their situations and other respects, yet some with apt terminations have their names from men, as Edwardston, and Alfredstone. But, these were forenames or christian names, and not from surnames. For Ingulfus plainly sheweth that Wiburton and Leffrington were so named because two knights, Wiburt and Leofric there sometime inhabited. But, if any one should affirme that the gentlemen named Lefferington and Wiburton gave names to the places so named, I would humbly, without prejudice, craue respite for a further day before I believed him.”

Here was revealed the object of my search, with a chronological indication to the time of birth, as the Ingulfus referred to, must be Ingulf, Abbot of Crowland or Croyland (1030-1109), the historian, and reputed author of The Chronicles of Croyland Abbey, who was contemporaneous with William, Duke of Normandy, and was Secretary to William, as stated by his biographer. The trend of this indicated the existence of Leverington prior to the Norman Conquest (1066).

While the manor of Wisbech, in which the town is situated, was mentioned in Domesday, that famous survey omits Leverington, and other towns which were known to have existed in the fens, so, the famous manuscript*, The Chronicles of Croyland, was appealed to, and the statement of Ingulfus, referred to by Camden, was found and copied by my scholarly correspondent.

As I have stated herein, the translation of the medieval latin text was made by Professor Chandler of the University of Chicago. It reads: "At length, in the year 870 of the Lord's incarnation, in the month of September, the most energetic Count (Earl) Algar, and the two Knights, Wiburt and Leofric, his seneschals, gathered together all the youth of Holland: † from the names of which knights, the country people, and the old men dwelling there, have given to the towns in which they (the knights) lived (which still retain their names) the (present) appellations, to wit: calling them respectively, Wiburton (i. e., Wiburt's town) and Lefrinkton (i. e., Leofric's town)."

The construction of this statement inferentially admits the existence of these towns at the time they so received their respective baptismal names and the record was made—probably in the beginning of the twelfth century, as the author died 1100—more than two hundred years after the convocation of "the country people and the old men," shows they "still retained their names."

The historiographer builded better than he knew, as the lapse of eight centuries has not obliterated the record he made, nor extinguished the names he graved upon the imperishable tablets; and even that dead past is linked to the present by tangible memories which I may show in place.

In England no public record is made of land titles and of town plats, as in the United States. Their titles are preserved by documents handed down from father to son, in entailed or inherited estates, or by transferring such papers, from grantor to grantee, in event of a sale. Titles are regarded as of immemorial growth, and records, when they exist, are found in the possession of landed families, or in the libraries of various learned societies. The great Magna Charta of 1215, which accorded constitutional rights to British subjects, is jealously preserved by the people, and is a notable exception.

*For the preservation of these invaluable papers, the Chronicles were printed in 1883, but, as only one hundred copies were made, the book is costly and rare.

† A district of country in the south end of Lincolnshire, near by was called Holland, as is shown in the maps of England, of the eighth century, and to this time.

Freeman, in his "Old England," states: "The origin of our most ancient towns is shrouded in utter darkness. All that we can say is, that if London and York, Colchester and Lincoln were continuously inhabited from Roman times, they had no political succession. * * * * A collection of houses grew up on the manor of some lord or prelate, or at the gate of some castle or monastery. The settlement grew into a town, and as the town increased in importance it received some privilege from its lord—the grant of a market, perhaps. In other cases where the burghers were pushing, the town grew into an immemorial city."

It is said of London, that one may trace evidences of the ancient Landurum of the Roman occupation, with its walled fortresses, near to the present London bridge.

Stow, the standard authority for London history, is uncertain how the city took its name. There are many versions as to the origin. So early as the year 839, London was destroyed by the Danes.

Accepting the insistence of Verstigan, Camden, and other antiquarian genealogists, that families were named for towns, and not "to the contrary," and in view of the fact, that Lefrington (now Leverington) was so called two centuries before any surnames were invented or adopted, we must admit the seniority of the town, and accept it as the primary source of our family name.

Consulting more recent, or modern authorities, Freeman, in his Norman Conquest, Vol. V, page 378, asserts: "In England before the conquest there is no ascertained case of a strictly hereditary surname. At the time of the Norman invasion of England the practice of hereditary surnames seems still to have been a novelty in Normandy, * * *." At page 384, he states: "The nomenclature of the Flemish district of Pembrokeshire, and a part of the peninsula of Gower, is as Teutonic as that of Kent itself. The witness of language shows that the driving out of the Britons must have been complete. And the new lords, whether their own blood was Norman, English or French, gave to their settlements names which were coined from their own personal names after a purely English pattern, and the ending is always the distinctly English ton."

The same author, in his "Old English History," says: "In England nearly all town names are either English or Danish, that is, they are nearly all Teutonic names of some kind."

The gentry of Wales bore no hereditary surnames, until the time of Henry the Eighth (1509-1547). That Monarch recommended the heads of Welsh families to conform to the usage long before adopted by the English.

Lower, wrote, that the unsettled state of surnames in those early times, renders it a difficult matter to trace the pedigree of any family beyond the thirteenth century, as in some cases the younger branches of a family, laying aside the name of their father, took their names from the places of their residence. Sometimes the sons of a family would each assume a different surname.

So, in France, in that period, it was not unusual for the eldest sons to take their father's surnames, while the younger branches assumed the names of estates allotted to them, and in England, the same practice prevailed. Camden cited an instance: "Hugh, of Saddington, gave to his second sonne his manour of Fridon; to his third sonne his manour of Pantley, and to his fourth, his wood of Albdy. The sonnes call themselves DeFrydon, DePantley and DeAlbdy, and their posterity remooved the De."

In these, and similar instances, a "local habitation and a name" were acquired.

Lower, wrote: "Although the practice of adopting hereditary surnames from manors and locations originated in Normandy, we are not therefore to conclude that all those names that have De prefixed were of Norman origin, for many families of Saxon lineage copied the example of their conqueror, in this particular. If the Normans had their DeWarrens, DeMortimers and DeEversuxes, the English, likewise, had their DeFords, DeAshburtons and DeNewtons."

Rev. Dr. Lathrop, in a biography of Samuel Appleton, wrote: "Tracing Samuel of Little Waldingfield, directly to John Appleton, who died in 1412, and making it probable that he was descended from William de Appleton, who died in 1326. The name Appleton, signifying Orchard, is of Saxon origin and is found applied to places before the Norman conquest; after that event, it is found applied to persons, but always with a Norman christian name, such as William, Henry, etc., prefixed."

As the ancient town of Leverington—obviously, our "patria,"—now becomes an object of earnest concern to our family, a reference to it, or even a detailed description of the municipality, may be expected of me.

Leverington is situated in the north end of Cambridgeshire, England, in the very midst of that naturally protected area of marsh lands commonly called the fens, or overflowed lands, which embraced all the northerly part of the shire, and large portions of five counties adjoining, caused by the reaction of the flow by the North Sea, in resisting the currents of the Nen and Ouse rivers.

Many islands diversify the face of the waters, the most important being the Isle of Ely, which extends about twenty-eight miles in length and twenty-five miles in breadth, and embraces several important towns and villages, as Ely, Wisbech, Whittlesey, Wilburton, Levington, Newton, March, etc.

When William of Normandy, in the year 1066, made conquest of England, regarding his success over King Harrold in the battle of Hastings, as an accomplishment of his purpose, he found resistance from the sturdy inhabitants of these islands. His want of a navy, and their strategic surroundings rendered their acquisition a difficult problem. The Danish rovers, who plundered and destroyed Peterborough, also the Minster of Crowland, in the year 1070, contributed to the Norman conqueror's efforts and did much mischief among the islands, which were regarded as desirable residences in those days of conflict. The Isle of Ely, which was the center of patriotic movement, offered stubborn resistance and endeavored to remain independent English ground, but in the month of October, 1071, William, by attacks upon both sides of the Island, overcame the loyal forces, and the conquest of England was complete.

It is written that William, in person, reached Ely on October 27, 1071. That when he entered the stately church building, the monks were indulging their appetites in the refectory. Because of the influence they had exerted, William punished them for treason, and it cost them many of the valuable ornaments of the church to appease the conqueror's displeasure.

After the reduction of this formidable stronghold, William constructed forts upon the island which he garrisoned to hold the people in subjection.

The city of Ely is an important municipality, and its grand cathedral, built 1083 to 1534, is, with all its appointments, one of the finest in all of Europe. Professor Hoppin, writing of it, said: "It is frozen history, as well as frozen music." As its archives protect documents of great interest to our family, as well, a wealth of English history—superior in some respects to the repositories of the British Museum, I may add some remarks as to its ecclesiastical character. There is a well preserved printed list of its bishops. As in those of other English cathedrals, they are named in the chronological order of their succession and service; the bishops of the Reformed period being joined upon the tenure of the Roman Catholic prelates. The order of service for several generations being a form of Anglicanism hardly distinguishable from Roman practices.

The ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the parish is widespread, even embracing Cambridge, the great seat of learning, in its fold.

A recent writer states of the cathedral: "Of all the old churches in England, this one exhibits indications of the greatest modern care and thought bestowed upon it. It glows with new stained glass windows, splendid marbles, exquisite sculptures and bronze work. Its western tower is two hundred and sixty feet in height, with turreted spires. Its length five hundred and seventeen feet, with a vast, irregular bulk above the town at its foot, make it a commanding object, seen from the plain."

Next in importance to Ely is the ancient town of Wisbech. Its history extending to A. D., 664, when a charter by Wulfhere gave the place recognition. After the subjugation of the Isle of Ely, William erected strong fortifications also, at Wisbech, with ample forces to hold the district in check, as well to prevent foreign invasion, as the place guarded the harbor as effectually as does the fortress of Alcatraz, in our western Golden Gate.

The hundred of Wisbech (Wisbece), in which Leverington is situated, is mentioned in Domesday, as held under the jurisdiction of the Abbey of Ely. The landholders in Cambridgeshire, as named in Domesday, numbered forty-four, and were, mostly, titled persons and ecclesiastics.

The vast area known as the fens, was, measurably, reclaimed by artificial means, commenced about the year 1649, under direction of the Earl of Bedford, and has, since, been called the Bedford Level. Well's History of Bedford Level, London, 1830, 2 Vols., states, that the lands of Wisbech, sometimes called Wisbech Hundred, contain about seventeen thousand, seven hundred acres, and embrace the towns of St. Giles, Leverington, Newton, Wilburton, and others, and are managed under a commission.

Leverington occupies a central location, being in the midst of the fen country, hence, enjoyed an enviable protection, when wars and rumors of wars, prevailed.

The BRITISH GAZETTEER, published in London, 1852, said of Leverington: "It is a parish in the hundred of Wisbech, Isle of Ely, on the Wishead, or Nen River. It includes the chapelry of Parson Drove; is ninety-nine miles north from London, two from Wisbech; Northern and East Coast Rail to Wisbeach. London letters delivered at 9:30 A. M. A school at Parson Drove is endowed with land. According to Tanner, there was formerly an hospital here. Four of the schools at Leverington are supported by the rents of the crown lands, which produce about £235 a year. The living (St. Leonards and St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the diocese of Ely, is valuable; population, 1849, about 2,240."

WATSON'S HISTORY OF WISBECH, Manor of Richmond, Isle of Ely, says: "Leverington is a large village, two miles north of Wisbech, lying in the hundred and deanery of Wisbech. It is divided into two townships, called Leverington St. Leonards, and Leverington Parson Drove. In Bloomfield's collection, there is mention made of a special license for celebrating divine service in the chapel of Richmond Manor, in Leverington, granted in 1390. Of Richmond Manor there is no further information until 1632, when it belonged to a family of the name of Carvill. The estate became, afterwards, the possession of Major Mason, who sold it in lots, when the manor with the principal farm was purchased by Mr. George Johnson, to whom it now (1827) belongs." (It since was acquired, and is now (1894) in possession of Hon. Alexander Peckover of Wisbech.) "There are certain lands in the parish applied for the purposes of charity, and vested in feofees, one of whom, who undertakes the management for the year, is called the town bailiff. The annual value is at this time (1827) £290. Out of the rent of these lands, a salary of £30 is given to the schoolmaster for educating poor children. Other parts of these rents are applied toward maintenance of poor persons in the almshouses, and in keeping such buildings in repair, and the residue for general purposes, relating to the benefit of the poor.

"There is an ancient building in the parish, not far from the old church, which shows some works of antiquity, called the Guild Hall, in which, probably, the public business of the parish was formerly transacted. This is now converted into tenements and used as almshouses, and occupied by parish paupers.

"There is a tradition of an hospital having once existed in this parish, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, of which, however, no trace now remains, nor even is the site known.

"A decoy for catching wild fowl used formerly to be kept in this parish.

"The manor of Filton, adjoining, is supposed to have been anciently held by a family of that name, though there is no record of it now. Afterwards, it passed successively, to the Hordes, Lawrences and Buckworths, the latter of whom were possessed of it to 1632. An old-fashioned brick building still (1827) retains the name of Filton Hall. All families are extinct in the neighborhood."

Watson, in his history, records of the old church, St. Leonard's: "The church is a noble and beautiful structure, having an antique, square tower at the west end, finely proportioned and chastely ornamented, on which is placed a lofty spire of stone, of the height of one hundred and sixty-two feet, in the whole; admired as one of the most elegant in the Isle and country. On each corner of the tower is a pretty considerable round turret, which has a good effect. In the tower is a chime of musical bells. The nave is spacious, as is the chancel, with two side aisles and a chapel at the end of the south aisle, all of which are leaded, (i. e., the roofs are covered with sheet lead). Here, also, is a beautiful south porch, built entirely of stone, with a priest's chamber over it, about twelve feet square, roofed, also, with free stone, and adorned with spire work. The church is exempt from the Archdeacon's jurisdiction, and is under that of the bishop only.

"A saint's bell hangs at the east end of the church by a small turret on the south side." (This used to be rung in pre-Reformation times, at the elevation of the Host. The bell is still (1894) in place, a silent reminder of the church practices of Romish administration.)

"The altar is on three steps, railed in. Elegant arches of division separate the chancel from the south chapel, wherein are escutcheons to the family of Swaine (also extinct) and several mural monuments to them, and the family of Cross.

"The nave is divided from the chancel by a handsome arch. Five pillars on each side divide the aisles, and three pillars, the south chapel from the chancel.

"At the west end is a singing gallery (removed about 1840), over which are the royal arms. At the bottom of the middle aisle at the west end, stands the font; it is octagonal, in the gothic style, richly ornamented with tracery, and has niches round it, in which are sitting figures of bishops, etc., and is enriched with pinnacles, crotchets and roses. It is ascended on the west side by three stone steps and a platform."

Emerson, in verse, extolled—

"The hand that rounded Peter's dome,
And groined the aisles of Christian Rome."

But, Sir Christopher Wren did not yet exist (born 1631) when this handsome memorial pile was erected. Freeman says: "Before the twelfth century had run its course, the fully developed, pointed architecture had reached its perfection." Four centuries later, Sir Christopher applied the device of leaded roof to the great Cathedral of St. Pauls in London, built 1675 to 1710.

Watson continues his description: "One of these ancient crosses, formerly so general, used to stand at the extremity of the parish, where the hamlet or township of Parson Drove commences, which went by the name of Peter's Cross, but many years since was removed."

Crosses were, in pre-Reformation times, set up as boundary marks, to define the limits of various tenures or precincts. Many of them were destroyed by the Puritans in the seventeenth century. The bases of three such crosses are still (1894) in existence at, and near to Leverington.

Cole's MSS., in the archives of the British Museum, of date 1760, contains many interesting particulars about the fabric and ornamentation of the church, St. Leonards, and its appurtenances, also lists of the rectors of Leverington and the chaplains of the chantry at Filton, but the family name of Levering is not mentioned, nor does it occur in Brock Rand's MSS. in the Library at Cambridge, which contains extracts from the Bishops' Registers for several centuries past.

In connection with the old church, St Leonards, which is supposed to have been constructed about A. D. 1260, stands the "Leverington Rectory," which was originally built more than three hundred years ago. The rear portion was modernized a few years ago, as shown by a photographic likeness which I caused to be taken. It is occupied by the Rector, Rev. Drake, who wrote regarding the extinguishment of the Levering name: "Much of the old painted glass in the church and other tablets, were destroyed, both at the time of the Reformation, and during the conflicts of the last century, and there can be no doubt that monumental records have thus perished, probably records of the Leverings amongst them. The omission of the name is no proof that Leverings did not in earliest times reside in this locality."

Rev. Drake added: "As our correspondence leads to the connection of your family name with this place, I feel fully rewarded for my labor. It is time to think of a memorial in the church to commemorate, or restore, the attachment of the old family to the old country."

Though Luther died in 1546, his soul, like that of John Brown, went "marching on," until the purpose of his life was accomplished, not only in religious reform, but in inaugurating an era of sound learning.

The antiquity of Leverington, and the industrial interests are rendered evident, by the well preserved remains of an old Woad Mill, said to have been the only one in the country. The Woad, or Isatis, was a plant which furnished the blue dye with which the ancient Britons—in semi-barbaric days—used to paint their bodies.

It is observed that a "decoy for catching wild fowl" used formerly to be kept at Leverington. The importance of this is obvious, as a source of great revenue afforded by the natural surroundings. The fens abounded in aquatic fowls and fishes. In olden times, quit rents, in kind, were paid annually to the lords of the manor, and even the crown demanded tribute of the harvest from the bordering seas. During many generations thousands of fishes and eels were annually accorded the crown from the product of the fisheries in the fens.

The existence of a Guild Hall testifies the once mechanical importance of the town. Centuries ago fraternities called Guilds were organized and maintained throughout Europe, especially in France and the Teutonic countries. They embraced benevolent, social, political and business features. Each trade or calling, and even the so-called learned professions, preserved its individuality, and evidence of practical skill in each trade was a pre-requisite to membership.

Campbell states: "Out of the Germanic guilds, formed for mutual protection, insurance and social purposes, grew the Anglo-Saxon hundreds, where each member was responsible for the actions of all the others. From the same source came the social guilds, which, before the Reformation, were numerous in England."

So powerful an influence in politics and municipal government was exerted by these guilds, that distinguished persons, even royalty itself, sought membership—such applicants, in lieu of mechanical skill, using guilders, as a persuasive for admission.

This condition of things prostituted the designs of the orders, and sowed seeds of discord and weakness among them. They became obnoxious and matter of public complaint in most parts of Germany. The influences exerted in the work of the Reformation abolished many organizations, and where maintained, they were restored, in great measure, to their normal objects and usefulness. These Guilds were most prosperous during the middle ages. For more than a century past they have ceased to exist. Their history is written in the volumes of many centuries. Their insignia and armorial bearings are yet to be seen boldly sculptured in many public edifices and old churches. These have become their monuments.

The nearness and commercial advantages possessed by the town of Wisbech detract from Leverington, its source of growth. The present dwellers in the locality are employed in the culture of fruits and the production of agricultural seeds. So extensive is the raising of mustard seed, that a mustard market is held each autumn for the disposal of the crop.

Though the family name LEVERING was, manifestly, derived from that of this ancient town, we do not know certainly, at this remote period, what individual first bore the surname and started it down the declivity of time.

A search, which I caused to be made in the muniment rooms of the Episcopal palace at Ely, in April, 1893, discovered the name of Robert, son of John de Leveryng, as tenant of the Wisbech Barton Manor, in the eighth year of the reign of Edward II, of England: say 1316. The hyphenated name, suggests John of Leveryng-ton, after the manner of acquiring family surnames, subsequent to the Norman conquest, and this definition suggests origin of family name.

The orthographical construction of the name in the substitution of the vowel "y," for the "i," as first used by Ingulf, was, after the manner of the times. Wickliffe (then Wyckliffe, 1320-1384), who was an authority in learning, in his time, wrote, "Thy Kyngdom come," in rendering the Lord's prayer.

The old song contributed to Wallace—a name dear to the Scotch people, as a leader against Edward I, at the end of the thirteenth century—ran "His Fadyr was a manly Knyght,

His Modyre was a Lady brycht."

And notwithstanding the Chronicles of Croyland use the letter "f," in the first syllable, and the letter "k" as a terminal for the name, in one instance, still there is a harmony of sound and meaning which clearly identifies, and like the fossils in Hugh Miller's rocks, they "tell a true story."

It was not until the middle of the fourteenth century, that the English language obtained official recognition as a language. About the year 1350, John Cornwall, as a "mayster of gramere, chaunged Freynch into Englysch."

Various historians assert that at the time of the ascension of Elizabeth to the throne (1558), but few of the peers of the realm could read and write, and but little advancement in educational advantages was made during her long reign of forty-five years. It modern times no other language has made so rapid progress in construction as the English, nor equaled it in its spread. It is estimated that no less than one hundred and fifteen millions of people now speak the English language.

A single remnant of the blood—in the persons of Franz Levering and family—still, may be found in old Gemen, in Germany. When I first learned of him (1883), he spelled his name Lefering, but with characteristic German flexibility, he readily substituted the letter "v" for the "f," and now writes it properly.

In thus determining the family to be of English—it may be, of Anglo-Saxon or ancient Scandinavian origin—we run upon the apparent obstruction of French, or Huguenot source. At best, that was unstable tradition, and the reasons and characteristics hereinbefore given, appear to dispel the French derivation. If we descend from the ancient Teutonic Briton, all the better material are we, as I have shown, and the leopard may not change his spots.

Shakspeare, Bacon, Milton and Newton were English, so were Adam Smith and David Hume, also James Watt and Lock, as well Cowper and William Carey.

It appeared an especial gratification to DuChaillu to believe that the old Norse Vikings, rather than their kinsmen, the Angles and Saxons, were the ancestors of modern Englishmen, and why not we share the honor?

I prefer to contemplate John de Leveryng as having shared in the battle of Bannockburn, helping to establish Bruce upon the throne, or that his son Robert was of the national forces of Edward III in the wars which gave vain-glorious French chivalry its death blows, than to hug the traditional falsehood that any Leverings shared in the invasions from Normandy or ancient Gaul.

Having established the family name, and its unquestionable origin, we may here raise an Ebenezer as a bench-mark or date-stone by making note of the armorial bearings which were ascribed to the name and its ton. Being found in an English publication—an early edition of Burke—is further evidence that it was born of the manor.

"Three hares en pale, upon an azure shield," was the interpretation given me a half century ago, by a skilled heraldic engraver in Philadelphia, who first called my attention to the insignia, and engraved for me a seal, which I have carefully preserved.

While the country tributary to the Ouse was the home of the immortal Cowper, whose three hares, Puss, Bess and Tiny, were his inseparable companions and figured in his verse, may we not assume that the earliest Levering fostered similar pets and fossilized a memory of them by blazoning on armorial shield?

Lower, who was an authority, wrote in relation to heraldic charges: "The most incurious observer must have noticed that very many heraldic bearings coincide with the surnames of the families to which they appertain. Thus, the Herons, bear herons; the Beevors, a beaver; the Corbets, a raven, and the Hoggs, a boar. When the surname was first adopted the arms, in a great majority of instances, are a mere play or pun upon it." In an illustrated appendix to his volumes it is observed that three colts upon a shield are ascribed to the Colt family, while seven acorns symbolize the family of Sevenokes, and the leading features of the shield to the name of Cartwright, as appears in this genealogy, are three cart-wheels. Here is a reasonable suggestion that similar caprice contributed three leverets (hares) to distinguish the Levering name and individuality, after the practice of the times, although such distinction is greatly cheapened, and justly so, in democratic America, where the "New Nobility" needs no distinguishing shields.

The same volume of Burke which promulgates the above armorial escutcheon, contains bearings accorded to what appears a collateral branch of the family Levering, in that the orthographical construction of the name differs in one vowel only. They are as follow:

"Lavering, ar 2 chevronels, sa, in chief as many hart's heads, chevronel gu, Crest, A shepherd's flute in pale, ppr."

"Lavering, Ar, 2 chevronels, sa, between 3 hart's heads cabossed gu."

"Lavering, Ar, a lion pass sa, a borduce engr. of the last."

I am now confronted by a great desert; sterile of family name or annals; a breach of time and distance, from the beginning of the fourteenth century to the middle of the seventeenth, consuming, at least, twelve generations. Like the great "Lost River" in Southern Indiana, the offspring of John de Levering, or of his son, Robert, have disappeared from sight, and following subterranean channels through generations, as through counties, again emerges in full vigor, in ROSIER, our heretofore known progenitor, from whence the stream is unbroken. Disappears in England, reappears in Holland and Germany. Can this be accounted for? Yes!

After earnest search through several years past, I am convinced that the family was not prolific in the old countries.

Like other families, the name has become extinct at Leverington, nor does it now appear in the directories of London and adjacent municipalities. It is serious regret to me that the finances of the family association will not warrant the employment of exhausting researches in the libraries of Ely, of Cambridge and Peterborough, as well, the catalogues of their educational institutions. Also, the archives at Boston, Nottingham and Scrooby, and the repositories of the old walled towns of York, Chester and Lincoln, in England; following the scent across the North Sea into Holland, not omitting Amsterdam, and leaving no stone unturned at ancient Leyden, where, I feel impressed, that there are Levering footprints. I can not dispel the conviction that there are at least fossil remains of family existence at one or more of these places.

When (in 1882-84) I was pursuing researches upon my own bent and expense, I caused thorough search at Wesel, also at Mulheim, Munster, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Bremen, Brunen, and especially, at Gemen, where my impressions, as at Leyden, amounted to intuition, and I dug deeper into the mysteries, even after my searchers discouraged the expenditure. The result is made known in this work. Here, also, was found a single representative of the family name. The recent death of Dietrich Henry Levering, aged ninety years, a veteran of the Napoleonic wars of 1813-15, extinguished his generation. The only living member of his unprolific family, being his son, Franz Levering, then aged forty-one years, who with a handsome wife, named Adele, aged thirty-six years, and six wholesome looking children, Theodore, aged sixteen; John, aged thirteen; Josephine, ten; Emma, eight; Joseph, four, and Anthony, one and a half years. I caused the family to be photographed; the picture, at my request, showing the lost manuscript church record, which I had caused to be pursued and found, and from which were extracted all the genealogical items hereinafter copied.

Whether the scarcity of Leverings in foreign lands was due to barren fields or to the iron hand of fate, I know not, but I may record of the family of Franz Levering, of Gemen, that since my first intercourse with him, his apparently vigorous wife, Adele, died on July 6, 1885, also of the children, that Theodore, the eldest, died in December, 1886; Emma, in April, 1887; Joseph, in January, and Anthony, in February, 1888. Franz married again in 1888, and this wife died October 1, 1893. It is noticeable that the second son, John, was spared as a prospective source of family name, but he had suffered hemorrhages of the lungs. A son born in 1884 was also named John Franz, in compliment to the writer, who was honored, also, in the baptismal ceremonial, with the relation of god-father; an equivocal attitude for a born-and-bred Baptist. From present indications, this scion of lineal descent may be the sole dependence for perpetuating the family name upon Teutonic soil, and, possibly, the name will become a memory, as at Leverington.

As has been already stated, the ancient church and memorials at Leverington suffered violence, both at the time of the Reformation (1517-1555), and during the conflicts of the last century. This grand, old, ecclesiastical pile was a mute witness to religious dissensions and to physical strife, engendered in an earnest desire to serve the Master.

While in all generations, even to pre-historic times, there have been men imbued with pure principles, who encouraged reforms of existing religious methods, especially of the empty ceremonials of the church, it was the enlightening era of the Reformation which produced the Purist, or Puritan, who imbibed a fixed religious faith and insisted upon its enjoyment. The underlying principles of this faith first took hold in Holland and Germany, and its spread embraced the English dissenters.

Assuming, as we may, that the primogenitor of the Levering family emanated from the personnel of the early Teutonic invaders of England, we can imagine the predilections of the offspring to imbibe the pure faith, and accept the new conditions of ecclesiastical government.

Although Elizabeth, who acquired the crown of England in 1558, and held it for forty-five years, was called, by some historians, "The Defender of European Protestantism," it was during her reign, and soon after her accession to the throne, that persecutions of the Separatists, and of the Puritan churches, were commenced. These inflictions were practiced during several years. A statute, passed in 1593, made Puritanism an offense against the laws, and placed the punishment of the dissenters into the hands of the common law judges. This drove many to expatriation.

At the death of Elizabeth and succession of James I (1603), the Puritans anticipated favors. A petition, signed by several hundred of their ministers asking support, was presented to that monarch, but the appeal availed them nothing. As their religion was born of humility and taught peace and good will, they sought relief in turning toward the hospitable doors of republican Holland. Douglas Campbell, in his valuable production entitled, "The Puritan in Holland, England and America," states that thousands of English Puritans flocked to Holland during the reigns of Elizabeth and the first two Stuarts. This implies individual expatriations; but the most noted migration was that of the Scrooby band, or congregation of Separatists, or Independents, from the north of Nottinghamshire, in 1608. Scrooby was within walking distance of Leverington, and I am persuaded that a Levering—probably the father of Rosier—was of that band.

While many more were, practically, driven from England under Elizabeth, it was the policy of James to restrain immigration, so, obstacles were placed in the way of the Scrooby movement. They were arrested and imprisoned at Scrooby, also at Boston, in Lincolnshire, which is on the coast near to Leverington.

From the "History of Plymouth Plantations," by William Bradford,* who was one of the leaders of the Scrooby band, I make extract:

"But these things could not long continue in any peaceable condition; they were hunted and persecuted on every side, so as their former afflictions were but as flea-biting in comparison of these which now came upon them. For some were taken & clapt up in prison, others had their houses besett & watcht night & day, & hardly escaped their hands; and ye most were faine to flie & leave their howses & habitations and the means of their livelehood. Yet these and many other sharper things which affterward befell them, were no other than they looked for, and therefore were ye better prepared to bear them by ye assistance of Gods grace & spirite. Yet seeing themselves thus molested and that ther was no hope of their continuance ther, by a joynte consente they resolved to goe into ye Low-Countries, wher they heard was freedome of Religion for all men; as also how sundrie from London & other parts of ye land, had been exiled & persecuted for ye same cause, & were gone thither, and lived at Amsterdam & in other places of ye land. So after they had continued together aboute a year (as a "distinct church") and kept their meetings every Saboth in one place or other, exercizing the worship of God amongst themselves notwithstanding all ye dilligence & malice of their adverssaries, they seeing they could no longer continue in yt condition, they resolved to get over into Hollad as they could, which was in ye year 1607 & 1608.

* William Bradford, who was one of the Mayflower emigrants, and was the second Governor of the colony, wrote a history of the organization, trials and struggles of this religious band: their escape from England, their emigration to America, and the colonization of Massachusetts, which he called Plymouth Plantation. The old manuscript, after more than two centuries of preservation, was found in an old library near to London (believed to have been surreptitiously taken from Boston, Mass.), where it was copied and a limited number printed. It has been my good fortune to peruse one of these volumes. The original MSS. has recently (May, 1897) been recovered to the City of Boston.

“Being thus constrained to leave their native soyle & cōuntry, their lands & livings, and all their friends & famillier acquaintance, it was much, and thought marvelous by many. But to go into a cōuntry they knew not, but by hearsay, wher they must learne a new language, & get their livings they knew not how, it being a dear place and subjects to ye miseries of warr, it was by many thought an adventure almost desperate, a case intolerable & a miserie worse than death. Espetially seeing they were not acquainted with trads nor traffique (by which yt cōuntry doth subsiste), but had only been used to plaine cōuntry life, & ye inocente trad of husbandry. But these things did not dismay them for their desires were sett on ye ways of God & to enjoye his ordinances; but they rested on his providence & knew in whom they had beleevd. Yet this was not all, for though they could not stay, yet were ye not suffered to goe, but ye ports & havens were shut against them, so they were faine to seeke secrete means of conveance & to bribe & fee ye mariners & give extraordinarie rates for their passages. And yet were they oftentimes betrayed and both they & their goods intercepted & surprisid, and therby put to great trouble & charge of which I will give an instance or two & omitte the rest.

“Ther was a large companie of them purposed to get passage at Boston, in Lincoln-shire, and for that end had hired a shipe wholly to them selves & made agreement with the maister to be ready at a certaine day, and take them and their goods in, at a conveniente place, wher they accordingly would all attende in readiness. So after long waiting & large expences, though he kepte not day with them, yet he came at length & tooke them in, in ye night.

“But when he had them & their goods aboard, he betrayed them, haveing before hand complotted with ye serchers & other officers so to doe; who tooke them, and put them in open boats & ther rifled & ransaked them, serching them to their shirts for money, yea even ye women funder than became modestie; and then carried them back into ye towne & made them a spectacle & wonder to ye multitude, which came flocking on all sides to behould them. Being thus first, by the catchpoule officers, rifled & striped of their money, books, and much other goods, they were presented to ye magestrats, and messengers sente to inform ye lords of ye Counsell of them; and so they were comited to ward. Indeed ye magestrats used them courteously, & shewed them what favour they could; but could not deliver them, till order came from ye Counsell-table. But ye issue was that after a months imprisonmente, ye greatest parte were dismiste & sent to ye places from whence they came; but 7 of ye principall were still kepte in prison, and bound over to ye Assises.

“The nexte spring after, ther was another attempte made by some of these & others, to get over to another place. And it so fell out, that they light of a Dutchman at Hull, having a ship of his owne belonging to Zealand: they made agreemente with him, & acquainted him with their condition, hoping to find more faithfullness in him, then in ye former of their owne nation. He had them not fear, for he would doe well enough. He was by appointment to take them in betweene Grimsbe & Hull, wher was a large comone a good way distante from any towne. Now against the prefixed time the women & children with ye goods, were sent to ye place in a small barke, which they had hired for yt end: and ye men were to meete them by land. But it so fell out, that they were ther a day before ye shipe came, & ye sea being rough, and ye women very sicke, prevailed with ye seamen to put into a creeke hard by, wher they lay on ground at low water. The nexte morning ye shipe came, but they were fast & could not stir till aboute noone. In ye mean time ye shipe maister, perceiveing how ye matter was, sente his boate to be getting ye men aboard whom he saw ready, walking aboute ye shore. But after ye first boat full was gott aboard, & she was ready to goe for more, the mr espied a greate company, both horse & foote, with bills and gunes, and other weapons; for ye country was raised to take them. Ye Dutchman seeing yt, swore his countries oath “sacremente,” and having ye wind faire, waiged his Ancor, hoysed sayles & away. But ye poore men which were gott aboard, were in great distress for their wives & children, which they saw thus to be taken, and were left destitute of their helps; and themselves also, not having a cloath to shifte them with, more then they had on their baks, & some scarce a peney aboute them, all they had being aboard the barke. It drew tears from their eyes, and anything they had would have been given to be a shore againe; but all in vaine, ther was no remedy, they must thus sadly part. And afterward endured a fearfull storme at sea, being 14 days or more before yey arrived at their porte, in 7 whereof, they neither saw son, moone nor stars, & were driven near ye coast of Norway; the mariners themselves often despairing of life; & once with shriks & cries gave over all, as if ye ship had been foundred in ye sea & they sinking without recoverie.

“But when mans hope & helpe wholly failed ye Lords power & mercie appeared in their recoverie; for ye ship rose againe & gave ye mariners courage againe to manage her. And if modestie woud suffer me, I might declare with what fervente prayres they cried unto ye Lord in this great distres, espetially some of them, even without any great distraction, when ye water rane into their mouthes & eares; & the mainers cried out: 'We sinke! We sinke!' They cried (if not with mirakelous, yet with a great hight or degree of devine faith), 'Yet Lord, thou canst save. Yet Lord, thou canst save,' with shuch other expressions as I will forbear. Upon which ye ship did not only recover, but shortly after ye violence of ye storme begane to abate, & ye Lord filled their afflicted minds with shuch comforts as every one canot understand, and in ye end brought them to their desired Haven, wher ye people came flocking admiring their deliverance, the storme having ben so long & sore, in which much hurt had been don, as ye master's friends related unto him in their congrattulations.

"But to returne to ye others wher we left. The rest of ye men yt were in greatest danger, made shift to escape away before ye troope could surprise them; those only stayed yt best might, to be assistante unto ye women. But pitifull it was to see ye heavie case of these poore women in this distres, what weeping & crying on every side, some for their husbands, that were carried away in ye ship as is before related; others not knowing what should become of them & their little ones; others againe melted in teares, seeing their poore little ones hanging aboute them, crying for feare, and quaking with could.

"Being thus apprehended, they were hurried from one place to another, and from one justice to another, till in ye ende they knew not what to doe with them; for to imprison so many women & innocent children for no other cause (many of them) but that they must goe with their husbands, seemed to be unreasonable and all would crie out of them; and to send them home againe was as difficult, for they aleged, as ye trueth was, they had no homes to goe to, for they had either sould, or otherwise disposed of their houses & livings. To be shorte, after they had been thus turmoyled a good while, and conveyed from one constable to another, they were glad to be ridd of them in ye end upon any termes; for all were wearied & tired with them. Though in ye meantime they (poore soules) indured miserie enough; and thus in ye end necessitie forste a way for them."

Impressed that these judicial proceedings might have been held in local courts, of record, I have made effort to discover some transcript which would disclose names of those detained. After failures to make such discovery, by correspondence at Scrooby and Nottingham, I received encouragement in reading "Old England," by Professor Hoppin, of Yale, who had visited Scrooby, and wrote in relation to the village: "As the judicial books of the neighborhood still show, many members of this congregation refused to obey the oppressive ecclesiastical laws of Elizabeth, and of James I, even at the cost of fine and imprisonment." I felt that in this I had a clew to my quest. On my request of Professor H. for means of access to such "judicial books" he could not recall the source of his information. A suggestion of "Neal's Puritans," as the probable source, induced me to pursue the five volumes, but no reference to such court dockets was made by the author.

Knowing that the Plymouth Society of Massachusetts has an immense accumulation of literary and historical matter relating to the initial efforts of the Separatists, who subsequently became the Pilgrims to the shores of New England, I sought information from the Archivist of that organization. After examination he stated that he knew of no such judicial dockets or records, nor names of the Scrooby immigrants.

It is known that when the Scrooby Independents, under the lead of Rev. John Robinson and Elder William Brewster, left their home in a body in 1608, they went first to Amsterdam, in Holland. While there, as sojourners, they determined to remove to the city of Leyden, which contained, perhaps, one hundred thousand inhabitants; a city of religious indulgence, and known as a seat of learning; the University, established in 1574, being regarded as in advance of most scholastic institutions on the continent.

To exemplify the character of these home-seekers, I will quote from an interesting paper by the Rev. Henry M. Dexter, D. D., who visited the ancient city some years ago, and made search for footprints of his ancestors, in which he was successful. He wrote: "In one of the stately folios, still in their place on the shelves of the archives in the Stad-huis of Leyden, we find the entry of which the following is a translation, viz.:

"To the Honorable, the Burgomasters and Court, of the city of Leyden: With due submission and respect, Jan Robarthse, minister of the Divine Word, and some of the members of the Christian Reformed Religion, born in the Kingdom of Great Britain, represent that they are desirous of coming to live in the city by the first of May next, and to have the freedom thereof in carrying on their trades, without being a burden in the least to any one. They, therefore, address themselves to your Honors, humbly praying that your Honors will be pleased to grant them free consent to betake themselves as aforesaid."

This appeal is without date or signatures, but the action of the authorities upon it, written in the margin, bears date, and is as follows:

“The Court, in making a disposition of the present memorial, declare that they refuse no honest persons free ingress to come and have their residence in this city, provided that such persons behave themselves and submit to the laws and ordinances; and therefore the coming of the memorialists will be agreeable and welcome. Thus done in their session at the Council House, 12 February, 1609.

“(Signed) I. VAN HOUT.”

The removal was accomplished and the hospitality enjoyed; as promised, however, they were industrious and self-reliant. An area of land having been secured, they built houses and occupied them. There were hat-makers, fustian-makers, masons, clock-makers, linen-workers and printers, as well, carpenters, coopers, wool-carders and weavers.

Elder Brewster, who was educated at Cambridge, became a teacher of Latin, etc., so that “many gentlemen, both Danes and Germans resorted to him, some of them being great men’s sons.”

As to Reverend Roberthse (Robinson), he established his church, in which his people enjoyed religious liberties. He even became a disputant upon biblical questions and a teacher in the great University, enjoying its emoluments, which included in those days a generous supply of beer and wine, exempt from municipal and State duties.

Dr. Dexter stated that these English Independents became merged in citizenship; that their names appear upon various town records as far back as 1610. He mentions carefully kept marriage proclamation records, also registries of citizens paying poll-tax, the Book of Citizens, where the names of William Bradford, Isaac Allerton and others appear, as having been admitted to citizenship; the Registries of Deeds and Securities, the books of the University, Registries of Burials, etc.

There were accessions to the congregation and community until they numbered two hundred and fifty to three hundred souls. Feeling that their future was circumscribed by the municipal control of those who spoke an idiom foreign to theirs, with customs and practices at variance, they felt unsettled, and the discontent resolved itself into a determination that a minority of their household of faith should emigrate to some country where they might lay “some good foundation for ye propagating & advancing ye gospel of ye Kingdom of Christ in those remote parts of ye world.”

Again referring to Governor Bradford's history, I copy: "The place they had thoughts on was some of those vast & unpeopled countries of America, which are fruitfull & fitt for habitation, being devoyed of all civill inhabitants, wher ther are only salvage & brutish men, which range up and downe, little otherwise than ye wild beasts. This proposition being made publike and coming to ye scanning of all, it raised many variable opinions amongst men, and caused many fears & doubts amongst themselves. Some, from their reasons & hops conceived, laboured to stirr up & encourage the rest to undertake & prosecute ye same; others, againe, out of their fears, objected against it & sought to divert from it, aledging many things, and that it was a great designe, and subjecte to many unconceivable perills & dangers; as, besides the casulties of ye seas; the length of ye voiage was such as ye weake bodys of women and other persons worne out with age & traville could never be able to endure. And yet if they should, the miseries of ye land which they should be exposed to, would be hard to be borne; and lickly, some or all of them together, to consume & utterly to ruinate them. For ther they should be liable to famine, & nakedness & ye wante, in a manner, of all things. The chang of aire, diate & drinking of water, would infecte their bodies with sore sickness and greevous diseases.

"And also those which should escape or overcome these difficulties, should yett be in continuall danger of ye salvage people who are cruell, barbarous & most trecherous, being most furious in their rage & merciles wher they overcome; not being contente only to kill & take away life, but delight to tormente men in ye most bloodie manner that may be; fleaing some alive with ye shells of fishes, cutting of ye members & joynts of others by pees meale, & broiling on ye coles, eate ye collops of their flesh in their sight whilst they live; with other cruelties horrible to relate. It was further objected, that it would require greater sumes of money to furnish such a voiage, and to fitt them with necessaries, then their consumed estats would amounte too, and yett they must as well looke to be seconded with supplies, as presently to be transported. Also many presidents of ill designs were easie to be found and not forgotten to be aledged; besids their owne experience, in their former troubles & hardships in their removall into Holand, and how hard a thing it was for them to live in that strange place, though it was a neighbour countrie & a civill and rich comone wealth.

"It was answered, that all great & honourable actions are accompanied with great difficulties & must be both enterprised and overcome with answerable courages. Their calling was lawfull & urgente; and therefore they might expecte ye blessing of God in their proceeding.

“And first after humble praiers unto God for his direction & assistance, & a generall conference held hear aboute, they consulted what perticular place to pitch upon & prepare for. Some (& none of ye meanest) had thoughts & were earnest for Guiana, or some of those fertill places in those hott climats; others were for some parts of Virginia, wher ye English had all ready made enterence & beginning. Those for Guiana alledged yt ye countrie was rich, fruitfull & blessed with a perpetuall spring, & a flourishing greenes, so it must needs make ye inhabitants rich, seing less provisions of clothing & other things would serve, then in more coulder & less fruitfull countries.”

They held a “sollemne meeting and a day of humilliation to seeke ye Lord for his direction. After which they concluded both what number and what persons should prepare themselves to goe ye first; for all yt were willing to have gone could not gett ready, had ther been means to has transported them all together. Those that staid, being ye greater number, required ye pastor to stay with them; and indeede for other reasons he could not then well goe, & so it was ye more easilie yeilded unto. The other then desired ye elder, Mr. Brewster, to goe with them, which was also condescended unto. It was also agreed on by mutual consente and covenante that those that went should be an absolute church of themselves, as well as those yt staid. It was allso promised to those yt wente first by ye body of ye rest, that if ye Lord gave them life & meas & opporitutie, they would come to them as soone as they could.”

These preparations were concluded in the year 1620, after twelve years of temporary dwelling in Holland. Their inquiry as to the most desirable location for their future home, was conducted with great care. They even sent two of their number back to England to investigate offers made to them from there, but which appeared tinctured with selfish designs by such persons as would profit by their necessities.

It is known that one hundred and two of the congregation, under the lead of Elder Brewster, Miles Standish and William Bradford—who subsequently became Governor of the Plymouth Colony—after several adverse efforts, set sail in the Mayflower at Delt Haven (fourteen miles from Leyden), to which place the congregation had accompanied them, and they became the Pilgrim Settlers of New England in America.

As was determined among them, the majority remained at Leyden "to keep a place for the outgoers should they be discomfited and driven back." Subsequently some of the flock followed their friends to the New World, but most of them remained in their adopted dwelling place: though it is written of them that they finally dissolved their community. Dr. Dexter states: "By the year 1655, while William Bradford and Miles Standish still lingered in their last years at Plymouth, all traces of the presence of the Scrooby men disappear from Leyden records and history, and its people began to forget that such exiles for conscience sake had ever walked their streets and shared their industries."

That this relation, though apparently irrelevant, is a revelation of a part of our history, I am fully convinced, and here we find the circumstance from which emanated the tradition that Rosier Levering was a religious refugee. He, or his father, measuring the span of time, possibly both, were of the Purists or Separatists of England, not of the Huguenots of France.

It is our good fortune, that the long submerged stream of lineal descent, reappeared in Teutonic soil, as here,—differing from England—it was the custom of the country, in the exercise of both, political and ecclesiastical government, to record annals and events.

Hallam wrote of Holland: "At the end of the sixteenth century, and for many years afterwards, it was pre-eminently, the literary country of Europe," and Douglas Campbell says of Holland, at the same period, that it was two centuries in advance of England in local government, maintaining records, etc.

Because of these advanced customs we have availed of the records, and have an unbroken genealogical chain to this time.

Observe the chronology of events: The English Separatists were in Leyden 1609 to 1620, when a minority left for America. Of the majority remaining, Dr. Dexter states that they had scattered from Leyden by the year 1655. Now, Wigard Levering, the son of Rosier, was born in Gemen, in 1649.

Wigard, in his family register, in his still preserved Bible, written after his immigration to America, in 1685, stated:

"I, Wigard Levering, was born in Germany, in the principality of Westphalia, in the district of Munster, and town of Gemen. My father's name was Rosier Levering. My mother's name was Elizabeth Van de Walle, who was born in Wesei. In the twenty-third year of my age I was married to my beloved wife Magdalena Boker, who was also born at Leyden."

These statements show relation to Leyden, contemporaneously, with the events I have enumerated. Van de Walle was a family name in Leyden. Wesel, the home of Elizabeth at the time of her marriage with Rosier, was close upon the frontier line, while Gemen is but six miles away. A copy of record following will show, that notwithstanding the birth of Magdalena occurred in Leyden (say 1650), her residence, at time of her marriage to Wigard, was in Essen,* a few miles north from Gemen. In this locality, perhaps at Leyden, Rosier probably was born. It is not likely that he was forty years senior to his son Wigard. It is more likely that he was born even later than the removal of the minority of the Puritans to America.

The English propensity to roam was made manifest in him; also in his sons, as we shall learn from his family register that Wigard removed from Gemen to Mulheim, after the birth of his first child, and in a few years later, with his family, to America, his brother Gerhard, unmarried, accompanying him.

I have related, in other writing, which appears in a family publication, of my efforts, by correspondence, during the years 1882-4, to learn the nativity of Rosier. I had until then (1891) accepted the tradition recognized by Mr. H. G. Jones, and strengthened by my linguistic friend and correspondent, Zurcher, then in Switzerland, but a study of the matter led me to seek other foundation than intangible statements. I have given the result of it.

As to the discovered records of family genealogy. There was no statutory requirement that pastors and priests should make record of marriages, births, deaths, etc., among the people of their respective charges. It was, however, a practice among them. When made, their records might be regarded as private property, and were so treated in the long ago. This became apparent as the searchers employed by me in 1882-4, reported no records on file in their respective places, so old as I inquired for. For instance, Mulheim—from which place I had hopes, as the once residence of Wigard—reported no records beyond 1713. From Essen, the home of Magdalena at the time of her marriage, no records beyond 1605. A similar reply was received from Gemen, where my expectations had centered. But, months after, pastor Clemen, who had searched perseveringly, learned of and reported that a preacher who had left the parish many years before, had carried a volume away which was older than any in his archives.

* The present place of manufacture of the celebrated Krupp guns.

I have stated in the publication referred to, my urging to recover the lost volume, and the success. The thanks of the church were mine for restoring it to them.

As I may not introduce the information gleaned from that lost and found volume, into the genealogical part of this work, I will place it here. The abstract, consisting of nineteen items, with foot notes, was made by the proper officer or custodian of records of the church at Gemen, to which the family belonged, certified under his signature and seal. It is as follows :

“In the church books of the Evangelical Parish at Gemen, Germany, are found the following inscriptions concerning the family Levering or Lefering. Latin records interpreted.

PRESBYTERY

The godmothers Alschen Grambtings and Elsche Scherenbergs.
The child's name, (Continuation is failing.—Abstracter.)

(It is a provoking circumstance that the only item of recorded evidence found, that Rosier, himself, sent a child to baptism, should have the name obliterated. It could not have been Wigard, as he was married twelve years later "in the twenty-third (?) year of his age." It could have been Gerhard, and he have attained twenty-two and a half years of age when he emigrated with Wigard in 1685. It may have been William, or, more probably, one of the daughters, Alche or Elizabeth, as godmothers only, appeared.

In all other cases reported, the statement, whether son or daughter, is noted. It is observable that no wife or mother is mentioned. As this extract is of a record made many years prior to others here copied, it may be that the formula then used differed from later years.—JOHN LEVERING.)

OLD CASTLE AT GEMEN, GERMANY. ABOUT 300 YEARS OLD.

Levering, born Van de Walle, because Anna de Walle, with Anna Sophia Bockers and Erndt Rosier, were godmothers and godfather by Wigard Rosier.

“In every case there must have existed a kindred relation between the burgomaster Berndt Nilandt, such as there is with brothers and sisters-in-law, and the family Levering, because he (No. 10) was assisting as godfather by the baptism of the child Rosier Gerhard.

“It is to be remembered that the register of baptisms of the Evangelical Parish here—Gemen—begins with the year 1661, and reaches till 1700, and from that time were failing until 1734. Up from this year until now they are complete.”

It is noticeable that Churchmaster Luhl names “five brothers and sisters” as comprising the offspring of Rosier Levering. He omits Gerhard, obviously, because no item of record was found in which he was an actor or subject. In item 10 of the abstracts, William appears to have named a son for Gerhard (three years after he had left for America) and his father, as ROSIER GERHARDT, and in No. 8, Berndt Nilant names a son GERHARD WILLIAM.

From the foregoing records we may safely infer that the tradition which placed father Rosier within the pale of the Baptist Church is not corroborated. By item No. 17, we learn, that “Rosier sent his child to be baptised,” which allied him to the “Presbytery of the Evangelical Church,” whose archives contain the record.

It is unfortunate that item 17, of “Anno. 1662. October 6,” omits the name of the mother of the child. In all others the “maiden” name is preserved and noted. It would have been particularly gratifying to have found the name of Elizabeth Van de Walle added, as confirmatory of Rosier’s identity.

There appears an indiscriminate use of names, and of spelling names. In one baptismal service the daughter of Rosier appears as Alche Levering, in another, as Alche Rosier, without adding the family surname. Very much the same practice as to parent-Christian names becoming surnames for the children, as still obtains in the “Land of the Midnight Sun.”

It is noticed that persons of official distinction and of high social standing were participants in the baptismal ceremonies. The Lord Herman Otto, who is named in one extract, was doubtless, lord of the manor, at the date noted, Gemen being the official seat of this local governor. The manor house which was then occupied, still stands. See illustration of it. It appears a fortified structure, enclosed within high walls, loop-holed for small arms; ornamented by turrets and battlements, and is surrounded by a moat for defense against assault. This is spanned by a drawbridge, movable at pleasure, as in modern, military forts.

I was surprised during my correspondence, to learn that the old family homestead, where Wigard, Gerhard and others named, were born, is still standing. A quaint, old, stone structure, with characteristic Dutch gables. Of course, I caused a photograph of this, also, to be taken. A cut is shown.

This home place suggested ownership, and the possible existence of conveyance deeds, or a record of them. After employing the custodian of such public records to make a careful examination of his volumes, "between the years 1640 and 1675," and learning his charge for the service, which I advanced, he informed me officially, that nothing could be found relating to Rosier Levering, as he had no title records earlier than 1793 in his office—more than a century after the period which he had agreed to scan.

I have mentioned the genealogical register contained in the family Bible of Wigard Levering. As a portion relates to history made in Germany, in the births of several children, and as there are serious discrepancies between some dates given, as compared with the items copied from the original records at Gemen, I will insert it here.

"GEBURTH REGISTER MEINER WIGARD LEVERING KINDER," i. e., FAMILY REGISTER OF WIGARD LEVERING.

CHILDREN.

I, WIGARD LEVERING, was born in Germany, in the Principality of Westphalia, in the District of Munster, and town of Gemen. My father's name was Rosier Levering, and my mother's maiden name was Elizabeth Van de Walle, who was born in Wesel. In the twenty-third year of my age, I, Wigard Levering, was married to my beloved wife, Magdalena Boker. Her father's name was William Boker, and her mother's maiden name was Sidonia Williams Braviers, of the city of Leyden, in Holland. The above said Magdalena, my wife, was also born in Leyden, and God hath blessed us with the following children, to wit :

The first born, JOANNA SOPHIA, born in Gemen, in the year of our Lord 1672, in March, and died in the third week.

The second, ANNA CATHARINE, born in Mulheim on the Rhur, in March, 1673.

The third, MARIA ELIZABETH, born in July, 1676, and died in the eighteenth week of her age.

The fourth, WILLIAM LEVERING, was born the 4th day of May, 1677.

The fifth, AMELIA ANNA SOPHIA, was born in the middle of July, 1682.

The sixth, ANNA SIBELLA, was born in the middle of September, 1684.

The above named children were all born in Mulheim on the Rhur, in Germany, and the following six children were born in North America, in the province of Pennsylvania :

The seventh, HERMAN, was born the 18th of November, 1686, and died in the fourth year of his age, in May.

The eighth, ELIZABETH, born the 7th of January, 1689, and died in the fourteenth year of her age, in September.

The ninth, SIDONIA, born the 23d of April, 1691.

The tenth, JACOB LEVERING, born the 21st of January, 1693.

The eleventh, MAGDALENA, born the 13th of January, 1695, and died in the third week of her age.

The twelfth, MAGDALENA, born the 4th of June, 1696.

The last, after the perfect number of twelve, was : untimely birth.

God, who is the father of all that are called children, in heaven and on earth, have mercy on my children who are still in the land of the living, that they, through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, may be born again, and registered with their children in heaven ; that they, after they are taken from this vain world, the parents with the children, and the children with the parents, may rejoice before God in a blessed and happy eternity. Amen."

It is noticed in the copies of original church records at Gemen, as heretofore given, that but two items relate to Wigard, viz.: The proclamation of his marriage, March 22, 1674, and the birth of Anna Sophia, his first child, on January 16, 1675. This, because of his removal to Mulheim soon after.

Comparing these dates with those given in his family register, discloses the discrepancies before named. Wigard states the birth date of Anna Sophia as March, 1672. That, we see, was two years before his marriage. If original records of other children following Anna Sophia existed and could be availed of, similar errors would, doubtless, be observable.

The contract entered into between Wigard Levering and the agents of the Frankfort Company, dated March 20, 1685, to transport himself and family to America, is, I believe, the most reliable written testimony, as to ages of the respective members of the family, existing. In that Wigard states his own age as "old 36 or 37 years," and of his wife Magdalena "36 years," and gives the names and ages of the children, viz.: Anna Catharine, 9 years; William, 5; Amelia, 2¹/₂, and Sibella, ¹/₂.

As other parents, they knew the ages of their several young children, and they—especially the mother—could answer without hesitation.

Now, if the birth date of Anna Catharine was stated correctly in the family register in the Bible, she would have been over 12 years old at the date of the shipping contract, and William would have been nearly 8, instead of 5 years old.

The fact is, the contract statements are correct. Wigard and Magdalena were married in March, 1674. Anna Catharine was born in March, 1676 (instead of 1673), and was just 9 when she came to America, and William was not born until 1679. As to Amelia and Sibella, the birth years appear correctly stated.

The first child, Anna Sophia, born in January, 1675 (not in March, 1672), sustains the characteristic ante-nuptial charm accorded to her mother, as asserted by the chronicler of her marriage alliance.

Further than this: Wigard asserted that he was married "in the 23d year of his age." There being no doubt of his having attained 36 years when he came to America fixes his birth year 1649, and he was in his 25th year when married in 1674. Can these erroneous dates, as stated, manifestly by Wigard himself, be explained? Easily, I believe!

An examination of the family register in the Bible, which is written in the German language, shows by the consecutive listing of names, and expressions relating to each, that it was written after all the children were born, and after the eighth child had attained 14 years of age and died, say, in 1703.

The volume is a very large folio, bound with leather, has metal clasps; was printed in Germany, in the year 1693—eight years after Wigard, with his family, and his brother Gerhard, came to America.

Another telltale feature is disclosed in the chirography of the register. It is written in the same "hand," with the same pen and ink, and manifestly all, including the invocation, written at the same time—the kindly service of some friend, as Wigard could not write.

WIGARD LEVERING'S FAMILY BIBLE.

In Simpson's "Lives of Eminent Philadelphians" the statement is made: "Christopher Sower (originally Saur) came to Germantown in 1724. In the spring of 1725 he removed to Lancaster County, but returned to Germantown in 1731. He kept up correspondence with friends in Germany; represented the destitute condition of the people in respect to books, especially Bibles. Large numbers were consigned to him to be sold at cost," etc. Here was the probable opportunity for Wigard to purchase a Bible, which he took advantage of, but not until he was over eighty years of age.

When some good penman undertook the service of amanuensis for Wigard, he, of course, had to rely upon the data the old pioneer furnished, and failing memory was chargeable with the errors made.

Rosier Levering had other sons than John Wigard and Gerhard, as is shown by the copies of church records at Gemen, where the family increase for a time, appeared to maintain their domicil, and where they have been reduced, as already shown, to a single family, which also appears to be in natural process of decay.

A writer, signing himself John Roehl, addressed me in the year 1883, from Gemen, saying that he was the son of a sister to Franz Levering, which the latter, in subsequent correspondence, neither affirmed or denied.

In this connection I may introduce a letter furnished me by Hon. E. Francis Riggs, of Washington, D. C., which was written to his father, George Washington Riggs, by a friend in Germany, who signs it "C. K." It is without date, but was penned, inferentially, about the year 1860. It bears evidence of the great interest manifested by Mr. Riggs in his maternal, or Levering, ancestry. It reads:

"It appears that the family name of Levering has gradually changed in this country, first into Leverink and further to Lefferinck, of which latter name there are survivors now to be found in the vicinity of Munster and Gemen. On applying to one of them, a boot maker, Lefferinck, at Munster, who is an intelligent man, I became satisfied that the surviving Leffericks are identical with and originate from the former Leverincks, while I have not been able to trace the name of Levering in any of the town records or church registers as far back as 1700.*

"The oldest Leverinck I have been able to discover in my searches of parish records is August Joseph Leverinck, who has probably immigrated into Munster from Gemen or Mulheim, as his nativity is not recorded. He was a member of the Protestant Church of St. Ægidius, at Munster (still existing), and a distinguished officer in the seven years' war—1756-63—under King Frederick the Great of Prussia, against the Empress of Austria. Of him I found recorded in the records of St. Ægidius Church the following children:

"Maximilian Joseph Maria, son of August Joseph Leverinck and Clara Elizabeth Scheffer, born 1761, December 21, and christened same day. Witnesses, Max Franz Adler and Maria Theresia Gerbaulet.

"Catharina Gertrud Ludovica, daughter of August Joseph Leverinck and Clara Elizabeth Scheffer, born 1769, September 12, christened September 19. Witnesses, Catharina Gertrud Schlott and Bernard Ludwig Lammerdinck, all of the city of Munster.

"There is an old family portrait in the possession of the boot-maker, representing an officer in the Prussian army, in the costume of the seven years' war,—just one hundred years ago,—which, no doubt, represents the identical August Joseph Leverinck. This led me to the belief, that the present Lefferincks are offsprings of the former Leverincks, and very probably, therefore Leverings.

"I shall endeavor to find out from the records of Mulheim,—where Wigard Levering resided in 1676, and had several children,—how the name is spelled there, [No records of that period are there. J. L.] and if any of his sons remained behind in Germany, [No.] when Wigard emigrated to America, who might have been the grand father of August Joseph. Or it might be, that Rosier Levering, father of Wigard and Gerhard, had other sons besides these, and that one of them was the ancestor of August Joseph. If you can find any mention to this effect in your Genealogical Book, please communicate it to me, and it will facilitate searches. After I become convinced of the identity of the Leverincks, with the ancestors of the Leverings in America, I shall procure photographic views of St. Ægidius Church, etc., and of the portrait of August Joseph."

*The church records at Gemen did not date earlier than 1734, until I caused an older volume to be recovered to their archives, nor are there earlier records at Mulheim than 1713, as I learned in 1883.

I am informed that no subsequent correspondence has been found, which I regret, as Mr. "C. K." was an intelligent searcher, and he was, manifestly, on the right trail of family history.

It is noticeable in the copied items of family data from the recovered church record at Gemen, that the Levering name was already being corrupted into Leverinck, which was chargeable to the tangent of pronunciation, by a foreign tongue, under the hand of a clerk, who was a stranger to the family.

I have no doubt, that the August Joseph, written of, was a descendant of either Eberhard or William, sons of Rosier, who are frequently mentioned in the Gemen records.

I have, in further compilation of annals and history, to do with Wigard and Gerhard, only, as they alone, came to America.

William Penn, of English parentage, who, said Douglas Campbell, was "half a dutchman," had acquired his landed estates on the sylvan shores of the Delaware, by patent in 1681, comprising the territory which is now the State of Pennsylvania, and they, Wigard and Gerhard Levering, in common with the civilized world, had heard of it.

Penn was an enterprising man. In his efforts to realize the most from the domain, so patented to him by Charles II, of England, he traveled through parts of Holland and Germany, among the most enterprising of their people, as, he knew of them. He even circulated advertisements to induce immigration to his new country. A statement made by Penn in his autobiography, shows, that he visited Wesel and Cleves, also Mulheim, while Wigard Levering was a resident there. We can readily understand that Wigard was an interested listener to the inducements held out, to become a denizen of the far away new settlements, and most likely, the younger brother, Gerhard, shared in the interest.

Cassel wrote of those people: "The seed from the sowings of Menno, wafted across from the Rhine to the Thames, were planted on English soil by George Fox, and were brought by William Penn to Pennsylvania, where no man has ever been molested, because of his religious convictions. Three times did William Penn, impelled by a sympathetic nearness of faith and methods, go over to Holland and Germany to hold friendly converse and discussions with these people, and it was very fitting that when he established his province in the wilds of America, he should urge and prevail with them to cross the ocean to him. The settlement of Germantown had a higher import than that thirteen families found new homes, and that a new burgh, destined to fame though it was, was built on the face of the earth. It has a wider significance even than that; here was the beginning of that immense emigration of Germans, who have since flocked to these shores."

There appears to be an additional, probably a paramount inducement for the immigration of the two brothers, in that their uncle—as I believe he was—Jacob Van de Walle, was a prominent shareholder in the landed estates under Penn. This, at least, appears the influence which led them to settle at Germantown.

An old map of the vicinity of Philadelphia shows a large area designated "Germantown—Jacob Van de Walle and Company." This company, formed in Germany, was called "The Frankfort Company."

In a history of the Mennonites, by Daniel K. Cassel, of Germantown, the author stated: "In November, 1682, we find the earliest reference to the enterprise which resulted in the formation of the Frankfort Company. At that date Pastorius heard of it for the first time, and he, as agent, bought the lands when in London, between the 8th of May and the 6th of June, 1683. (See Pastorius MSS. in the Hist. Soc. of Penn.) The eight original purchasers were Jacob Van de Walle, Dr. Johan Jacob Schultz, Johann Wilhelm Uberfeldt, Daniel Behagel, and four others named. Before November 12, 1683—on which day, in the language of the Manatawny patent, they formed themselves into a company—the last four had withdrawn, and their interest taken by Francis Daniel Pastorius and six others named. Up to the 8th of June, 1683, they seem to have bought fifteen thousand acres," and Mr. Cassel added: "Of the eleven members, five of them lived at Frankfort, two in Wesel, &c., no one of its members except Pastorius ever came to Pennsylvania."

Of the "two in Wesel," Jacob Van de Walle was, doubtless, one of them.

The Francis Daniel Pastorius named, was a learned man, belonging to a family of prominence and influence in Germany. As he subsequently became collaterally related to the Levering family, he will be better introduced in place. He was a friend and co-worker with Penn in colonizing the newly acquired domain. He organized the Frankfort Company, to induce emigration and sell lands to settlers. In August, 1683, he arrived in Philadelphia in the ship America, with the pioneer band, from Frankfort-on-the-Main, and on October 12th, following, he used the little band, which consisted of thirteen men, with their families, thirty-three persons in all, in founding Germantown, under the name of German Township, which it retained for more than one hundred years.

The recent writer of an historical account of this settlement stated: "These colonists inspired fresh accessions to their ranks, and, in 1684-5, numbers of wealthy and influential emigrants arrived from various parts of Germany. The first German emigrants were few in numbers, but they were an energetic, industrious and persevering people. They were Christians, and being without churches they united with the Quakers and worshipped with them," adding: "Pennsylvania owes much to her German sons and daughters for her religious liberty, her agricultural wealth and her present rank among the sisterhood of States."

Relevant to this subject, I again quote Mr. Cassel: "The Mennonites held their first religious service in the house of Tonis Kunders (afterwards called Conrad, and later Cunard), in 1683. From that time the Mennonites date their organization. Some historians call them the German Friends. As soon as the (English) Friends settled in Germantown, they frequently worshipped together, until in 1705, the Friends, or Quakers, built a meeting house of their own, but the Mennonites continued worshipping in private houses until the year 1708, when they built their first meeting house. The Dunkards came to Germantown in 1719."

Wigard and Gerhard Levering were of the "fresh accessions to the ranks in 1684-5," they having arrived before the month of August, 1685.

As has been stated, the Frankfort Company was engaged in the transportation of persons desiring to remove to their colony. The written contract entered into by Wigard Levering with the local agents at Wesel, Dr. Thomas Van Wylick and Johannes Le Brun, for transportation of himself and family to Philadelphia, dated 20th of March, 1685, is still preserved. It was possessed by Mr. H. G. Jones, and among the papers willed by him to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. I have seen it. The instrument stipulates that "We, the subscribers, do acknowledge and confess by these Presents, that we have contracted and agreed together, that Doctor Thomas Van Wylick and Johannes Le Brun, in behalf of the Pennsylvania Company, in which they, and other friends of Frankfort and other parts, are engaged, to except or receive me, Wigard Levering, old 36 or 37 years, and Magdalena Boeckers, old 36 years, and four children, Anna Catharine, William, Amelia, and Sibella, respectively $\frac{1}{2}$, $2\frac{1}{2}$, 5 and 9 years, to and for the service of the aforementioned Company, to transport by shipping out of Holland or England, to Pennsylvania, upon their cost," etc. On arrival in Pennsylvania, they agreed to report themselves to Francis Daniel Pastorius, who was general agent for the company.

This indicates that, at the time of its execution, Gerhard had not determined to emigrate, as there is written upon the margin of the instrument an agreement to include "the Contractor's brother, Gerhard Levering." It is regretted that his age was not given, as were specifically noted of the others. We have no data relating to Gerhard's age, nor is he mentioned, except incidentally in the German records. I believe him to have been the youngest brother in the family.

The next documentary evidence of the brothers is contained in a recorded deed, executed in August, 1685. As stated by Mr. Jones, "On the tenth of that month and year, Francis Daniel Pastorius, as the attorney of Jacob Van de Walle and others, forming the Frankford Company, conveyed to Wigard Levering a lot in Germantown containing fifty acres of land. The deed is in the German language, and closes as follows: 'So done in Germantown, on the 10th day of the 6th month (August), in the year of Christ 1685, in the sixteenth year of the reign of King James the Second of England, and in the fifth year of the reign of William Penn.'"*

Gerhard Levering also purchased a like area of land.

Cassel, already named, relates as to the laying out and disposal of lands to the new settlers, viz.: "The town lots numbered 55, and were divided into 27½ on each side of the main road (now Germantown Avenue). The original settlers cast lots for the ground in the care of Francis Daniel Pastorius in Philadelphia.† Immediately after the division they began to dig cellars and build the huts in which, not without much hardship, they spent the following winter."

This relates to the first emigrant settlers. Cassel furnishes a list of the owners of these lots, as held in 1689, and of the owners of the same twenty-five years later, say 1714, by which it appears that lot numbered 10, on the "east side of the main road," was acquired (by "lot" in 1683) by Dirk Kolk, who transferred to WIGGERT Levering (no date), and that James Delaplaine owned the lot in 1714. The lists show also that Gerhard Levering owned lot 12 in 1689, and that he conveyed to Henry Sellen, who sold to John Doeden before 1714.

* There appears error in relating the regnal years of James II, also of William Penn, as the reign of the former commenced on the death of Charles II, February 6, 1685, and the patent of title to Penn was made March 24, 1681.

† Many of the first dwellers of the city, for want of means and building facilities, lived in underground excavations, on the sloping banks along the river Delaware, until they could afford better shelter.

These lots were, apparently, allotted to the persons listed, and by them transferred to others without actual deeds of conveyance, as I have already shown that Agent Pastorius executed a deed in favor of Wigart Levering on August 10, 1685, covering the same lot 10, and in existing records it is shown further that in 1693, the 8th day of the 6th month (August), "Francis Daniel Pastorius, as attorney, etc., delivered unto Wigart Levering a deed of enfeoffment, containing 50 acres in Germantown," and that "Wigart Levering delivered unto James de la Plaine a deed of sale, containing the now mentioned 50 acres in Germantown," which had been previously bargained to him.

This dual conveyance may be explained as confirmatory of the first transfer. The land was laid out and allotted as shown, but as a patent from William Penn was not delivered until 1689, the action of 1693 conveyed a better title than was held in 1685 by the Frankford Company.

In "Rupp's Collection of 30,000 Names of Emigrants in Pennsylvania," which has been by many regarded as a standard reference for early settlers, his first edition does not mention Wigard and Gerhard Levering, manifestly because they were not of the class listed by Rupp from shipping registers made under a special statute of the State, but in his revised edition (1876) among the "first settlers of Germantown from 1683 to 1710" appear the names of Wigard Levering and Gerhard Levering.

In this catalogue the names of all who were "naturalized by an Act of Assembly, 1708-1709," are designated, but the names of Wigard and Gerhard Levering, are not so marked, because—as shown in "Watson's Annals of Philadelphia"—they, with several others, had been naturalized "on the 7th of the 3d month, [May] 1691, by Thomas Lloyd, being Deputy Governor." The record shows: "They having solemnly promised faith and allegiance to William and Mary, and fidelity and lawful obedience to William Penn, as Proprietary, it is declared and granted to them to be henceforth, Freemen in Law," etc.

Both Wigard Levering and Gerhard, were now entitled to be freeholders, as well as free men, and in this they exercised their rights, as Wigard acquired five hundred acres of land by purchase, and Gerhard bought one hundred acres, adjoining. These tracts reached from the Wissahickon Creek to the Schuylkill River, and embraced a considerable portion of Roxborough, (formerly known as Leverington) where the family name is still conspicuously used; the old "Leverington Hotel" being preserved and conducted, also “Leverington Cemetery,” so known under special charter from the State of Pennsylvania. The “Levering Grammar School” is a commanding building, erected and supported under control of the city School Board of Education.

These ownerships embraced, also, the suburban manufacturing town of Manayunk, also Wissabickon, Manatawny, and reaching down to the Falls of Schuylkill, taking in a great portion of the grand Fairmount Park, the pride of Philadelphians.

Leverington Cemetery occupies a portion of Wigard Levering’s purchase of more than two centuries ago, and is upon or near to the spot occupied by the old pioneer as a dwelling place. His remains repose in the oldest portion of this Peace Yard, set apart by himself. He is surrounded by hundreds of his posterity and the silent congregation is being increased from year to year. The grounds are well kept and are adorned with many fine monuments, conspicuous among them, an artistic soldier’s monument, a tribute to the participants in the war of the rebellion.

Horatio Gates Jones, author of “The Levering Family,” 1858, was recognized as one of the owners of the cemetery grounds in the State charter mentioned; he, and his brothers and sister, having inherited the possession from their mother Deborah⁶, daughter of Nathan⁵ Levering, in line from Wigard.

As these lands and matters in connection thereto, written of, covered the place of Mr. Jones’ birth, and of his whole life, I will let him tell the story of the pioneer advancements, experiences and achievements, by extracting from his publication, as follows:

“How long Wigard Levering remained in Germantown can not now be ascertained with certainty, but it is probable that he removed to Roxborough in 1691 or 1692, as, on the 29th of February, 1691, he bought from Thomas Hill, of the City of Philadelphia, Merchant, and Rachel, his wife, for the sum of sixty-eight pounds, a tract of two hundred acres of land situated in Roxborough. In this deed he is designated as “Weekhard Libering of Germantown.” The land is described as follows:

“All that tract of land situate, lying and being upon Schoolkill, “beginning att a corner marked Hickory tree, thence by the lands “of John Jennet five hundred and thirty perches, east, North East “to a post for Corner standing on the East side of Wischikon Creek. “Thence by the lands of Germantowne township North west and by “North, Seaventy perches to a post standing by a large White Oak “markt for another Corner; thence, by the land of Mary Fincher, “West South West, five hundred and fifteen perches to a White

“Oak standing by the Schoolkill; thence, by the Schoolkill, the several courses thereof to the first mentioned marked Hickory tree, containing by estimation two hundred acres (little more or less). Together with a Mansion house and all other buildings, Orchards, Gardens, Apple Trees &c. &c.”

“It is highly probable that this was the period of his settlement in Roxborough, as his name does not appear in Germantown after this date.

“Well satisfied with his new position as a landed proprietor, and doubtless having an eye to the future, we find that on the 5th of July, 1697, our pioneer made another purchase of three hundred acres adjoining his former tract.

“This tract was conveyed for the sum of sixty pounds current money, by ‘Christopher Sibthorp, of Philadelphia, Brazier, and Mary his wife, late widow of Francis Fincher,’ to ‘Wickert Levering of the county of Philadelphia, Yoeman,’ and is described as follows:

“All that tract of land situate on the east side of Schoolkill, in the county aforesaid, beginning at a White Oak on the River Schoolkill; thence by the land now in the tenure of the said Wickert, east-north-east, five hundred and thirty perches to a post standing in the line of Germantown land; thence North-West and by north, by the said Germantown land, ninety one perches to another corner post; thence West South-West, by the land late of James Claypoole, five hundred and fifteen perches, to the said Schoolkill, and then down the several courses thereof to the place of beginning, containing three hundred acres of land.”

“By this latter purchase Wigard Levering became the owner of five hundred acres of land in one entire body. This had originally been patented by William Penn to Francis Fincher, by a warrant dated April 25, 1684, and confirmed to Fincher, by a Deed from Penn’s Commissioners, dated November 4, 1691.

“The residence of the Pioneer settler has, by common consent, been fixed in the valley, northwest of Roxborough Baptist Church, (former site) on the northerly side of Ridge Avenue, and nearly opposite the end of Green Lane. The original house which stood there has long since disappeared and nothing remains of it, except the lower part of the mainstack of stone chimneys.

“Mrs. Clement, of Ohio, who has treasured numerous traditions concerning her family, writes as follows: ‘I heard my uncle, Nathan Levering, say that the old stone house on the Tan Yard lot was where the family first settled. It had a large fire-place in the basement, with seats in the corner; they had some antiquated chairs, willow net back, with arms, and a curious cabinet with many drawers. I had a piece of lead for a long time, that came out of a window in my great grandfather's house, in Roxborough. The panes of glass were set in lead; there were two sashes, and they slid in a frame aside the walls.'

“It is now (1858) owned and occupied by William⁷ Levering, a great, great, great grandson of Wigard. More recently, however, it has been suggested that Wigard's residence, was in a field on the southwestern side of the Ridge Road, (now Avenue) nearly opposite the Leverington Hotel. Within the memory of the writer there was a very old stone house in that field, (the site now—1858—occupied by the dwelling of Jacob Skinkle) and it fell to decay some twenty years since. It was here that Wigard's son William³, lived and died. A lease dated February 7, 1745-6, is still in existence by which William³, leased to his son Benjamin⁴, his Plantation of about one hundred and fifty acres, reserving the dwelling house, cellar &c. for the use of said William³: during his natural life. William³ died in September 1746, and after devising, by a Will previously executed, to his son, William⁴, certain lands, described by metes and bounds, gave all the residue of his estate, to his son Benjamin⁴, and charged the same with the support of his aged father Wigard², and also of his own wife Catharine. It is well known that Benjamin⁴ inherited this land on the southwesterly side of the Ridge Road down as far as the river Schuylkill, and hence it is probable that the aged settler died at this house. The two statements may be reconciled, by supposing that Wigard as he advanced in years, removed from his first residence to the place where he subsequently died. Either spot was at that time a desirable abode, and thus surrounded by the primeval forests, and rich lands, the cultivation of which yielded him all the necessaries of life, he could be well termed a Patriarch; for, as far as the eye could reach, were the houses and lands of his children and grand children.

“But he was not destined to remain in the enjoyment of quiet for a very long time. When he made the contract with Dr. Van Wylick and John Le Brun to come to Pennsylvania he had obligated himself, both on his own account and that of his brother, to render service under the direction of Pastorius, so as to repay the Frankford Company the advances made to him and his brother. How long they remained in the employ of the company does not appear, but Wigard was soon engaged in business on his own account, and evidently regards himself as free from any liability to the company. Doubtless he was frequently dunned by Pastorius, until at last, to rid himself of so troublesome a neighbor, he resorted to the law, and, although unacquainted with our language, he succeeded, according to Pastorius' account, in getting the better of that celebrated man and the entire Frankford Company.

“The whole transaction is best explained in the following curious document, which I fortunately discovered in September, 1856, and which now (1858) appears in print for the first time.

“To the Proprietary & Gov'r of Pennsylvania & Territories thereof in Councill mett. An humble Petition of Francis Daniel Pastorius, in the behalf of the German Company, Sheweth, That whereas, the said company above 14 years ago transport Wigard Levering his wife, four children & brother into this Province and lent unto him at Wesel 16L. 4S. & further disbursed on his account for transportation of him and his family, 57L. 18S. 11d. expecting that all this sum should be deducted here of the said Wigard and his brother. He instead of deducting, sued the said Comp. as debtors to him, & to deprive me, the now Agent of the sd Company of all advice & assistance in Law, employed all the Attorneys in the Country, who pleaded that he the sd Wigard, his wife & 4 children, are not to disaccount anything for this Transportation, obtained Judgment in the last County Court against the said Compy for 32L. 16S. 10d. Now, supposing the said German Company had Intended to transport the sd Wigard his wife & children gratis or free, as I have proofs to the contrary, Yet seeing his Brother's part of the 57L. 18S. 11d. (wch he besides the aforementioned 16L. 4S. lent unto him in Germany allows to be defalkable) comes to 12L. 17S. 6d. the said Comp. cannot owe him but 29L. 16S. 10d.

“Therefore your Petitioner in behalf of the sd German Comp. humbly entreats you to grant to have the cause tried again (a thing he thinks not so unheard of as that a Plaintiff should employ all the Lawyers to impede & hinder the Defendants to get any). And to the end that a Just Cause may not suffer by my unskillfullness in pleading & notorious want or defect, to express myself sufficiently in thö English tongue to the full understanding of a Jury; May it please the Govr & his Councill to appoint a Person learned in the Law to patronize or manage the same. And as your petitioner requests these things only for Justice and Truth's sake, so (he hopes) It will tend to the preventing both of others, who being transported by the said Company's disbursmt may probably follow the steps of Wigard; as also to the allaying of dissatisfaction of several honest hearted people in Germany and especially oblige your petitioner.

On the back of the petition is the following endorsement :

“At a council held at Philadelphia die Lunoe 15th April,
1700: Present, William Penn, Pro’r. & Gov’r.

Edward Shippen,	Thomas Bedwell,
Griffith Owen,	John Hill,
David Lloyd,	Saml. Preston,
John Donaldson,	John ffenwick.

“Upon reading of the Petition in respect the Petitioner was but Agent for the German Company, who are strangers & absentees, it was the Opinion and Resolve of the Gov’r. & Council that the Petitioner & the within Wigard Levering appear before the Gov’r & Council the 24th inst. with a friend with each of them, that understands the German & Dutch Languages & to bring with them all papers & accts relating to the said difference, when the cause shall be heard extrajudicially and if the Gov’r and Council shall see cause thereafter to hear & decide it Judicially they will do so. And that the Secretary acquaint the said Daniel Pastorius, and he the said Wigard Levering herewith.

Signed by order.

“Of the merits of this celebrated case we know nothing, except what is stated in the petition and order of the Council. One thing is quite evident, that Wigard understood the value and importance of retaining gentlemen learned in the law—and to make assurance doubly sure—supposing if it was a good thing to have one lawyer, it would be better to have more, ‘he employed all the Attorneys in the Country,’ a very grave and serious offense, at least in the estimation of Pastorius. It is much to be regretted that no record of the final decision of the Governor and Council can be found.

“On the 4th of March, 1701, ‘Wichert Levering of the County of Philadelphia, Yeoman,’ sold to Peter Conrats 160 acres of his large tract of land, on the Northeast (?) side of Wissahickon Creek.

“On the 23d of March, 1703, he bought 100 acres at Summerhausen, which was part of the upper end of Germantown, adjoining Cresheim. This was conveyed to him by ‘Daniel Falckner and John Jarret, the now agents of the Frankford Company.’ This tract he sold for £60, on the 10th of October, 1706, to John Am. Wegg. In the deed he describes himself as ‘Wigard Levering, of the County of Philadelphia, Carpenter.

*This paper appears to be a copy rather than an original instrument. Watson’s Annals. First Edn. Vol. II. p. 47, says the original paper was found at Stenton, near to Germantown, the country seat of James Logan.

“At a subsequent period he sold 100 acres of the North-Western part of his plantation to John Henry Linderman, and in 1738, October 4, Wigard and his son William, styled, ‘his eldest son and heir apparent,’ confirmed the said tract to the children of John Linderman, the deed reciting that the former deed had been lost. The witnesses to this deed are Andrew Robeson and Jacob Levering.

“Wigard Levering had only two sons who reached maturity. The older son, WILLIAM, was born at Mulheim, May 4, 1677 (the year should be 1680), and the younger, JACOB, was born January 21, 1693, at Roxborough, it is supposed. These sons, no doubt, lived with their parents at the family mansion in Roxborough, until they married, and it is probable they assisted their father in his various occupations, as was customary then, and is, still, in different parts of the country. But when the father was seventy years of age, the younger son, JACOB, married, and desirous to advance the young man in life, the father conveyed to him as ‘Jacob Levering, Joiner,’ a tract of eighty-five acres of land on the Schuylkill, for the sum of £50. The deed is dated February 20, 1716-17. The grantors are described as ‘Weeckart Levering, of Roxborough township, in the County of Philadelphia, Joiner, and Magdalena, his wife.’ The witnesses to the deed were John Henry Hogeman and Garret Levering.

“The description of the land is as follows:

“A certain tract of Land scituate in the aforesd township & County, beginning at a hickory tree standing on the bank of the river Schuylkill, thence North sixty six degrees forty eight minutes East, one hundred and eleven perches and a half, by the land of Henry ffrey, to a corner stone; thence North, twenty three degrees forty-eight minutes West, one hundred perches by the land of William Levering, to a stone sett up ffor a corner; thence South, sixty-six degrees forty eight minutes West, one hundred and sixty perches and a half by the said William’s land, to a large gum tree marked ffor a corner, standing on the bank of the sd Skulkill; thence, along the sd river, South Fifty degrees East, one hundred and eleven perches to the place of beginning. Containing eighty ffive acres of land. &c. (Being part of Two Hundred acres conveyed to Weekart Levering by Thomas Hill & wife.) As also, free egress and regress to or from the hereby bargained tract through the said Weeckart and William’s other land as ffar as the Plymouth road. Provided always, the said Jacob Levering his heirs and assigns do forever allow a passage or way, through the herein purchased tract, unto the sd. William his heirs and assigns,

“so, Nevertheless that it shall be lawfull for the sd Jacob, and his “aforewritten, to fence in all said tract, leaving a gate of Barrs or “shut rails.

“I have given the grant of the ‘right of way’ in the words of the deed, as I have every reason to suppose this is the origin of the present important street known as Green Lane, whose tortuous course over the steepest hill between the Ridge Road (now Avenue) and the Schuylkill River, has given rise to many a query. Wigard lived in the house which stood opposite the end of Green Lane, on the northerly side of the Ridge, and it seems probable, at least, that the passage way was to lead from Jacob’s house, up to the Ridge, so as to enable his father to visit him, and he visit his father.

“On the first of November, 1717, Wigard conveyed to his older son, WILLIAM, all the residue of his lands that remained unsold, consisting of about one hundred and fifty-five acres. He describes himself as ‘Wichert Levering of the Township of Roxborrow, in the County of Philadelphia and Province of Pensilvania, Yeoman.’ After reciting the title, the deed states: “And the said Wichert Levering hath since sold several parcels of the said Five Hundred acres
 “of Land, Now know Ye, That the said Wichert Levering as well
 “for and in consideration of the sum of Five shillings &c. as for and “in consideration of his natural Love and Affection which he has
 “and beareth towards his said son William” &c.

He then grants William, “All and every such part and parts or “parcels of the aforesaid Five Hundred acres of Land, which now “remains unsold, and whereof the said Wichert Levering now stands
 “possessed, and invested in the lawful Right of, &c.” This deed is signed by Wigard Levering, only, which suggests the decease of his wife Magdalena, since February of the same year, when she joined in a deed to Jacob. If such is fact, she was about sixty-eight years old.

“Advanced in years, the pioneer felt that his latter days ought to be less laborious than his earlier had been, and we may imagine him as enjoying the otium cum dignitate of life, if that were possible in those times. His sons and daughters were married, and had settled around him; some on parts of his own plantation, and others in contiguous neighborhoods, which he, the patriarch, visited in turn, comforting, cheering and encouraging them in their battle with life. He made his home with his older son William, and died there.”

Wigard Levering lived to very advanced age. When his death occurred it was announced in the city papers as that of more than centenarian. The Pennsylvania Gazette of February 12, 1744-45, stated: "Last week died not far from this city Mr. Wichart Levering, aged 109 years."

Watson's Annals of Philadelphia records the event as the decease of a first settler, in February 1744 (O. S.), and gave his age as 109 years.

In the patriarch's bible—hereinbefore described—the record is made that he "departed this life February 2, 1744-45,* aged, according to his account, 107 years."

This is certainly erroneous. As has been already shown, he was aged "36 or 37 years" when he emigrated to America in 1685. Conceding the higher figure, he could not have been more than 97 years old when he died. As his family register and some additional entries in his bible were made "according to his account," it must be again charged that failing memory was responsible.

Wigard had experienced a rugged life, mainly of hardship. Contending with the "iron circumstances" which environed him, he toughened as an oak, and, doubtless, dead at the top, as an oak, he died. His contemporary, Dryden, exemplified the going out in his tribute:

"Of no distemper, of no blast he died;
But fell like autumn fruit that mellowed long,
Even wondered at, because he dropped no sooner.
Fate seemed to wind him up for four score years,
Yet freshly he ran on ten winters more,
Till, like a clock worn out with beating time,
The wheels of weary life at last stood still."

As Germantown was the birthplace of American Leverings, it is due the locality and early settlers that the coming generations shall know of what stuff they were made.

Originally they appear to have possessed broader views, religious as well as political, than the settlers of other localities, as I have already quoted from Cassel, "Here no man has ever been molested because of his religious convictions."

The Rev. Mr. Burnaby, an English divine, who visited this country nearly a century and a half ago, remarked "of the northern colonies in general, they are composed of people of different religions and different languages. In Pennsylvania was found the most enterprising people on the continent."

* It is noticeable that apparently conflicting, or dual years, are stated in connection with Wigard's death, also, in former chronological notings, and calling August the sixth month. This because the new year was then accounted from the 25th day of March. The Julian Calendar was introduced in the year 44 B. C. The Gregorian Calendar—by Pope Gregory XIII—in the year 1582 in some European countries. Because of religious prejudices, it was not recognized in England and in this country until 1752. With us the adjustment of time was made by calling the day following September 3, 1752, September 14. This was for a long time designated New Style (N. S.), as against the Old Style (O. S.). The decease of Wigard Levering, which occurred in February, 1745, was, therefore, noted as in 1744-45, because prior to March.

If Mr. Barnaby's visit had occurred a half century still earlier, he might have limited the characteristics of the people in the most northern colonies, to a single language and religion, as New England's coast gave domicile to an intolerant people, who came there to enjoy serving the Lord in the freedom of their own gospel views and conscience, and were disposed to compel all comers to act in concert with them.

George Eliot had such in mind when she remarked of a phase of English protestantism, in "The Mill on the Floss," viz.:

"Their religion was of a simple, semi-pagan kind, but there was no heresy in it,—if heresy properly means choice,—for they didn't know there was any other religion, except that of Chapel-goers, which appeared to run in families, like asthma."

Of still different material were the settlers of the South land. Mr. Campbell, whose great work has already been adverted to, said of this locality: "While New York was settled by Hollanders, and New England largely by Puritans from England, tinctured with Dutch ideas, Virginia had a different class of colonists. It is absurd to speak of them, as of better blood than the settlers in the North, for the latter came from the best old Anglo-Saxon stock, and they were made up of the most intelligent, as well as the most sturdy and virtuous of their race. But Virginia was settled from a different class of the community. Her colonists when not convicts or indentured servants, were mostly, average Englishmen, opposed to all innovations in the church or state." So it came about that in 1671, Sir William Berkeley, the Governor of Virginia, could write to England: 'I thank God, there are no free schools, or printing, and I hope we shall not have them these hundred years, for learning has brought heresy and disobedience and sects into the world, and printing has divulged them and libels against the best government. God keep us from both.'

Here is found the vicious sentiment that propagated and maintained slavery; for these autocrats held to the creed, Keep a man landless and you make him dependent; Keep him in ignorance and you make him subservient.

Mentioning the intolerant spirit which pervaded New England, I am reminded of the efforts of a prominent Divine of the period, to maintain the purity (?) of his religious sect, as shown by a letter, preserved, it is said, in a Book of Records, dating early in 1600 to 1749, kept in the archives of an old Quaker Meeting in Rhode Island. As printed in the New York Learner and Teacher, it is as follows :

“ SEPTEMBER YE 15, 1682.

To ye aged and Beloved,

MR. JOHN HIGGINSON.

There be now at sea, a ship called the Welcome, which has on board an hundred or more of the heretics and malignants called Quakers, with W. Penn, who is the chief scamp, at the head of them.

The general court has accordingly given secret orders to Master Malachi Huscott, of the brig Porpoise to waylay the said Welcome, slyly, as near the cape of Cod as may be, and make captive the said Penn and his ungodly crew, so that the Lord may be glorified, and not mocked on the soil of this new country with the heathen worship of these people.

Much spoil can be made by selling the whole lot to Barbadoes, where slaves fetch good prices in rum and sugar, and we shall not only do the Lord great service by punishing the wicked, but we shall make great good for his minister and people.

Master Huscott feels hopeful, and I will set down the news when the ship comes back.

Yours in ye bowels of Christ,

COTTON MATHER.”

The Domine appears to have anticipated a share of the “spoil,” and might not have objected to taking a distributive portion “in kind.” Ten years later he was an enthusiast in the delusion of witchcraft, and his name was associated in the history of the tragedies at old Salem, where innocent blood was shed. To save the reputation of the exiled Pilgrims, it is fair to state that the reverend gentleman was born in Boston and educated at Harvard.

It may be said that not all the people of Massachusetts approved of banishing or executing Quakers and Baptists. The atrocity of such acts caused a revulsion of feeling.

While they had suffered adversity and persecution, and their lot was now cast in unpleasant places, among the untutored Indians and wild beasts, they retained memories of generous hospitality in the foreign land and many were willing to accord equal rights to those who might differ with them in religious sentiment. Religious intolerance in the old country was the seed of religious tolerance in the new.

There was common interest in subduing the barbarians and reclaiming the wilds about them. Like children in the dark they magnified their exposures until a feeling of unrest robbed them of contentment.

Among the curiosities in the library of the noted antiquarian, Abram H. Cassel, near Philadelphia, are some pages of a small volume called NEW ENGLAND'S PROSPECT, printed in London in 1639. In an article relating to America, entitled "Concerning Lions," as contributed from the New England settlement, we find: "I will not say that I saw any myself, but some assure me that they have seen a lion at Cape Anne, which is not above six leagues from Boston; some, likewise, being lost in the woods, have heard such terrible roarings as have made them much aghast, which must either be devils or lions, there being no other creature which used to roar, saving bears, which have not such a terrible kind of roaring. Besides, Plymouth men have traded in lion skins in former times. But sure it is that there be lions on that continent, for the Virginians saw an old lion in their plantation, who (?) having lost his jackal, which was wont to hunt his prey, was brought so poor that he could go no further. For bears, they be common, being a great black kind of bear which be most fierce in strawberry time, at which time it (?) has young ones. At this time, likewise they go upright like a man and climb trees and swim to the banks, which if the Indians see there will be more sportive bear-bayting than Paris Garden can afford."

The Bible teaches that the devil as a roaring lion walketh about seeking whom he may devour. I am impressed with the belief that he was found in some New England pulpits, rather than abroad in their forests, as some innocent old woman of Salem discovered to their dire cost as hereinbefore suggested. There were no such quadrupeds or bipeds in the Philadelphia settlements.

It is well that "W. Penn, the chief scamp," had other destination in view than by the Cape of Cod. His mission was "Peace on earth, good will to men," and the hand of Providence guided his ship into a haven that was designed for the Cradle of Liberty, both religious and political. The City of Brotherly Love had its birth in the debarkation of the good ship Welcome.

How different the denizens of the Delaware from those of the ocean's coast. I have already stated that the disciples of Menno Simons—who had been persecuted from country to country—established their church in 1683, in Germantown, now an important residential part of Philadelphia. That when the Friends or Quakers came soon after, they worshiped God together. This fraternal and tolerant spirit characterized the various religious sects that settled Philadelphia, and an incense of peace has ever floated over their descendants. The unwritten law of brotherly love and justice prevailed. Their dwelling together in unity has exerted an influence for good over the whole land. Still, there were occasional tares to be found among the wheat. In the northern suburbs of the city is the substantial stone church building of Trinity Church, Oxford. Constructed in 1711, on the site of a wooden meeting-house built years before by the Friends or Quakers. It is surrounded by an ancient graveyard in which I have read sculptured epitaphs dated before the beginning of the eighteenth century. There is one quaint marker or headstone showing where an incorrigible Anglican went down "in ye year of our Lord God, 1708," with her colors flying. Her sculptured epitaph assuring us—

"Here by these lines is testify'd
No Quaker was she when she dy'd,
So far was she from Quakerism
That she desired to have baptism," etc.

The attributes of really godly men could not be restrained, as was attested by this people. The founders of the first church were the first advocates of temperance, and the organization of temperance societies followed. Attracted by the slave traffic in Virginia, and its spreading into other localities, they became remonstrants against the institution.

We have the evidence of their last wills and testaments that the two sons of Wigard Levering, after the manner of the country, held slaves. We can readily understand that the principles and religious tenets of the old pioneer father were averse to such holdings.

The minds of the first settlers of the Province were so imbued with a sense of freedom that they viewed with abhorrence even the limited holding of slaves then indulged in Penn's Sylvania. The first written protest against slavery was penned in Germantown, and signed by Francis Daniel Pastorius, and by several of these sturdy yeomen, early as April, 1688. In this they "fired the shot heard round the world," and their descendants kept alive this spark of Emancipation, although more than one hundred and forty years elapsed before organized effort was born through the heroic efforts of immortalized Garrison of Puritan Ancestry. It seemed fitting that in the City of Brotherly Love should be inaugurated the American Anti-Slavery Society, which gave at once moral courage to British philanthropy in the abolishment of slavery in the West Indies in 1834, and, after years of commendable persistence, signalized success in securing the patent of freedom applied for in the establishment of our constitutional rights. From thence the "land of the free" ceased to be a misnomer. In the bloody conflict for final victory were found many of the sons of sons of Wigard and Gerhard Levering, even of the seventh and eighth generations. Inspired by inherited regard for human rights, the "Ducit Amor Patriæ" which characterized the forefathers was upon their shields.

Nor did these early movers in the abolishment of slavery suffer the blight to exist in their midst, as Pennsylvania, in 1780, provided by statute for the gradual emancipation of all such bondmen in her domain, and the "ordinance of 1787" excluded the institution from the Northwestern Territories.

I have made comparison between the pioneers of Pennsylvania and of New England's coast. In contrast with New York the former were far advanced in religious tolerance. When Governor Fletcher assumed authority over New York, in 1692, he promulgated the instructions of William and Mary, under which he exercised control. A stipulation to regulate religious practices, provided: "You shall take especial care that God Almighty be devoutly and duly served throughout your government, and that the Book of Common Prayer, as it is now established, be read each Sunday and holy day, and the blessed sacrament administered, according to the rites of the Church of England, and provide a maintenance for the minister, * * * and that no school-master be henceforth permitted to come from England to keep school within our Province of New York, without license of the Bishop of London."

This governor undertook to exercise some authority in Pennsylvania. He made a journey to Philadelphia. For want of results, his return trip was performed with less of pomp and circumstance, than was displayed on his coming. The religious practices about Philadelphia offended his hide-bound principles. He found there the religious fraternity which characterized the Mennonites, and other sects.

After his return to New York, in March, 1695-6, he granted license to build Trinity Church, conformably with his defined creed. It still exists,—a religious Autocracy, where no mendicants need apply, while the Mennonites, in Germantown, are still heeding the Master's charge, "For ye have the poor always with you." This church has been a symbol of earnest piety and usefulness, ever since its organization. The congregation still worships in the unostentatious little "meeting house," which was built in 1770, upon their former site.

The earliest generations of the Levering family, and their connections, have closer relation to the old Baptist Church of Roxborough (Leverington) and the older Mennonite, or German Baptist Church, than to any other. In this latter, the Rev. Peter Keyser officiated as pastor, for half a century, as will appear in his biography, further on. The Keyzers are one of the most numerous, lateral branches of the Levering family. The burial ground connected with this old church is a picturesque spot, and contains scores of those who have "gone before," as recorded in this volume.

This old cemetery has been the subject of discourse by prominent persons. A special sketch, or monograph, was published years ago, by Hon. Abram H. Cassel, who has been named before in this work. Nor could Judge Pennypacker, of Philadelphia, withhold special and descriptive reference to it, in an address upon distinguished local subjects, before the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

In Whittier's "Snow Bound" may be found the lines :

"Another guest that winter night
Flashed back from lustrous eyes the light," &c.

He refers to his earnest friend and co-worker, Harriet Livermore, who, I believe, sleeps in this peaceful spot. Her voice, in life, was frequently heard in the little church, as she went about doing good.

In literary and educational advantages, the new Philadelphia excelled. Andrew Bradford published the American Weekly Mercury, early as 1719. William Bradford was the first printer. His skill attracted attention. In 1693, Governor Fletcher of New York, by flattering offers, seduced him to that city, to become official printer. His absence from Philadelphia was seriously felt, as printing was attended, for awhile, with varying success.

By the year 1738, Christopher Saur, of Germantown, whom I have already mentioned, procured a printing press and published a small "almanack" in August of that year. I believe he was not a practical printer, but he was a versatile genius, who could soon acquire some skill in any employment, and his generous inclinations to serve his measurably destitute neighbors, was his incentive to undertake various enterprises. In a year after his almanac appeared he commenced to publish a newspaper. It measured nine by thirteen inches. At first it appeared quarterly, and, subsequently, was issued monthly, until the year 1744, after which it became hebdomadary, with the title of "Germantown Gazette," and was so continued after the decease of Mr. Saur (in 1758) by his son Christopher Sower,* Jr., until some time during the Revolutionary War.

I have mentioned the destitution of the early settlers for want of Bibles, and the importation of books by Mr. Saur, Sr.

As this want continued, and, indeed, increased, by reason of enlarged population, Mr. Saur felt inspired to print and publish a Bible. After three years of arduous labor, he, in the year 1743, published a quarto edition of twelve hundred copies of the Bible, in the German language. The first Bible printed in America in an European language.

The indomitable energy of the man is testified in the fact that he made his own paper, types and ink; performed the printing and bound all the volumes. His act is believed to have been the initial step toward the first type foundry in this country.

Not so in paper making. This, also, had its beginning in Germantown; as William Rittenhouse, a Hollander, built the first paper mill in America about 1690, on or near the Wissahickon Creek. The site is well known.

The success which attended the issue of the first edition of Saur's Bible encouraged the son to publish a second edition, in 1763. This comprised two thousand copies, and in 1776 he printed a third edition of three thousand.

A peculiar fatality overtook this last effort. The date points us to troublous times. By 1777, the American army, in defense of Independence, had fared badly. They had lost New York forts, including Fort Mifflin, and had been defeated at Brandywine, also at Germantown, and had been obliged to retreat from Philadelphia, which was immediately after occupied by the British forces.

There were several disloyal citizens, who, as in the late war of the Rebellion, felt assured that the money side would win; hence, their sympathies were selfishly expended in that direction. Christopher Sower was one of these. His property was confiscated on the charge that he was a Tory. Unfortunately the title to our Mennonite church property was partly in his name, and tons of his printed Bible sheets were stored in the attic of the building. The authorities levied upon the premises. The membership resisted, and explained that the property was deeded to Sower and others only in trust, which saved from confiscation. But the Bible materials fared worse.

*It is noticeable that the son anglicized his surname.

They were seized and thrown out, some of the paper was used for cartridges, some as litter for horses, and other wasteful purposes, so that this third edition was quite limited.

Germantown produced several men of great talent and usefulness, in theological, political, commercial, literary and scientific pursuits. I may mention, conspicuously, David Rittenhouse, the great mathematician and astronomer. He was a great grandson of William, named as the first paper maker. His resources were as varied as those of the senior Saur.

He calculated the transit of Venus, as early as 1769, and so contributed largely to the first accepted estimate of the distance to the sun. He was employed in official surveys, etc., by the government; among other services, in establishing the Mason and Dixon line. In all these achievements he used instruments invented and made by himself.

Wendell Phillips, in an historic address, referring to Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, said: "Generations have passed over the stage and left us this great Commonwealth. Their creation: sober, painstaking, serious, earnest men. We can not accept the creed which represents their religion, as carelessly taken up, loosely held, and only half understood. Great jurists, practical statesmen and scholars resulted."

Philadelphia, with her million of people, and her two hundred and fifty thousand peaceful homes; her hundreds of churches of all creeds; her great marts and commerce, is the consummation of the initial life of which I have written. It is the political Mecca of America. The star of promise which led the early voyagers made this site a Bethlehem. The manger, where religious and political liberty were born, may still be found in old Independence Hall. Penn's "holy experiment" has its fruition in the perfect peace and contentment which pervades all.

When the great strife which secured the autonomy of this country prevailed, Philadelphia was the storm center, which made her the historic center of America. The grandest chapters of our nation's history relate achievements in and about the old city, where the bullet scars of British displeasure are numerous. Here the representatives of the thirteen colonies received the inspiration which demanded Independence and Union; and here the constitution of inalienable rights was handed down as on tables of stone to all the people; and here the American flag, the symbol of independence and assured rights, was designed and consecrated.

We, as a family, take an especial pride in knowing that the city's history embraces our early family history, and that a considerable area of the municipality was once the personal domain of our pioneer ancestry. The generations yet unborn, when delving in the tomes of the past, to learn upon what rock their foundation of title rests, will find the name LEVERING fossilized, as the ferns in the Anthracite Measures, which have enriched the State.

And, from whence their title? my reader may ask. I have already shown the royal grant by Charles II of England to William Penn. Still, it appears that Penn felt called upon to quiet his title by satisfying the older claimants. He paid a consideration for the land upon which Philadelphia was laid out to the Swedish settlers, who had, they averred, purchased from the Indians.

The Swedes had settled upon both sides of the Delaware River, below Philadelphia, from 1632. They, and some early Dutch navigators, contended for rights acquired by discovery or pre-emption. Both built forts along the river, and many were the valiant threatenings addressed to each other, followed by bloodless encounters, in their efforts to maintain their supposed territorial and riparian rights. Even a third party, the Governor of New Amsterdam, whom Irving styled "Peter the Headstrong," laid claim to the same lands as within his jurisdiction, and attempted to oust both.

But the doughty Dutch general, Van Poffenburg, in his Fort Casimer, defied Peter, as well the Swedish Jan Printz, who styled himself Governor of New Sweden, in his Castle of "Helsenburg." As the latter held the lowest fort on the river, he took the liberty to "bring to" every incoming Dutch ship, which excited the wrath of the defiant Van Poffenburg.

This triangular contest was made quadrangular by the intervention of a fourth party—natives—that not only asserted their rights, but dared to maintain them; for it came to pass that the marshy lands along the river raised an army of mosquitos, which was directed against the fortress commanded by Printz, compelling surrender and evacuation. They came as the band of Gideon against the Midianites, each with his own trumpet, and the blow was effectual. History was repeated, as "the Dutch took Holland."

The story of "Penn's treaty with the Indians" was told in the school readers of a century and longer ago, and a picture of the assembly on the occasion, as having been held under the since famous elm tree, on the river's bank, is in many old portfolios, and is still a mural ornament in many old dwellings and public libraries in the old city.

Penn, through his surveyor, Thomas Holme, made a special contract with the Indians to quiet title to a much greater area of land. The tract agreed upon was set out in writing, viz.: "Whereas, I have purchased and bought of you, the Indian Kings and Sakamackers, for the use of Governor, William Penn, all your land from Pemapecka Creek to Upland Creek, and so backward to Chesapeake Bay and Susquehanna, two days' journey; that is to say, as far as a man can go in two days," etc.

The "lay of the land," as will appear from examination of modern maps, was not well understood, as the suggested boundaries define an uncertain direction. Still, both sides seem to have comprehended what land was meant, so the contract, as still preserved in the Government land office, was entered into under signatures and seal.

As will be noticed, the stipulated western limit was to extend, not so far as a man can walk in two days, but so "far as a man can go."

To let Mr. Watson, in his Annals of Philadelphia, tell the story, we learn that "the agents publicly advertised a fee of five pounds for the greatest walker for one day, and procured one Marshall, who ran over four times as much ground as the Indians expected."

The Indians cherished a revengeful feeling against Marshall, and tried to find and kill him; but, according to the contract, Shakahappoh and other Indian Kings, made conveyance, on the 30th day of the fifth month, called July, in the year 1685, as appears in the Book of Charters and Indian deeds, in the General Land Office, wherein the ceded tract is described as "between Macopanackan, alias Upland, now called Chester River, or Creek, and the River or Creek of Pemapecka, now called Dublin Creek. Beginning at a hill called Conshohockin, on the River Manaiunck, or Schoolkill; from thence, extending a parallel line to the said Macopanackan, by a southwesterly course, and from the said Conshohockin hill to the aforesaid Pemapecka, by the said parallel line northwesterly, and so up along the said Pemapecka, as far as the creek extends, and so from thence northwesterly, back into the woods to make up two full days' journey, as far as a man can go in two days, from the said station," etc.

These boundaries will greatly interest those who have a general knowledge of the geography about Philadelphia.

The consideration paid "to us in hand, well and truly, by William Penn, Proprietary and Governor of Pennsylvania and Territories," comprised as follows: "200 fathoms of Wampum, 30 fathoms of dutchells,* 30 gams, 60 hoops of stowed waters, 30 kettles, 30 shovels, 20 gamb-bits, 12 pitch-hooks, 30 pairs stockings, 30 pairs scissors, 30 combs, 30 axes, 30 knives, 21 tobacco tongs, 30 bars of lead, 30 pounds of powder, 30000, 30 wisses, 30 tobacco boxes, 30 papers of beads, 44 pounds of wad, 30 pairs of hawks bells, 6 drawing knives, 6 cups and 12 lines.

It is not improbable that some of the imperishable articles named may still be treasured in the old city, or may be invaluable relics in the archives of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

Notwithstanding the apparent conclusion of this bargain and sale, the settlement of it appears to have been a matter of controversy for years after, as so late as the year 1757, one Nicholas Scull, Surveyor General, made oath that he was present when James Yeates and Edward Marshell, together with some Indians, walked one and a half days back in the woods, from Wrightstown; that they walked but eighteen hours, and made fifty-five miles; did not run, and that no objections were expressed by the Indians at the time.

In Eastern Pennsylvania, tradition, and even written reference in titles to this novel method of measurement, has kept alive a memory of the occurrence, which has ever since been characterized as the "great walk." The Indians measured time by "moons," and lands by "walks," but the white man's tactics of "double quick" had not yet been revealed to them. Subsequently, when "Greek joined Greek" as in the city and surroundings, the estate was carefully parcelled out with rods and poles of standard length.

While the existence of the Levering family in America is coeval with the life of Philadelphia, as I have described, but little more than two centuries of time defines the period; during which seven generations have run their earthly course. Three of these passed before the birth of our Nation. The "Father of his Country," who made Revolution out of Rebellion, was not born until nearly half a century after William and Gerhard Levering came.

What wonderful inventions and changes these generations have witnessed! The power of steam discovered, and its application developed, from the early efforts of Stevenson to the present ponderous movements upon land and sea. From Indian trails and bridle paths in the forests, the country has progressed into broad avenues of travel, and thousands of miles of railroads—even binding ocean to ocean. While the powers of electricity are being utilized to the surprise of the present generation, it may be kept in mind that the subtle element was first baited and subjugated by a Philadelphia philosopher—the immortal Franklin. It is useless for one pen, or one volume, to undertake the enumeration of what these generations have experienced and enjoyed.

What of the former generations of the family? At a reasonable estimate, twelve successive steps, from sire to son, were descended between the JOHN DE LEVERING hereinbefore named, and ROSIER, the root of the American household.

I am of the opinion, that this JOHN was the first of the family surname; the primo-genitor. At home, in Leverington, he was known as JOHN—after the manner of the times, and there, doubtless, was identified by a distinguishing appendage, as the teacher, the carpenter, or the miller, but, when away from home, as at Ely, he appears of sufficient prominence, to be known as the John of Leverington, and the son, Robert, had his identification in the father, and became ROBERT LEVERING.*

I can readily understand that if the Saul de Tarsus had descendants, they would have borne the local designation as a family surname.

Free course must be given to the customs, and education, as well, the practices and impressions of the times. Relating to his time, this same Saul said, "If a woman have long hair it is a glory to her," and if hoops had been worn by women in his day, he might have included them also, and thus given permanence to the inflated style of dress, as his commendation has assured to the hirsute adornment, but I think he would have "drawn the line" on tight shoes and corsets.

The days of John of Leverington are very remote. We have but limited conception of the period, unless by chronological comparison with familiar events, or notable persons. The fixed date of his presence, we have determined by a recorded lease of lands, to have been in the year 1316. At this time the Feudal system of tenures was beginning to fall, though it did not finally disappear on the Continent, for nearly one hundred years thereafter.

In his time, Magna Charta: The great Charter of English liberty, and without which there probably would have been no independence in this country, was scarcely one hundred years old.

In his time, the English Parliament, was still in experimental existence, being only a half century old.

His time, produced many eminent contemporaries, as Dante, Chaucer, Wickliff, while the immortal Shakspeare, was born two hundred and fifty years later.

*The "ton" was merely the English designation for a village or town, as we append "ville" or "burgh."

Until his time, no Magnetic Compass was used. The moon and stars, serving as guides to the ships which went down to sea.

It was more than half a century after his time, that gun-powder was invented, and men-at-arms took the place of lances, halberds and bow-guns, in battle.

It was more than a century after his time, that the art of printing was introduced into Europe, and fifty years were added, before Gutenberg invented movable types.

It was more than a century after his time, that the world-wide heroine, Joan of Arc,—who was born a peasant in Lorraine, and was reared to tend her father's sheep, in the forests of Domremy,—performed the great achievement,—the raising of the siege of Orleans,—which immortalized her name.

It was nearly two centuries after his time, that Columbus discovered America, so he must have regarded the world, as comprised within Europe, Asia and Africa.

It was more than two centuries after his time, that Luther, defiantly, nailed his theses upon the door of the Schlosskirche, at Wittenberg, which was the initial of the Reformation, and

It was nearly two and a half centuries after his time, that the Commission of Bishops, under the bloody Mary, in their condemnation of "heretics," caused John Rogers to be burned at the stake, in Smithfield, and bishops Ridley and Latimer to suffer a like fate, at Oxford.

It was more than three centuries after his time, that the historical "thirty years' war," which did so much to establish Protestantism, was prosecuted in Europe.

It was nearly four centuries after his time, that the great city of St. Petersburg, the capital of the Russian Empire, was founded by Peter the Great.

It was four and a half centuries after his time, that Watt, patented his invention of the steam engine, which, with ponderous power, and rapid movement,—controlled by the brain and brawn of man,—moves the commerce of the world.

It was more than five centuries after his time, that Morse perfected the Electric Telegraph, by which time and space are annihilated and all the world is made akin.

And for three centuries after his time, the missing links in the family chain are wanting.

GERHARD LEVERING.

I HAVE shown that Gerhard Levering was a younger brother of Wigard Levering. That he came to America in the year 1685, with Wigard and his family. That he purchased fifty acres of land in Germantown, in August of that year, and, subsequently, sold it. That he purchased one hundred acres of land in Roxborough, adjoining the five-hundred-acre tract owned by Wigard.

The court records of Germantown show: "1693, the 28th day or November, the Court being duly opened. The said Francis Daniel Pastorius delivered, in behalf of the said Frankfort Company, unto Gerhard Levering, a deed of enfeoffment containing fifty acres of land in Germantown." This was lot numbered 12: one of the 55 allotments of like area laid out by the company. The long delayed conveyance by the company is hereinbefore explained.

Mr. Jones shows that on the first of October, 1692, Gerhard Levering acquired from John Jennett—one of the patentees of land in Roxborough—one hundred acres, in that township, which adjoined his brother Wigard's purchase, of February, 1691, on the southeast. Jennett, having owned two hundred acres, sold the remaining one hundred to Henry Frey, who married Wigard Levering's daughter, Anna Catharine, as will appear. It was, no doubt, at this time that Gerhard removed from Germantown to Roxborough.

An ancient manuscript, in German, translated by Abram H. Cassel, relates to these adjoining ownerships. It reads:

"I, George Jacobs, certify herewith, that I bought of Gerhard Levering and Henrich Frey, all the land that they have beyond the creek called Wessahika, (except 2 Rods in breadth along the creek, which Henrich Frey reserved of his before conditioned) for 24 £ cur. on the terms that I pay the first half on the 16th of November next, and the other half on the 16th of May, the year following. And in case I should not pay within that time, then all said land with whatever I may have improved thereon, shall fall back again to the aforementioned Gerhard Levering and Henrich Frey, as its rightful Lords. And whilst the usual rent (of 1 shilling per 100.) has not yet been paid, I obligate myself to pay as much of said “Rent to the Proprietor as becomes my part of it, when demanded.

“In testimony of which I have undersigned my hand and name.

(Kelpius, will be recognized as the philosopher, and “Hermit of the Ridge.” The manuscript is in his hand writing.)

We have no record evidence of Gerhard's marriage; the person, or date, but we learn from a deed of conveyance, in which she joined, that his wife's christian name was Mary.

It is unfortunate that Gerhard did not purchase a family Bible, and inscribe therein a register of his marriage, and of his children, as Wigard did, which would have reduced our assumption as to his children, to certainty.

For nearly forty years Gerhard Levering resided in Roxborough, during which period his children were born and reared. As appears from the Records of Philadelphia County, he sold his tract of land in Roxborough, in the year 1730. He, and his wife, Mary, joined in a deed, on the 27th of April, of that year, conveying the 100 acres to J. Selzar. In the deed he describes himself as a “Joiner.”

Referring to this alienation of his land, Mr. Jones stated: “From this time I have been unable to discover any trace of Garrett or his wife; whether they lived and died in Roxborough, or removed to the upper part of Philadelphia County, or went to another Province, is unknown.”

Earnest effort to discover them, especially in the forty years ago, would have revealed to him, that Gerhard and his family removed,—not out of the county, however,—but little more than a dozen miles away from their former home, they settled in the midst of that part of Philadelphia County, which became Montgomery County, in the year 1784.

The fact that “many of his posterity were residing there forty years after the sale of his farm,” as related by Mr. Jones, was a reasonable index to the place. With this supposition, I instituted investigation, and learned the actual spot upon which he located, as will appear.

In “Rupp's collection of 30,000 names,” among “465 names of inhabitants of Philadelphia County, who owned lands and paid Quitt-rents prior to 1734,” I find Jacob Levering, 100 acres, and Henry Levering, 100 acres, as in Whitpain Township. Daniel is not mentioned in this list. He must have been inadvertently omitted, as will appear further on.

Here is a corroboration of the statement made in 1855 by Mrs. Catharine Levering Heist (born 1789), a great granddaughter of Henry—as related by Mr. Jones, that she “remembered hearing her father say that Garrett (as Gerhard was often called) Levering had three sons, viz.: HENRY, DANIEL, and JACOB, and one daughter, MAGDALENA. That Garrett purchased 300 acres of land in Whitpain Township, which he divided among his three sons, and gave money to his daughter, Magdalena.”

This explains why Mr. Jones could not find, that subsequently to the sale of his land in Roxborough, Gerhard was ever “possessed of any landed estate.”

Calculation shows that if he was ten years younger than his brother Wigard, he had (in 1731, as I will show,) already outlived the biblical span of life allotted to man, hence his act was an equal distribution of his estate, and so each son received an area equal to his farm in Roxborough, the sale of that appears to have been made in contemplation of the settlement of his sons.

I mentioned my investigations as to Gerhard's domicile in his last years. Realizing that no one was better informed than the widely known and aged antiquarian, Abraham H. Cassel, who resides not very remote from Whitpain, and who aided Mr. Jones very greatly in his compilation of 1858, I addressed him at length, asking questions and suggesting possible sources of information, and notwithstanding his apologetic explanation of delay, saying: “Perhaps you don't know that my sight is failing—can only write a few minutes at a time without resting my eye—the other is blind. I can not see the lines. I don't pretend to read any more,” etc., the grand old man was stirred into effort, when some lost genealogical links were searched for, as is a superannuated hound at the sound of a fox-horn, and he must have devoted all day to my quest, judging by his voluminous reply.

To my request for names of persons who were best informed of Whitpain, he wrote: “A few years earlier I might have given you the names of several old settlers who took interest in matters of this kind, and who could have aided you in your researches, but they are all gone now, to their long homes. The only persons now, who are likely to know anything about it, are the Hon. Jones Detwiler, a resident of Whitpain, and the author of a history of the township, and Henry S. Dotterer, who compiled a history of the old Boehm Church, where most likely some Leverings are buried."

I availed of these pointers, promptly and earnestly, addressing Mr. Detwiler. He responded soon after, furnishing much interesting information, including some family data from old church records.

He wrote further: "There is an old Reformed church in Whitpain Township known as Boehms, named after its founder, A. D. 1740. There is no doubt that the most of the Leverings, as you will notice herein, were members of this church. The Leverings, Boehm (the minister) and De Havens, all owned land adjoining each other, and very near to the center of these tracts, the church now stands. Their settlement here gave rise to the founding of this church. Some years ago the earliest records of this church, as kept by Rev. Boehm, prior to the year 1764, were destroyed by fire in a dwelling house."

This I regard as a calamity. Doubtless the date of the death of Gerhard and his age were stated, which would have furnished the date of his birth, or an approximation to it; also the dates of decease of his sons, probably their marriages and other data. I regret that Mr. Jones did not pursue such inquiry forty years ago.

Mr. Detwiler continued: "I am inclined to think, from my researches, that the old Gerhard Levering first located upon what is now (1892) the celebrated Holstein stock farm owned by William M. Singerly, of the Philadelphia Record. This property is located at the intersection of the State and Morris roads. Here, an old stone house, fronting south, one story high, with a large chimney-stack in the center, built after the old Dutch style, stood until the property was purchased by Mr. Singerly. The lands of the sons adjoined each other."

In a subsequent letter Mr. Detwiler wrote: "There are none of the Whitpain family of Leverings left in this locality. Dr. D. L. Heist, deceased, grandson of the Daniel Levering who died in 1817, was the last.

The discussion excited in the neighborhood by my inquiries, and the kindly researches by Mr. Detwiler, in my behalf, caused the compilation and publication of an extended article in a local newspaper, entitled, "THE SINGERLY PROPERTY AT FRANKLINVILLE—THE LEVERING FAMILY—THE OLD TAVERN." From this I learn, in addition to the above, that Colonel Singerly acquired the lands in 1883, paying $13,000 for certain 82 acres of it. That "it has been in the famous great barn, stables, hot-house and other buildings, that the wealth and taste of the present owner has chiefly altered the appearance of the old Levering homestead." That when, in course of time, the premises of Henry descended to Catharine Levering Heist, before named, her husband, John Heist, built a large public house, at the main road crossing, which place has grown into Franklinville. That Mr. Singerly has remodeled this "Old Tavern" for a summer residence, and that here, "on one summer Sunday of 1888," he entertained President Cleveland. It was during his first term of office.

As the evidence of Gerhard Levering's location, with his sons, had thus far been traditional, I sought to reduce it to certainty by corresponding with Colonel Singerly. My statement and inquiry addressed to him August 5, 1892, were promptly referred to his attorney, with his "instructions to furnish all the information possible, which can be obtained from the title papers." The attorney wrote me: "After a thorough examination of all the briefs and perusal of the many recitals in the different deeds, I am enabled to furnish only a slight link in the family chain which you are endeavoring to form." But this "slight link" was the one I was searching for: Vide et crede.

By deed, dated June 16, 1731, Reese Thomas, Anthony Morris and wife and Ann Whitpaine conveyed to Jacob Levering, in fee, a certain tract of land: "Beginning at a post in the line of Daniel Levering's land. At a corner of Samuel Linderman's land; thence by said Linderman's land N. W. 185 perches to a post in Reese Harry's land; thence N. E. $86\frac{1}{4}$ perches; thence by the land of the North Wales Company S. E. 185 perches to a post; thence by said Daniel Levering's land S. W. $86\frac{1}{4}$ perches to the beginning, containing one hundred acres."

By will, dated January 28, 1793, Jacob Levering devises this tract to "My cousin (?) Daniel Levering, grandson of my brother Henry Levering, being my plantation, or tract of land containing one hundred acres."

These items are sufficient to confirm the statement made, and my convictions as to the home of Gerhard, in his latter days. The date of the deed recited, shows that he purchased these lands in the year (1731) following his sale in Roxboro, and the survey description shows that Mr. Rupp omitted Daniel, as a land owner, as hereinbefore suggested.

It may be of interest to know that the De Haven mentioned as one of those who were instrumental in establishing the Reformed Church before named, was Peter Indehaven (then so called), whose wife was SIDONIA, the ninth child of Wigard Levering.

He appears to have joined in the land purchases, as Mr. Rupp shows that Peter Indehaven owned 100 acres in the same locality.

He was a son of Evert (1688) in Den Hoff (anglicized De Haven), who settled in Whitpain Township in 1706, when he "located" 200 acres at land. Mr. Detwiler wrote of it: "A lineal descendant of Evert's, Oct. (1862) owns a portion of it."

The sons of Gerhard Levering lived to considerable age and held their lands. Mr. Detwiler wrote: "In the list of taxables of Whitpain Township for the year 1760-61 (an original copy in my possession) the following is found:

"Evert Levering, farmer; no children; 100 acres; 50 cleared; 60 acres sowed to grain; 3 horses; 60 sheep; 3 cattle.

"Daniel Levering, 4 children; 100 acres; 60 cleared; 5 acres sowed; 2 horses; 6 sheep; 5 cows.

"Henry Levering, no children; 100 acres; 60 cleared; 8 acres sowed."

The notings as to children manifestly shows the number at home. Mr. D. adds: "Jacob Levering was the last of that name that held land in Whitpain." The sons, as will be shown, removed to the State of New Jersey, and from thence to Ohio.

There is a tradition in the neighborhood, which is perpetuated in a history of Whitpain Township, published some years ago, to the effect that Daniel, who was a smith as well as a farmer, during the "times that tried men's souls," and their patriotism, inspired by the rumors of war which excited the people prior to the Declaration of Independence, and animated with a desire to aid the infant colonies in providing the munitions of war, manufactured a cannon in his shop, and in "proving" the home-made artillery lost his coat-tails and the fullness of his trousers by the first shot, much to his surprise and discomfiture. How the bobtailment occurred is not explained, but I imagine that he attempted to restrain the ordnance, under trying circumstances a la equestrian, and that his garments interfered with the business end of the thing.

By the evidence of their last wills, Daniel lived to June, 1776, and Henry to 1777, in which years the instruments were probated in Philadelphia. Jacob lived to 1793. His will, dated the 28th of January of that year, asserts that he was then "far advanced in age." It was proved August 1, 1793, in court at Norristown,—Montgomery County, having been organized nine years before. No transcript of deeds, wills, etc., were ever taken from Philadelphia to Norristown for recording there.

There has been a measure of uncertainty as to the children of Gerhard Levering and the order of their births.

Catharine Levering Heist, great-great-granddaughter of Gerhard, who resided in Whitpain all her lifetime, and died there in the year 1872, aged 86 years, stated to Mr. Jones that "Gerhard Levering had three sons, Henry, Daniel and Jacob, and one daughter, Magdalena." We have found record evidence of these three sons, but have no other evidence of a daughter. The extinguished records of Boehm's Church, doubtless, contained her name.

Mr. Jones's inquiries for descendants of the pioneers disclosed the Leverings residing at Bethlehem, Pa. In answer to questions as to their ancestors, Mrs. Greider (born 1799) of that city—a granddaughter of John Levering—stated in a letter of March 30, 1856: "My great-grandfather, to my knowledge, was Abraham Levering. He was a son of Wigard, who died, as much as I remember my father say, near Philadelphia. My father and mother went to his funeral. They then resided here at Bethlehem. He lived to be 109 years old."

While Mrs. G. is correct in the main, I observe that the traditions are confused in her mind. Her father—who was also named Abraham, but of the fifth generation—could not have attended the funeral of the pioneer Wigard², who died at the reputed age of 109 years, as his funeral occurred a dozen years before her father was born. Her parents may have attended the funeral of another Wigard, a grandson of the pioneer, who died in 1782, as suggested by Mr. Jones.

Judge Abraham Levering, of Monroe County, Pa., who was a brother of Mrs. Greider, concurred in her statements as to their ancestors residing at Philadelphia, and of attending funerals of relations there.

Mr. Jones wrote: "Abraham³ is presumed to have been a son of Gerhard." He might have stated, and correctly, too, that Abraham³ was a son of Gerhard.

There were no other pioneer Leverings than Wigard and Gerhard. The former in his family register listed "the perfect number of twelve" children; naming them all, distinctly. He had no son named Abraham. A grandson bearing the name (son of Jacob) was not born until 1717. More than forty years after his last child was born, Wigard named his children in a will, with the names of the husbands of his daughters. This will, though preserved, was revoked by a testament subsequently executed, and which was probated after his decease. In this he names his children again, but no Abraham appears in either instrument.

The attention of Mr. Jones himself was called to the discoveries made (nearly thirty years after "The Levering Family" was published) in the records of old Christ's Church, at Philadelphia, which convinced of the once existence of this Abraham, to whom Mrs. Greider refers.

The extracts made from these records are as follows :

- "John, son of Abraham and Ann Levering, born 29th September, 1720, and baptized 9th October, 1720."
- "John, son of Abraham and Ann Levering, buried 20th July 1721."
- "Randle John, son of Abraham and Ann Levering, born 19th Oct. and christened, 1722."
- "Burial, 1723 Nov. 26. Abraham Levering's child."
- "Burial, 1730 July 20th, Abraham, son of Abraham Levering."

The name Randle, is an anomalous appellation in the Levering family. To my mind, it suggests the maiden name of the mother, Ann, doubtless of the old family, Randall. If named for John Randall,—perhaps the grandfather,—the church clerk has transposed the names, after the manner of an alphabetical index.

My readers will observe that, Gerhard Levering came to Philadelphia in 1685, unmarried. That in the thirty-five years succeeding, he had married Mary —. That they had a son Abraham, who grew to manhood and married Ann —, and a grandson John, was born to them. The measure of time sustains the relation. And this Abraham was destined to become "a father of many nations."

In recording the children of Gerhard Levering, in "The Levering Family," Mr. Jones placed Daniel first, as born 2 Dec. 1704. (the only birth date noted in the family list.) He admits Abraham second, as a "presumed" son, upon the statement of Mrs. Greider. It will be noticed that Daniel, born in December, 1704, was less than sixteen years old when his brother Abraham, brought a child to baptism, hence the latter was the older, and, probably, was born before the end of the seventeenth century.

This Abraham was unfortunate in the loss of his children; both, John, and Randle John, having died in infancy, as appears by the record extracts copied, but he was destined to become the progenitor of numerous posterity through still another son, whom he also named John, born at Philadelphia, December 11 (O. S.), 1723, and whom Mr. Jones distinguishes in "The Levering Family" as the Rev. John Levering, ancestor of what he designated the "Nazareth Branch."

The Right Rev. Joseph Mortimer Levering, of Bethlehem, Pa., Bishop of the Moravian Church,—who is a great, great grandson of “Reverend” John,—furnished in April, 1888, the result of two years of search and investigation into the history of this old “soldier of the Cross.” I extract: “His parents died when he was yet very young, and in consequence of this early bereavement, he experienced many hardships in his childhood. After the death of his parents he was taken in charge by a relative living near to Fredericktown (Whitpain), and was by him apprenticed to a tailor. After learning his trade he traveled with his master from house to house, in the neighborhood, making clothes for the farmers, as was the practice in those days. On one of these tours he came to the house of Henry Antes, of Fredericktown, where he heard the gospel preached by the Moravian Brethren, and was spiritually awakened. Soon after, i. e., in 1743, he visited Bethlehem, and applied for admission to the newly founded Moravian settlement,” &c.

I introduce this just here for the purpose of identification; the history of his subsequent, useful life is given further on.

I might be asked, as Gerhard, in June, 1731, purchased land for each of his sons, Henry, Daniel and Jacob, why not for his oldest son, Abraham? This question precipitates a crisis in my story. He was dead!

I read the last extract given from Christ’s Church records, viz.: “Burial; 1730, July 29, Abraham, son of GERHARD Levering.”

The first child, John, died in less than a year. The second, Randle John, followed. There was no child Abraham born, to follow so soon after, so it was the father. This, when the third child, John, born in December, 1723, was six and a half years old.

The careless entry by the Church Clerk, who was unacquainted with the family names, or the delay of some hours, or of a day, in making the entry, had left a confused memory in his mind. The very abbreviated condition of the record indicates carelessness. There appears nothing to distinguish infant from adult. It was doubtless their way of entering “The short and simple annals of the poor.”

The relation and history may be clearly inferred. Gerhard sold his 100 acres in Roxborough in April, 1730. His son Abraham died three months later. By June, 1731, the surviving family had removed to Whitpain Township, taking Abraham’s only child, John, along.

The system of apprenticeship by legal indentures, which was practiced in all mechanical trades in Pennsylvania at that period, and during my youthful days, as I well remember, suggested to my mind that the record of John's indentured relation to the tailoring trade might be found, and therein the name of his father would appear. Hon. Abraham H. Cassel, whom I addressed upon the subject, answered this part of my inquiry, viz. : "Yes, Montgomery County has had such a record of apprenticeships, where it was or in whose custody it formerly was I know not, but when I saw it, it was in possession of the old antiquarian and historian, M. M. Auge, the author of 'Eminent Men of Montgomery County.' He picked it up somewhere, among old rubbish; it was in a very dilapidated condition, but he prized it very highly, and had numerous extracts from it published in the county newspapers. He was nearly all his life a resident in and about Norristown, but died in Philadelphia within the last year. I called a few days ago, while in the city, hoping to find Mr. Auge's family, and to see the old Apprentice Manuscript, but learned that they broke up housekeeping directly after his funeral, so I have no clew to their whereabouts, and am extremely doubtful as to that old mutilated manuscript being preserved."

In correspondence further with Mr. Henry S. Dotterer, an old resident of Whitpain, I failed to find evidence or record of John Levering's apprenticeship.

It appears that the lapse of a few years has deprived me of the sources of valuable record information, as to Gerhard Levering's personal and early family history, by the unfortunate destruction of the first records of Boehm's Church, and the loss of apprenticeship dockets has cost us corroboration of "Reverend" John's initial of a busy and useful life. They were within easy reach of Mr. Jones. I regret that his researches were not more extended.

PRIMOGENITOR
LEVERING FAMILY.

JOHN DE LEVERYNG; born about the year A. D. 1250, at Leverington, in Cambridgeshire, England, and it is believed that he lived and died in that ancient town, which was so named in the year A. D. 870. Nothing is known of his family, except of his son named Robert.

ROBERT, son of John de Leveryng; born about the year A. D. 1280, at Leverington, England. We learn by records in the archives of the Episcopal Palace at Ely, in Cambridgeshire, England, that Robert, "in the eighth year of the reign of Edward II" (A. D. 1316), became a lessee of the Wisbech Barton Manor. I assume that his father may have been thirty years the senior of Robert, and the latter probably thirty-six years of age when he became an independent land-holder, as the young men of that period were not so precocious in marriage and business management as in modern times. Nothing is known of his family.

GENEALOGY

LEVERING FAMILY

FIRST GENERATION.

1. ROSIER LEVERING¹; was born in the early years of the seventeenth century. He is the known progenitor of the Levering family in America, hence I designate him as the zero, or bench-mark, from which to grade succeeding generations descending from him. It is believed that he was born in Holland, of ancient English or Anglo-Saxon parentage; exiled, because of persecution for their religious principles. He married Elizabeth Van de Walle, of Wesel, in Westphalia, in Germany, near to the frontier of Holland. They settled in the same district, at Gemen, where several children were born to them, between the years 1648 and 1662. Tradition, preserved by the remnant of the family at Gemen, says they occupied the old Levering homestead in that town, and that they died there.

SECOND GENERATION.

Children of (1) Rosier¹ and Elizabeth (Van de Walle) Levering.

2. I. JOHN WIGARD²: born in 1648 or '49, in the town of Gemen, in Germany. In April, 1674, he married "the chaste virgin," Magdalena Bokers, of Essen. She was a native of Leyden, in Holland. They lived in Gemen until some time after the birth and decease of their first child, and then removed to Mulheim, where they remained until they emigrated to America, after the 20th of March, 1685, bringing their surviving four children. (9)

He settled first in Germantown, Philadelphia, and removed from there a short distance west, into Roxborough Township, in 1691, where he bought a tract of five hundred acres of land, lying between and bordering upon both the River Schuylkill and Wissahickon Creek. Upon this estate he lived his remaining years with his family, and died there.

His wife Magdalena died in the summer of 1717, aged about 67 years. He died February 2, 1745, at the probable age of 97 years, and was buried upon his farm in a spot overlooking the romantic Wissahickon, which has become a part of the famous Fairmount Park of Philadelphia. This spot subsequently became the churchyard and burial ground of the Baptist Church, organized in 1789, which was greatly enlarged, and is now known as Leverington Cemetery, under a special charter from the State of Pennsylvania. This ground doubtless contains the remains of Magdalena. A gravestone marking the interment, in June, 1744, of their grandchild, Clement Levering, still stands, and points the place where repose the old pioneers, though no sculptured tablet was ever erected there to their memory.

I have copied Wigard's family register in another part of this volume, as taken from his bible, hereinbefore described, but which has lost its charm and specific value in some measure since the discovery of the original records in Germany, which relate to the same subjects, and expose its erroneous dates. His bible was in the possession of Mrs. Sarah Kirk, of Germantown, a great-great-granddaughter of the old pioneer, until her death, in 1863, when it passed to her granddaughter, Mrs. Linton, who also died. Her husband probably has the relic.

WILL OF WIGARD LEVERING.

I, Wichert Levering, of the Township of Roxborough, in the County of Philadelphia, in the Province of Pennsylvania, Joyner, being in good health of body and of a sound and perfect mind and Memory, and calling to mind the frailty of this transitory life and that it's appointed for all flesh once to dye, Do make and ordain this my Last Will and Testament in manner and form following, revoking, Disannulling and making utterly void and of none effect all other and former Wills by me at any time heretofore made.

Imps. I will that all my Just Debts and ffuneral expenses be paid and discharged by my Executor hereinafter named with all convenient speed after my Decease.

Item. I give and Bequeath unto my Daughter Katherine ye sum of tenn pounds lawful money of Pennsylvania to be paid to her by my Executor hereinafter named within twelve months after my Decease.

Item. I give and Bequeath unto my Daughter Amelia the sum of tenn pounds lawful money af^l to be paid to her by my said Executor hereinafter mentioned, within two years after my Decease.

Item. I give and Bequeath unto my Daughter Sebilla the sum of tenn pounds lawful money af^l to be paid to her by my s^d Executor within three years after my Decease.

Item. I give and Bequeath unto my son in law Peter Indehaven ye sum of tenn pounds lawful money af^l to be paid to him by my s^d Executor within ffour years after my Decease.

Item. I give and Bequeath unto my son in law William Tunes ye sum of tenn pounds lawful money af^l to be paid to him by my s^d Executor within ffive years after my Decease.

Lastly. I give and Bequeath unto my son William Levering whom I hereby constitute ordain and appoint sole Executor of this my Last Will and Testament all other my Estate and Effects of what kind soever.

In witness whereof I have hereunto put my hand and seal this twenty third Day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fforty two.

WILLIAM LEVERING,
HANNAH LEVERING,
THOS. YORKE."

This will was probated after the death of the testator ; on the 7th day of February, 1745, in Court at Philadelphia.

A former will executed by Wigard on May 10, 1736, and which was revoked by the above instrument, contained the names of all his children, and of the husbands of his daughters. Its preservation as a relic, saved also, valuable history.

Two sons ; William, born at Mulheim, in Germany, and Jacob, born in Roxborough, survived the old pioneer. Jacob, on his marriage in 1717, was made the owner of eighty-five acres, bordering on the river Schuylkill, of the home farm, by deed from his parents, dated February 20 of that year. The signature of his mother, Magdalena, to this deed is the last record evidence we have of her.

This deed provided an easement for "free egress and regress to or from the hereby bargained tract through the said Wechart and William's other land as far as the Plymouth Road (now Ridge Avenue), nevertheless it shall be lawful for the s^d Jacob, afore written, to fffence in all the said tract leaving a gate of Barrs or Shut rails." This right of way became what is known as the steep hill street between Manayunk and Roxborough, called Green Lane. It is now bordered by business houses and dwellings, many of them are fine residences.

*The spelling of the Christian name by his attorney, suggests the pronunciation of W-i-g-a-r-d by the yet Teutonic neighbors. "His mark" to this instrument, and to all other documents signed by him, was composed of large Roman letters W L, of peculiar form, with a distinctive mark upon the W. In his day "his mark" meant a scrawl which each man adopted as his signature, and the use of it by another was regarded a forgery.

On November 1, 1717, Wigard conveyed all the residue of his five hundred acres to his older son William, estimating the area at 155 acres. In this deed no wife joins, which suggests the death of Magdalena prior to the date noted.

The inventory of Wigard's estate, as made by Matthew Houlgate and Isaac Cook, on the 9th day of February, 1744-45, lists household effects sufficient for one room only—except "one bible valued £1.10 and one singing book—shows that he had retired from active life and was "only waiting till the shadows a little longer grew"; the while, clinging to His Word as the beacon which would guide him safely "over the river."

3. II. EBERHARD²: born about 1652, in Gemen, Germany, where he married in 1677, Mechtold, daughter of Gerhard Schmulling, and died there Sept. 5, 1711. (21)
4. III. ELIZABETH²: born about 1654, at Gemen. Her presence at the christening of her brother's children is testified in items Nos. 6 and 10 of the Gemen Church records, which see. We have no further knowledge of her.
5. IV. ALCHE²: born about 1656 at Gemen. She appeared as a witness at the christening ceremony of her brother's twin daughter, at item No. 7 of church records, as certified by the Churchmester. That she and her sister Elizabeth appeared in these vicarious relations attests the fact of their having attained the acceptable age for recognition by the church.
6. V. WILLIAM²: born about 1658 at Gemen, where he married about 1687 Grete Nilant, who died. He married 2d, about 1691 Maria Velts, of Gemen. He died there January 3, 1700. (30)
7. VI. GERHARD²: born about 1660 in Gemen. He emigrated to America with his brother Wigard in 1685. He married Mary ———, after his arrival at Philadelphia. He died in Whitpain Township, Philad. County, Pa. after the year 1731. See his history in these pages.

8. VII. DAUGHTER³: born September, 1662, in Gemen. The evidence of this is found at item No. 17, copied from church records, which see. That godmothers only appeared determines the "child" to have been a daughter.

THIRD GENERATION.

DESCENDANTS OF WIGARD LEVERING.

Children of Wigard² and Magdalena (Bokers) Levering.

9. I. ANNA SOPHIA³: b. Jan., 1675, in Gemen, and died in infancy.
10. II. ANNA CATHARINE³: b. March, 1676, in Mulheim, on the Rhur. She was brought to America in 1685 by her parents when aged "9 years," as stated in the contract of transportation. She married Henry Frey at Germantown, April 26, 1692 (O. S.), of whom Cassel states: "Heinrich Frey and Joseph Blatenbach were the first two German emigrants who came to Pennsylvania. They emigrated in 1680 and settled in Philadelphia." Their marriage was among the first weddings which were contracted and solemnized in the province. The evidence of it still exists in the certificate and previous notice which was posted on the door of the meeting-house, as follows:

WHEREAS, Henry Fry, of Altheim, in the province of Alsace, in High German, now inhabitant of Germantown, in the county of Philadelphia, bachelor, and Annie Catharine Levering, of the county of Bruck, likewise in High Germany, a young woman, after due consultation with their respective parents, have produced a sufficient certification of their clearness of all other engagements, under the hand of several credible persons, unto one of the Justices of the Peace, in the bailiwick of Germantown, and have published and affixed their intention of marriage in the meeting-house of the said town on the 24th of the first month past.

As no objections were filed the ceremony was performed, and THIS Certificate witnesseth that the said Henry Fry and Anna Catharine Levering have this day solemnized such their marriage by taking one another as husband and wife, according to the law of this country, and before and in the presence of us, whose names are hereunder written at Germantown, the 26th day of the second month (April), 1692.

FRANCIS DANIEL PASTORIUS,
Justice of the Peace.

11. III. MARIA ELIZABETH³: b. July, 1677 (?),† at Mulheim, and "died in the eighteenth week of her age."
12. IV. WILLIAM³: b. May 4, 1679, at Mulheim; was brought to America by his parents in the year 1685, and shared the family experiences until of age.

Mr. Jones stated of William: "He no doubt resided with his father at the old mansion in the valley, north-west of the present (1858) Baptist Church, and a short distance from the Ridge Road. In Nov., 1717, his father conveyed to him a large tract of land, being the residue of his Plantation that remained unsold. He carried on the farm thus bestowed upon him, and no doubt had some other occupation. His will shows that his aged father resided with him at the time of his decease. (43)

He was a man of substance in those early days, and was the friend of JOHN SEHLEE, alias, SEELIG, a Hermit, who, tradition says, lived on a part of his farm, in the valley back of the present Leverington Cemetery, and a short distance beyond the dwelling of William Levering⁷.

* This certificate is in possession of Abm. H. Cassel, of Harleysville, Pa., the antiquarian. As his request appear among the witnesses, the old document is of special value to him. I have urged that upon the demise it should be deposited in the archives of the Hist. Society of Pennsylvania. Wigard's gold bible should be there also. Such relics are of more than personal concern. I have seen this certificate. It is written in a plain "hand," upon a comparatively small sheet of paper, which is much discolored by age. Henry Fry was the owner for many years of one hundred acres of land in Raccoonburg, adjoining the tract of like area then owned by Gerhard Levering. The dates of their respective deaths are not known. As appears by the will of her father, Wigard, Anna Catharine was living at the time of its execution, in 1742. In the unproved will of prior date, mentioned, she was recognized as "Catharine, my wife." See biog.

† In the absence of record evidence to disprove the statements of date, made by Wigard in his Register, I will adopt his months or years as proper data.

This Hermit had been a pupil and follower of John Kelpius, a learned and pious scholar, who came from Germany in 1694, and settled on the banks of the beautiful and romantic Wissahickon. What was the precise relation existing between the Hermit Sehlee and Mr. Levering is not known, but it was a very intimate friendship. The death of the Hermit is thus noted in the Levering Family Bible :

“ JOHN SEALY, hermit, died April 26, 1745, aged 77 years.”

His will bears date 17th Sept., 1735, and in it he is described as “ John Sehlee of Roxborough, in the county of Phila., gentleman.” His name is written in English.

He bequeathed the whole of his estate to “ my ffriend William Levering, Senr., of Roxborough,” and appointed him his Executor.

The Inventory of his estate embraced wearing apparel, tools, 1 scale, with gold and silver weights, 5 bibles, 14 books, 10 of Jacob Boehm's books, and 120 Latin, Dutch and Greek books.”

His manifest education and the scales with so delicate weights, suggest that Mr. Sehlee was a remnant of the assumed science of alchemy, which obtained for several centuries, but which faded out in the 17th century.

Mr. Watson, the Annalist, says, there was a tradition concerning Sehlee to the effect that he had a divining rod, which he directed should be cast into water at his death. This was done, and the rod exploded with a loud noise.

William⁸ Levering m. Catharine ——. He died in Aug. or Sept., 1746. He left a will dated 20th Dec., 1744. As this instrument was executed before the death of his father, Wigard, whom he names and makes provision for, also names children and other relations, I can not omit it.

WILL OF WILLIAM LEVERING.

Be it remembered that I, William Levering, of Roxborough, in the County of Philadelphia, Yeoman, being in good Health of Body and of sound and well disposing Mind and Memory, Blessed be the Lord for the same and altho' his Mercies and Favours bestowed on me, and being mindful of my mortality and willing to settle my Worldly Affairs in the best manner I can, DO make and declare my Last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all others in manner following.

That is to say, First it is my mind and will that my just Debts and Funeral expenses be duly paid and satisfied. And I do give and bequeath unto my eldest son William, All that piece of land (Part of my Plantation in Roxborough aforesaid) containing Thirty acres or thereabouts be it more or less, extending from the corner of the Orchard North West to the Upper corner of the same Orchard and thence continuing that Breadth East to Wessahickon, Together with the Appurtenances thereunto belonging. To hold to him my said son William Levering his Heirs and Assigns forever. Paying unto my grand daughter Catharine Engle the sum of Ten pounds within one year next after my Decease.

And as for and concerning all the Rest and Residue of my Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments whatsoever or wheresoever I give and devise the same unto my younger son Benjamin, Together with the Appurtenances, To hold to Him the said Benjamin Levering his Heirs and assigns forever, Under the conditions and Charges hereinafter expressed. That is to say on condition that he or his Heirs pay unto my eldest daughter Amelia the sum of fifteen pounds within one year next after my Decease and unto my Daughter Elizabeth the like sum of Fifteen Pounds within two years next after my Decease and unto my Daughter Magdalen the sum of Twenty Pounds within three years next after my Decease, And I do charge my said son Benjamin and the Lands and premises hereinbefore devised unto him with the maintenance and support of my Dear Father Wichert Levering, providing him my said Father with all necessaries of Life, Comfort and Attendance befitting his age and Condition in a tender Christian like manner. And with the maintenance and support of my Dear and Loving wife Catharine, Providing her my said wife with all necessaries of Life, Comfort and attendance befitting her Condition in a tender Christian like manner. And I do release unto each of my children sons and daughters all moneys and things heretofore given or lent them respectively.

And I do give and bequeath unto my said dear wife Catharine all the residue of my moneys, goods, chattels and credits whatsoever or wheresoever. And I do nominate and appoint my said dear wife Catharine, together with my cousin Jacob Levering, who is my uncle Garret Levering's son, to be the executrix and executor of this my last will and testament.

In witness whereof, I, the said William Levering, have hereunto set my Hand and Seal the twentieth Day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty-four, and I do give unto my daughters Amelia and Elizabeth the further sums of Five pounds apiece to be added to what is before given them, And unto my son Benjamin my clock, with my cart and team of five horses thereto belonging, with their harness.

PAUL ISAAC VOTO, JR.

This will was probated Sept. 10, 1746. The inventory filed amounted to £70.13.6, and included "one servant lad named John Fox," who was appraised at £10.

It will be noticed his "Dear Father Wickert Levering," for whom he made provision in this will, died within sixty days after its execution, and the testator lived for a year and a half after. Further, that his "Executor," Jacob Levering, was a resident of Whitpain Township—since 1731—a dozen or more miles away, but still within the county.

13. V. AMELIA ANNA SOPHIA³: b. July, 1682, at Mulheim; was brought to America by her parents in 1685, as shown in the contract of transportation cited. She married at Roxborough to Benjamin Morgan, a blacksmith, who died in August, 1706. Letters of administration on his estate were granted to the widow on August 19, 1706. The inventory of the estate aggregated £75.09.3, as appraised by Andrew Robeson and William Palmer.

Mr. Jones stated: "I have seen a release dated March 8, 1745-46 from Amelia Morgan to William Levering, Exr. of Wigard Levering, deceased, for a legacy of £10. I think it probable that the shop was near to Robeson's Mills, at the Wissahiccon. Mrs. Morgan d. Feb. 5, 1771, aged 88 years. I have never met with any of her posterity, but am informed that they reside in Whippen and Gwynedd Townships, in Montgomery Co., Pa."

14. VI. ANNA SIBELLA²: b. Sept., 1684, at Mulheim; was brought to America by her parents in the summer of 1685. She m. George Miller, who resided at Chestnut Hill, above Germantown. Mr. Miller died in Nov., 1719. He left a will dated "Sommerhausen, 21st of September, 1719." At the office of Register of Wills in Philadelphia, is recorded "A translation of George Miller's will, the original being writ in Dutch." In the instrument he provides for his "wife Anna Sibella Miller, daughter of Wigard Levering." Mention is also made of "sons and daughters," but none are named. Mrs. Miller was buried at the Concord Burial Ground, near to Chew's House,* Germantown, where on a small headstone is the following inscription: "In Memory of SIBELLA MILLAR, who died August 17th, 1764, aged 80 years. (48)
15. VII. HERMAN: b. at Germantown, Pa., Nov. 18, 1686, and d. May, 1691.
16. VIII. ELIZABETH³: b. at Germantown Jan. 7, 1689; d. Sept., 1703, at 14 years. It is probable that she was the first Levering buried at Roxborough, in what is now the "Levcrington Cemetery."
17. IX. SIDONIA⁴: b. April 23, 1691; bore the euphonious name of her grandam. She m. Peter Indehaven, or De Haven, as subsequently called—originally Inden Hoff.

* It was at Chew's House—a large stone dwelling, which is still well preserved—that the brunt of the battle of Germantown was fought in 1777, and this cemetery was a scene of the conflict.

In 1698 Evert Inden Hoff, with wife and three sons, Gerhard, Herman and PETER came to America and settled in VanBebber Tp., afterward called Skippack, in Philadelphia County. In 1706 Evert acquired 200 acres of land. They were members of the Reformed Church; the father a "Ruling Elder" at Skippack Church, where he was buried after decease. The burial ground has been neglected and obliterated, and no record can be found. About 1730 Evert sold a part of his land to his son Peter. I have already mentioned the latter as an owner of land in Whitpain, adjoining the tracts purchased by Gerhard Levering for his three sons in 1731.

That Wigard Levering in his Will, dated 23d of August, 1742, bequeathed "unto my son-in-law Peter Indehaven, ye sum of tenn pounds," suggests the death of Sidonia prior to the date of the instrument.

Hon. Jones Detwiler, of Whitpain, in letter of Aug. 1, 1892 wrote me: "Peter De Haven died May 23, 1768, aged 82 years, and was buried in the old churchyard of Boehm's Church in Whitpain Tp." There is no doubt that Sidonia was interred in the same spot. The church was founded in 1740. Mr. Detwiler subsequently wrote me. In the month of May, 1894, "I have received a visit from Baron Van Alten, a German nobleman, who came to this country to look after an estate of his wife, who was a De Haven. He gave me information, viz.: Peter Inden Hoff (alias Ten Heaven; Inden Hoffen; Hoven; De Haven), born and baptised at Mulheim, on the Rhur, in Germany; married Sidonia Levering; born April 23, 1691, and had twelve children, whom he named. He afterwards married Sarah Hughes.

[Mrs. A. M. Holstein, in her Holstein Family History, 1892, states that Peter and Sarah (Hughes) De Haven, had an only son, Hugh, born 1750 who married Sarah Holstein in 1775.]

18. X. JACOB³: b. Jan. 21, 1693, at Roxborough, which has become a part of the 21st ward of the city of Philadelphia. He was probably the first of the family name born in the place. He married Alice, or Alce, Tunes. (61)

On February 20, 1717, his father conveyed to him 85 acres of land upon which he settled. The tract bordered upon the river Schuylkill, and embraced a large part of what since became the borough of Manayunk, and subsequently a ward of the city. The area comprised all between Washington and Levering Streets as now subdivided. Jacob lived in, probably, a log house in the meadow on the easterly side of Green Lane until 1736, when he built a stone house on the westerly side of this street. The date stone—which was an ostentatious embellishment in the architecture of those days—bears his initials, and is still preserved. His great grandson, Peregrine Wharton Levering, during his lifetime and occupancy of the premises, enlarged the structure. Since his death, which occurred in 1888, his unmarried daughter, Eliza, demolished the old mansion and (in 1890) erected a modern dwelling upon the site. Ever since Feb. 29, 1691, when Wigard purchased the land of Thomas Hill, it has been owned by some Levering, and since 1736, has the occupant of the dwelling site, ancient and modern, born the family name.

Jacob owned, also, a considerable estate on the opposite side of the Schuylkill, now in Lower Merion Township, in Montg. Co. This remained in family succession to and including his great-grandson John Levering⁶, who died in 1878.

His wife Alice died, as evidenced by documents, between the dates of Jan. 15, 1750, and March 24, 1753, and he followed in October, 1753. He left a considerable estate. The inventory of personalty alone amounted to £594.01.

His will is dated December 22, 1752. In this he describes himself as Jacob Levering, of Roxborrow Township, in the county of Philada., Joyner. After providing for the payment of any debts and funeral expenses, he bequeaths:

To his " Daughter Magdalen, who is married to Samuel Showler, and to her heirs or assigns my Negro girl called Peg.

To his " Three eldest sons, Abraham, Wigard and William Levering, and to each of them, the sum of five pounds, money of Pensilvania, apiece."

To his " son Jacob Levering twenty-four acres of land in Roxborrow Township aforesaid between the Plymouth Road (now Ridge Avenue) and Schullkill," as described, "and the sum of Ninety Pounds Lawful Money," etc.

To his "son Anthony Levering all my Land in Merion Township, in the county aforesaid (then Philad.) by computation fifteen acres, together with the Saw Mill, Buildings, and timber Wheels, thereunto belonging," etc.

To his "son Benjamin Levering, twenty-four acres of land along the side of the beforementioned piece given to my son Jacob"—described—"and the sum of one hundred and thirty pounds money aforesaid."

To his "youngest son Septimus Levering, All that tract of land whereon I live, Together with all the Improvements and buildings thereon erected"; also, sundry articles of personal property, as listed, to which he adds, "and my Negro boy called Kit," and—

Lastly. I do nominate and appoint my sons Abraham Levering and Septimus Levering to be my whole and sole Executors, giving them full power and authority to sell and dispose of all my other Land or Lands, Ground Rents, whatsoever, etc., and to Sign, Seal and Deliver any Deed or writing of confirmation for the same as absolute and fully as if I myself were Personally Present."

And with the usual afterthought, he adds, "It is my will that my Executors Pay the sum of Ten Pounds above mentioned (?) to my above-named Daughter Magdalen, and that my son William shall have my large Iron Kettle which I have long since also promised to him, before my estate be divided as above."

This will was proved October 22, 1753. Among the articles listed in the inventory of the estate were "A large Bible in the Germain tongue," appraised at £1.10, and "A large Dutch Bible," appraised at £0.15, and other books.

Mr. Jones states: "None of these books can now be found." As the first bible was in German, and appraised at the precise valuation affixed in the inventory of his father's estate but a few years before, I believe this to have been Wigard Levering's old volume, which was handed down in the line of Jacob to Mrs. Kirk, before named.

19. XI. MAGDALENA²: b. Jan. 13, 1695, at Roxborough, and d. when three weeks old.

20. XII. MAGDALENA²: b. June 4, 1696, at Roxborough. She married William Tunes, alias Tennis. She died prior to May 10, 1736, as she is mentioned in the first will of her father, Wigard, as deceased. Mr. Jones states: "A Release, dated Feb. 13, 1751, recites that 'Samuel Tennis and John Tennis, grandsons of Wichert Levering,' had received the Legacy of Ten Pounds bequeathed by Wichert Levering to his son-in-law, William Tennis. They are described as 'of Towamencin Township, in the County of Philadelphia. Nothing further has been discovered of her posterity.'"

It will be observed in this volume that I have discovered and gathered numerous descendents to Samuel and other children to Magdalena. (69)

Children of (3) Eberhard² and Mechtold (Schmulling) Levering.

21. I. HERMANN OTTO³: b. in 1678, at Gemen, Germany.
 22. II. ANNA MARGARETTA GERDRUT³: b. April, 1680, at Gemen, Germany.
 23. III. ROSIER WENSALL³: b. Oct., 1681, at Gemen, Germany.

 34. V. IAN DANIEL³: b. Oct., 1696, at Gemen.
 35. VI. CHARLOTTE MEIDA³: b. Sept., 1698, at Gemen.

As Gerhard² came to America, and had numerous posterity, his children are listed in their place.

FOURTH GENERATION.

Children of (9) Anna Catharine³ (Levering) and Heinrich Frey.

36. I. JACOB⁴: b. about 1694, in Roxborough, Philad. Co., Pa.; was removed by his parents, before 1709, to Towamencin Tp. in westerly part of Philad. (now Montgomery) County, where his life was spent. The last will of Jacob Frey, of Towamencin, dated Feb. 28, 1782, was proved Jan. 7, 1785, at Norristown, county seat of the then new county of Montgomery. In his will he gives to his wife, Margaret, the household goods, and directs all other personal estate to be sold and distribution made between "all my children, viz.: Jacob, Joseph, George, William and Henry." His farm of about 200 acres (probably the original homestead), he divided, one-half to Jacob, one-fourth to George and one-fourth to Joseph, and then made provision for equalization. (73)

The date of probate of his will indicates an age of 90 years. He was, doubtless, buried in the old Frey graveyard.

37. II. HENRY⁴: m. Christiana —. Mr. Heckler states: "Henry Fry and wife, Christiana, lived in the north corner of Towamencin Tp. He built a woolen mill on a small stream, which was disposed of and the mill taken down in the early part of this century. The remains of the dam and race are still (1896) visible. After selling, he bought a farm, June 10, 1763, in Lower Salford Tp. This he sold, Sept. 10, 1769, and no further trace is found."

38. III. JOHN⁴: m. a Miss Keisler. There is record evidence that John Frey lived in Franconia Tp., Montg. Co., in 1734, and died there Oct. 23, 1766; was buried in the Mennonite Cemetery. (78)

39. IV. GEORGE⁴: nothing is known of him. His signature is appended as a witness to the written agreement between his parents and brother Jacob and sisters, dated October 12, 1732, as copied into the biography of Heinrich Frey.

40. V. ELIZABETH⁴: m. prior to Aug. 18, 1735, to Johannes Müller. See biog. of her father.

41. VI. REBECCA¹: Unmarried in Oct., 1732. Her history not known.
42. VII. AMELIA²: b. July 1, 1719, at Skippack, in (then) Philad. Co., Pa.; m. June 10, 1737, to Frederick Leinbach, of Oley, Berks Co., Pa., tailor and farmer, who was b. July 15, 1703, at Hockstadt, in the Wetteran, who, with two brothers and two sisters, arrived in Pennsylvania on Sept. 11, 1723, with their father, John Leinbach, Sr. (organist), and his wife, Anna Elizabeth, who was a dau. of Adam Kleiss.

Amelia² was baptized by Count Zinzendorf (then a bishop), at Germantown, Philad., May 6, 1842—nearly five years after her marriage—thereby becoming related to the Moravian Church. She was the mother of seventeen children, as will appear in place. With nine sons she contributed her share to creating what has been called "the immense family of Leinbachs" of Penna., N. Car. and other localities. (88)

The recent (Nov., 1895) discovery of these family records in the old Moravian Church archives at Oley, Berks Co., Pa., by Bishop Levering, of Bethlehem, Pa., appears to explain the absence of local record information at Roxborough, of Anna Catharine³ (dau. of Wigard Levering), and her husband, Henry Frey, after their marriage, at Germantown, on April (O. S.) 26, 1692. The birth of Amelia² at Skippack, 27 years after, suggests continued residence there of the family.

The records of Oley, referred to, names Elizabeth as having married to Frederick Leinbach, but Abraham H. Cassel, the antiquarian, of Harleysville, Montg. Co., Pa., has legal documents of that period, signed by the parties, which show that Amelia married Mr. Leinbach and Elizabeth married Johannes Miller. Mr. Cassel, who is well informed as to Henrich Frey, states that he "had nine children by Anna Catharine, six sons and three daughters; that four of the sons settled in Virginia, Jacob and John remained in Penna."

As appears above, Henry also remained.

[NOTE.—The apparent neglect of family registers by the early descendants of Anna Catharine³ and Heinrich Frey creates a doubt as to the numerical arrangement of the generations. The genealogical information I have gathered came from various sources.

While to each contributor the data sent appeared reliable, I find it difficult to relate persons named. The poverty of dates which characterizes the early lists renders family classification uncertain.

Abraham H. Cassel—the well-known antiquarian—more than any other, has made effort to learn of Heinrich Frey, as the earliest pioneer of Germantown, Philad. Mr. C. has collected a number of legal documents relating to the family, from which much has been gleaned and confirmed, as the names of children, whom some of them married, etc. A biographical sketch of Heinrich Frey, in this volume, contains matter of interest.

We have evidence that Anna Catharine³ married Heinrich Frey, in April, 1692. It is fair to assume that their first child, said to have been Jacob⁴, was born in 1694. Another son, John⁴, was probably born about the year 1700. I am informed that he married a Miss Keisler; that they had nine children: the first listed being Jacob⁵, b. Sept. 23, 1780. This indicates the father as 80 years old at the time of his birth, and suggests an intervening stirp.

James Y. Heckler, historian of the locality embracing Frey's descendants, finds record evidence of some early members of the family. He writes me: "A John Fry (no doubt a son of Heinrich) lived in Franconia Tp., Montg. Co., Pa., in 1734, and d. Oct. 23, 1766. He had a son William, b. in 1724 (d. 1811), who had a son John, b. 1762 and d. 1846. A preserved docket of Esquire Michael Croll, of that time records the marriage of Elizabeth Fry, on Aug. 14, 1787, to Jacob Dehaven. (She died about 1850. No chn.) Also the marriage of Anna Fry, on Mch. 31, 1789, to Jacob Freed." These names do not appear among data furnished me. Mr. Heckler adds: "Many of us old settlers knew Betty Dehaven 50 years ago. At that time there were several Fry families living near to Evansburg, but all are gone now." It is matter for regret that Mr. Jones—who was collecting family history at that time—did not extend his inquiry for posterity of Anna Catharine³. As no family records can be found, the trail is lost. The repetition of names, or "naming after," in the absence of dates, renders recognition almost impossible. Every family had a JACOB. "There were so many," says Mr. Heckler, "that other designations were resorted to, as big Jacob, little Jacob, old Jacob, smith Jacob, mason Jacob, farmer Jacob, carpenter Jacob, etc."

Notwithstanding the suspected loss of a generation corresponding with grandchildren of Anna Catharine³, the subsequent generations classified herein appear to correspond in birth dates with the same generations of other branches of Wigard's posterity.]

Children of (12) William³ and Catharine Levering.

43. I. WILLIAM⁴: b. Aug., 1705, at Roxb.; m. May 4, 1732, Mrs. Hannah Clemens, whose maiden name was Harden. She was an English lady. (105)

William was a considerable land owner and a citizen of active enterprise. He built the first Inn or Tavern, as called in those days, in Roxborough. The date stone is inscribed, "Built by William and Hannah Levering, 1731; Rebuilt by Nathan and Sarah Levering, 1784." It is a large stone building, on Ridge Avenue, a short distance above the intersection of Green Lane. It once bore the sign of "The Tun," and was changed to "The Wagon and Horses," but at present and for more than half a century has been known as "The Leverington Hotel."

On the opposite side of Ridge Avenue, some distance below Green Lane, stands what used to be known as the Roxborough School House, which was founded by William Levering in 1748, and rebuilt, 1795. It is a substantial stone structure, now modernized, and known as "The Levering Primary School," in distinction from "The Levering Grammar School," a recently built, imposing structure, which stands a few squares apart. As they are within the city of Philadelphia, they are under municipal control.

Mrs. Elvira Levering Cartwright (nee Holgate) recently deceased, carefully preserved the surveyor's plat of the survey of the school house site as donated by William. It is designated, in flourishing penmanship, viz.: "Draught of the school house lott of 20 perches of land, scituate in Roxborro, given by Wm. Levering for ye use of a school, survey^d March Anno Domⁱ 1748." The deed by William and Hannah, his wife, dated April 1, 1748, conveyed "for and in consideration of the love and regard they have and bear for the public good in having a school kept in their neighborhood" the land to Jacob Levering, Michael Righter, Benjamin Levering, Abraham Levering, Wickard Levering, John Houlgate and five other trustees named. By a deed of same donor, dated March 30, 1771, a considerable area was gratuitously added.

The landed estate of William had increased at the time of his death to about 250 acres. He d. Mch. 30, 1774. His wife d. May 23, 1768, aged 59 years. They were buried in the Leverington Cemetery, near to their lifetime home.

The Leverington Hotel remained in the family name until March, 1858—a period of 126 years—when it was sold into stranger hands.

44. II. AMELIA¹: b. about 1708, at Roxb.; m. M^ci. 22, 1722, at Abington Friends Meeting, to Abraham Shoemaker, of Bristol Township, in Philad. Co., who was b. June 15, 1697, and d. in Oct., 1753. His will, dated Sept. 21, 1753, was proved at Philad. on Oct. 11, 1753. He left a considerable estate. He owned about 260 acres of land, which he devised to his children. She died Feb. 7, 1762, and was buried in the "Shoemaker graveyard." (114)

I have had some correspondence with Mr. Benjamin H. Shoemaker, of Philad., in relation to this family. He informed me that this Abraham Shoemaker married a LIVEZEY (not a Levering), as shown by the records of the old Abington Mo. Meeting. While pursuing an investigation, I discovered among some papers given me by Hon. H. G. Jones, a document, brown with age, which reads:

"To all People to whom these presents shall come: Abraham Shoemaker of y^e County of Philadelphia, mason and Amelia, his wife, one of the Daughters of William Levering late of Roxborrow in y^e County af^d Yeoman, deceased, send greeting.

Whereas the s^d William Levering by his Last Will and Testament bearing date the 20th of December A^o Dⁱ 1744, Devised certain lands Tenements and Hereditaments unto his son Benjamin Levering, subject (among other things) to the payment of y^e sum of twenty Pounds to the af^l Amelia, a Legacy thereby bequeathed her. Now know yee that y^e said Abraham Shoemaker and Amelia his wife do hereby acknowledge to have this day received of the s^d Benj^m Levering the said sum of twenty Pounds. And Therefore do thereof hereby acquit and forever discharge the s^d Benjamin Levering, his heirs Exec^s and admts, and y^e premises charged therewith.

In Witness Whereof they the said Abraham Shoemaker and Amelia bis wife have hereunto put their hands and Seals the twenty sixth day of October in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty seven.

ABRAHAM SHOEMAKER. (wax

AMELEY SHOEMAKER. seals)

Sealed and Delivered, ye words (certain lands) being first interlined in the presence of us.

HANS BUCHER (in German).

PATRICK HASE.

I sent this instrument to Mr. Shoemaker, who acknowledged it (Feb. 2, 1806) as "fixing absolutely the parentage of Abraham Shoemaker's wife," and his descent from a Levering; but, asking with apparent concern, "What of the record of Abington Meeting?" I must answer: it is not the first erroneous church record which I have met with. P. S. I have since (Aug., 1806,) been informed that the earliest of this "Meeting" record was written from memory.

45. III. ELIZABETH¹: b. about 1712 at Roxb.; m. John Cleaver, of Philad. County, who was a weaver, as shown by a paper dated Sept. 6, 1748. Nothing is known of her posterity.

46. IV. MAGDALENA¹: b. about 1715 at Roxb.; m. Matthias Maris, of Germantown, who was a paper-maker. He had a mill on the Wissahickon Creek, and died there on May 19, 1747, leaving a will dated Dec. 28, 1746.

Mr. Jones states: "The name is often spelled Meuris. Mrs. M., after her husband's death, went to Philad. with her children, and subsequently removed to Roxborough, to the old (Wigard's) homstead, west of the Baptist Church. She was known among her relatives as 'Aunt Madeline,' or 'Aunt Maudlin.'" (120)

47. V. BENJAMIN¹: b. about 1723 at Roxb.; m. Aug. 22, 1745, in Christ's Church, Philad., to Elizabeth Jones, of the Great Valley, Chester Co., Pa. He lived in Roxb. on the southerly side of the Ridge Road—now Ridge Avenue—in a stone dwelling that stood in a field, nearly opposite the Leverington Hotel. He was a saddler. (123)

A preserved instrument of lease, dated Feb. 7, 1745, Mr. Jones states, was (1858) in possession of Mr. Shields, of Manayunk. By it the father, William³ Levering, leased to Benjamin 150 acres of land in Roxborough, but reserved "the dwelling house of the said William, and the cellar therein, and all rooms in the said house, at the garret therein, and the garden before and near the said house, and a part of the yard southwestward of the said house, and sufficient stabling for one horse, two cows and six sheep, and all the yard between the said dwelling house and the garden, to and for the use of the said William Levering, during his life. This property was subsequently bequeathed to Benjamin, and charged with the support of the aged Wigart Levering*, the grandfather of Benjamin. The inference, therefore, is that William³ was living there, and that there he, his father, Wigard, died. Hence some have supposed that that was the first residence of Wigard, but the older tradition is that he first lived near to the present (1858) Baptist Church. The query has often been asked, Why was Benjamin Levering's house built so far back in the field? The reply has been that the Ridge Road formerly passed close by that house, and entered the present road (1858) below the house of Abraham Shalkop.

Benjamin died Mch. 17, 1763, and was interred in Leverington Cemetery. Relating to the settlement of his estate, which appears to have been delayed for a long time, Mrs. Kate Levering Bradshaw has an original, official relic, which reads as follows:

“PHILADELPHIA, October 22, 1770.

SIR—You are hereby summoned to meet me at the house of William Levering, in Roxborough Township, on Thursday, the twenty-fifth day of October, instant, at eight o'clock in the morning (if the weather permits, otherwise on Monday, the twenty-ninth day of October, instant, at the aforesaid hour), as a juryman for the partition or valuation of the estate, late of Benjamin Levering, dec'd.

JUDAH FOULKE, Sheriff.

To MR. NICHOLAS RITTENHOUSE.

Children of (14) Anna Sibella³ (Levering) and George Miller.

48. 1. WIGARD⁴: b. in 1714, at Sommerhausen, one of the original tracts into which the township of Germantown was divided, and afterward known as Chestnut Hill. He m. Barbara ———, who d. March 23, 1747-48, aged 26 years. He m. 2d Christiana Hesser, who d. Feb. 4, 1824, aged 73 years. He d. Oct. 4, 1795. He left a will dated March 5, 1795. He was a blacksmith and had considerable property. He donated means for a public school, and gave a legacy to St. Michael's Lutheran Church of Germantown, of which he was a member, and in whose grounds he was buried. (128)

* There appears error, or discrepancy of date in this statement, as Wigard died five days before the date of lease noted, and a "subsequent" bequest, widens the breach.

In this connection Mr. Jones states: "There were, doubtless, a number of children, as the will of Mr. Miller mentions sons and daughters, but I have not been able to discover any exact record."

Children of (17) Sidonia (Levering) and Peter DeHaven.

49. I. EDWARD¹: cordwainer; 6 children; 50 acres; 2 horses; 5 sheep; 3 cattle.
50. II. WILLIAM¹: farmer; 50 acres; 2 horses, etc.; m. Hannah ——. They had a daughter named Phoebe; all are dead and buried at Boehm Churchyard.
51. III. MODLIN¹:
52. IV. JOHN¹: died young.
53. V. PETER¹: farmer; three chn.; 40 acres, etc.
54. VI. ELIZABETH¹:
55. VII. SAMUEL¹: b. in 1725; m. Susanna Spaulding; 7 chn.; 50 acres; d. Feb. 10, 1815.
56. VIII. GERHARD¹:
57. IX. MARY¹:
58. X. JOHN¹: farmer; 4 chn.; 100 acres; horses, etc.
59. XI. JACOB¹:
60. XII. ABRAHAM¹:

As stated elsewhere, the names of these children were made known in 1804 by Baron Van Alten, of Germany, whose wife was a DeHaven. The list was manifestly furnished to the relatives in the old country.

The data, as to children, area of lands, horses, etc., are taken from a preserved Whitpain township assessor's record of 1760-61, by Hon. Jones Detwiler. Such lists usually note only the number of children at home.

In this connection I repeat my regret because of the loss of the earliest records of old Boehm Church, of which Peter DeHaven was a constituent member and one of the pillars.

Children of (18) Jacob³ and Alice (Tues) Levering.

61. I. MAGDALENA¹: b. about 1716, in Roxb.; m. Sept. 27, 1740, Samuel Showler. They removed to Lancaster County, Pa., where he died prior to 1809. It is not known when Mrs. L. died. (135)
62. II. ABRAHAM¹: b. in May, 1717, on Green Lane, in Roxb.; m. Nov. 14, 1745, Anna Thomas, who was born in 1726. She was a daughter of Griffith and Margaret Thomas, who came from Carmarthenshire, in Wales, and was a cousin of the great hymnologist, Rev. Isaac Watts, D. D. (140)

Both he and his wife were notably pious persons. The records of the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia, which is now (1894) situated on the northwest corner of Arch and Fourteenth (Broad) Streets, show that both Abraham and Anna Levering were baptised in the river Schuylkill, on September 11, 1756. Subsequently they became constituent members of the Roxborough Baptist Church, which was organized August 23, 1789, and he was made the first Deacon, having been chosen to that office on March 27, 1791. Until that time, since the organization, the pastor or supply officiated in the service of communion.

The office of Deacon in this church has been continued in his family to this time. His son, John Levering⁵, was chosen on Dec. 22, 1792; his son Anthony⁵ on Sept. 22, 1800; his grandson, Peregrine W.⁶, on Aug. 18, 1832; his great grandson, Anthony D.⁷, on June 15, 1851; his grandson, Enoch⁶, on Jan. 22, 1866. While of his immediate relations, descending from brothers, Charles⁶ was chosen on March 24, 1821; Thomas⁶, on May 27, 1837; George B.⁷, on Feb. 16, 1874, and Morris⁷, on Jan. 7, 1884.*

Mr. Jones states of Abraham¹: In early life he lived on the Ridge Road, below the 6-mile stone (measured from Second and Market Street), where, about the year 1746, he built a large stone house upon land adjoining that of his brother Wigard, and opposite to that of his brother Jacob.

* The church, as first constituted, consisted of 32 members, of whom 11 were Leverings and 2 were married women who had borne the name. The old "meeting house," as first erected in 1793, stood in the midst of the present Leverington Cemetery. The approach from Ridge Avenue was between two long lines of Lombardy Poplar trees, while the building was surrounded by large Elms. These were consumed by fire, which destroyed the building. It was rebuilt in 1830, and like destruction compelled a third building in 1870, which also followed in flames in April, 1876. This third loss determined the congregation to remove to a new site, which was selected close against Ridge Avenue, a few rods east of the entrance gate to the long-used location.

During his later years he lived on Green Lane, at the old homestead of his father. Before a meeting house was built in Roxborough his dwelling was often used as a preaching place. He was a constant attendant at church, and usually carried a large cane. He had a peculiar dislike for dogs in the meeting house, hence, whenever he found one there he caned it out.

Mrs. Levering died Aug. 1, 1799. He survived her several years. At the time of his death, which occurred on Oct. 31, 1804, he was a venerable looking man with white, flowing locks.

His estate embraced a large tract of land, upon which a part of Manayunk is now built. His will, dated Aug. 20, 1798, was proved in Philadelphia on Dec. 15, 1804. Both were interred in Leverington Cemetery.

63. III. WIGARD⁴, or WECHARD⁴: b. in 1719 at Roxb. He was m. twice. His first wife was Elizabeth Sturges, who died. His second, Elizabeth ———. She also died, in Oct., 1813, aged 81 years, and is buried in Lev. Cem. She left a will, dated August 13, 1812, which was proved at Norristown, Oct. 12, 1813. (148)

Mr. Jones states: "He owned several tracts of land in Roxborough. One contained 88 acres, which he bought in 1753, and which he sold in parcels to various persons. Several of the deeds for this land, signed by Wechard and his wife, I have seen. To recover this land one of his grandsons brought an action of ejectment in the year 1854 and another in 1857. He also owned a farm on the northerly side of the Ridge Road, at the corner of Hermit's Lane, and on it erected a large stone house similar to that of his brother Abraham. The date stone marked W.L., 1742, is now in possession of Enoch⁶ Levering, who uses it as a back to his fireplace in order to keep it safe. Having sold all his lands in Roxborough, Wechard removed to Plymouth Township (then in Philad., now in) Montgomery Co., where he bought a large tract of land," etc.

The farm at the "corner of Hermit's Lane" Wechard sold and transferred to his nephew, John⁵ Levering, who lived in the house described, and died there July 28, 1832. His son Enoch⁶ succeeded to the ownership, and lived in the premises until he died, in June, 1775, aged 79½ years. All the children of John⁵, from the year 1778 to 1795, including Enoch⁶, were born in this house. It is now numbered 3905 Ridge Avenue, Philad., being north of 3900th Street, formerly Hermit Street. It is still (1894) occupied by Sophia, widow of Enoch, and their unmarried daughter Sarah⁷ S., who will succeed to the title, by provision of the will of her father, on the death of her mother, who is now 86 years old.

During February, 1884, I again visited the old homestead, and slept in the room where "all the children"—including my father Abraham⁶—were born. Since the death of Enoch the house has been enlarged and much improved. The old "date stone," referred to by Mr. Jones, is still preserved in an upper room (not "fire-place"). It is of hard soapstone, measures 16 by 24 inches, and is 4 inches thick. It is carved distinctly with sunken letters and ornamental scroll work. The inscription is W L, 1843 (not 2, as Mr. Jones notes).

Wechard died July 6, 1782, and was buried in Lev. Cem. His will, on record in Philadelphia, is dated May 24, 1782, and was proved July 22, 1782. His signature to this will is written WECHARD Levering, a corruption of Wigard, and spelled as his pronunciation sounded.

64. IV. WILLIAM⁴: b. at Roxb. in 1721; m. May 16, 1751, by Rev. Peter Peterson Vanhorn, a Baptist minister, to Margaret Lohrmann, who was born May 23, 1729, in Schweigen. Publication of the marriage was made at the Lower Dublin Baptist Church, at Philadelphia, as shown by the original certificate of marriage, which was preserved by (333) Abraham Levering⁶. It bears the signatures of the following Leverings: Elizabeth Levering, Jacob Levering, Hannah Levering, Anthony Levering, Benjamin Levering, Septimus Levering, Jacob Levering, Alice Levering, Abraham Levering, Anna Levering, Wechard Levering and Elizabeth Levering.

Mr. Levering d. Nov. 7, 1785, and Mrs. L. d. Nov. 18, 1805, aged 79 years. Both are interred in Lev. Cem.

They had no children. He left a will dated Aug. 8, 1785, which was proved at Norristown, Montgomery Co., Pa., on Nov. 16, 1785. He gave a Legacy of "Thirty pounds to poor and distressed persons of the Methodist Society," and bequeathed the residue of his estate among his Brothers and sisters and their children. His widow, Margaret, left a will dated in 1802, which was proven in Court at Norristown on Dec. 11, 1805.

It is known that they resided at Plymouth. Their removal to that part of the County was made subsequent to their marriage, as indicated by their certificate of marriage having occurred in Philad.

65. V. JACOB⁴: b. about 1723, in Roxb.; m. Elizabeth —. He d. prior to 1807. Mr. Jones says of him: "He built, in 1753, a house on the tract of land devised to him by his father, situated on the south side of the Ridge Road; it is now (1858) owned and occupied by Charles Righter. Among the witnesses to his brother William's marriage were Elizabeth and Jacob Levering, and I hence infer that they were this Jacob and his wife. I think he afterwards resided in Philadelphia." (160)

66. VI. ANTHONY⁴: b. at Roxb. about 1725; m. Dec. 12, 1751, Agnes Tums. The original marriage certificate, which was preserved by his grandson, John Levering⁶, states that the marriage ceremony was performed by Joseph Bonsall, a Justice of the Peace, for the County of Chester. The witnesses, whose signatures appear upon the certificate, embrace Jacob Levering, Benjamin Levering, Septimus Levering, Elizabeth Levering and Hannah Levering. He inherited from his father a tract of land and a saw-mill in Lower Merion, opposite Manayunk. He died in 1788. He left a will dated Feb. 25, 1787, which was proven in Court at Norristown, Mch. 26, 1788. He and his wife were buried at Merion Friends Meeting grounds. (163)

67. VII. BENJAMIN⁴: b. at Roxb. Sept. 15, 1728; m. Apl. 2, 1854, at Swede's Church, Philad., to Catharine Righter. Mr. Jones states: "He resided on the Ridge Road, opposite Samuel Gorgas. The farm where he lived was once owned by John Bald. There was a two-story log house, which was pulled down years ago. A stone house was also on the place, and that was pulled down in 1857. He d. Feb. 25, 1804. Mrs. L. d. Nov. 14, 1808, aged 76 years. Both are interred at Lev. Cem. (172)

68. VIII. SEPTIMUS⁴: b. at Roxb. about 1731. His Christian name was given him because he was the seventh son. He m. Mary Thomas. He inherited the old homestead on Green Lane, Roxborough, which was subsequently owned by Peregrine W. Levering⁶, and now (1894) by Eliza⁷, daughter of the latter. Both were baptised June 25, 1757, as members of the Great Valley Baptist Church, in Chester Co., and were dismissed to the Philad. Church July 1, 1761, indicating removal into the city at that time. He became a Deacon of the church Sept. 7, 1761, but resigned Oct. 5, 1765. The Minutes of the Church for Feb. 6, 1775, state: "Our Bro. Septimus Levering, intending to go to Virginia, has requested a Letter of Recommendation, which the Church agree he shall have." He removed to Loudon Co., Va. It is not known when or where he died. Mrs. Levering d. June 16, 1794, aged 64 years, and was buried at Lev. Cem. As her monumental stone describes her as "widow of Septimus Levering," he d. earlier.

Pierre de Simitiere's Mss. in Penna. Library, states: "Septimus Levering was one of the few persons who kept a carriage in Philadelphia in the latter part of the eighteenth century." (179)

Children of (20) Magdalena³ (Levering) and William Tennis.

69. I. JOHN⁴: died in early manhood, as appears.
70. II. SAMUEL⁴: m. — Morgan; d. in March, 1803, in Towamencin Tp. He left a will dated Nov. 27, 1802, in which he describes himself as a "yeoman, advanced in years." The will was proved at Norristown, Pa., Apl. 5, 1803. The bequests made to children and grand children indicate a considerable estate, both real and personal. The names of these beneficiaries furnished me clues to his descendants. (184)
71. III. ANTHONY⁴:

72. IV. ABRAHAM⁴

The son of Wigard³ Levering bequeathed "unto my son-in-law William Lenns," a sum of money for which "Samuel Lenns and John Lenns, grandsons of Wigard Levering," executed Dec. 13, 1751, which suggests the descent of their father prior to that date. The sons were doubtless born after 1720. Why they changed the spelling of their surname is not known. They lived in Lower Merion Township, in Philadelphia County, which, in 1784, became a part of Montgomery County, Pa.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Children of (36) Jacob¹ and Margaret (—) Fry.

73. I. JACOB: b. Oct. 5, 1756; m. Margaret Springer, who was b. Oct. 31, 1768, and d. Dec. 22, 1835. He d. Feb. 26, 1844. (191)
74. II. JOSEPH: b. about 1760; m. Susanna Godshalk. He left a will, dated Aug. 3, 1793, which was proved at Norristown, Pa., Sept. 6, 1793, suggesting his death between dates. His widow subsequently married Samuel Williams. (198)
75. III. GEORGE²: b. May 12, 1765; m. Margaret Bean, who was b. Aug. 6, 1775, and d. Aug. 21, 1855. He d. Jan. 22, 1853; was buried at Memnonite Graveyard at Skippack, Pa. (201)
76. IV. WILLIAM: b. about 1767; d. unmd.
77. V. HENRY (M. D.): m. Elizabeth Shoenberger. He d. about 1848; was buried in the old Fry graveyard at Skippack, Pa. Historian Heckler wrote me of him: "I remember Dr. Henry Fry. I believe he was the father of Dr. George Fry. The Frys had a preventive and cure for hydrophobia, which was a secret in the family, handed down from one generation to another. Dr. Henry experimented with electricity in early days." (207)

Hon. Louis M. Childs, of Norristown, Pa., wrote of him: "He was famous for many years as the only person who could cure the effect of a bite by a rabid dog." I am informed that the specific is still known to a favored inheritor in the family.

Children of (38) John⁴ and ——— (Keisler) Fry.

78. I. JACOB⁵: b. Sept. 23, 1780; m. Elizabeth Beard, who was b. Jan. 30, 1778, and d. March 1, 1825. He d. April 10, 1852. (210)
80. II. HENRY⁵: lived in Chester Co., Pa.
81. III. JOHN⁵: lived at Essecks, Montg. Co., Pa.
82. IV. JOSEPH⁵: m. Mary Getty; lived at Trappe, Montg. Co.
83. V. AMOS⁵: lived at Pottstown, Montg. Co.
84. VI. POLLY⁵: m. George Girstock.
85. VII. ANNA⁵: m. James Miller.
86. VIII. HANNAH⁵: m. John Dismant.
87. IX. BETSY⁵: m. George Erb.

(Children of (42) Amelia⁴ (Frèy) and Frederick Leinbach.

88. I. JOHN⁵: b. in 1738; d. Jan. 10, 1746.
89. II. HENRY⁵: b. Feb. 2, 1739
90. III. JACOB⁵: b. April 2, 1740.
91. IV. BENJAMIN⁵: b. Sept. 20, 1741.
92. V. ELIZABETH⁵: b. April 7, 1743.
93. VI. ANNA⁵: b. Jan. 11, 1745.
94. VII. JOHANNA⁵: b. Feb. 9, 1746.
95. VIII. STILLBORN⁵: b. June 17, 1747.
96. IX. JOSEPH⁵: b. Aug. 25, 1748.
97. X. MARIA⁵: b. March 3, 1750.
98. XI. MAGDALENA⁵: b. Aug. 11, 1751.
99. XII. JOHN⁵: b. June 21, 1753.
100. XIII. ROSINA⁵: b. March 9, 1755.
101. XIV. CATHARINA⁵: b. Jan. 8, 1757.
102. XV. FREDERICK⁵: } b. March 23, 1760.
103. XVI. DANIEL⁵: }
104. XVII. SAMUEL⁵: b. July 25, 1762.

All were born at Oley, Berks Co., Pa., as shown by records of the old Moravian Church at that place.

Children of (43) William' and Hannah (Clemens) Levering.

105. I. ELIZABETH: b. Dec. 12, 1732, at Roxb., where she m. John Hinkle. Their subsequent history is not known, though some old family bible may be hiding valuable genealogical information. They had a son named WILLIAM', who was referred to in the will of his grandfather; also a son Anthony, who was recorded by Mr. Jones, in his compilation, as a son of William; he was, in fact, a brother. (217)
106. II. WILLIAM: b. Jan. 8, 1734, at Roxb.; m. May 17, 1759, Martha Daves. From their marriage certificate, which was preserved by their granddaughter, Deborah Levering', they appear to have been married after the manner of the Friends' ceremony, without the intervention of civil or ecclesiastical benediction. The instrument reads: "WHEREAS, William Levering, Junr., of Rocksborough, in the County of Philadelphia, and Province of Pennsylvania, and Martha Daves, Daughter of Thomas Daves of the same place, having Published their Intention of Marriage with each other, according to a Law in that case Provided, and nothing appearing to obstruct their Proceedings, Did appear at the House of William Levering, in Rocksborough afd., on the seventeenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-nine, in an assembly for that occasion met: And the said William Levering taking the said Martha Daves by the hand, Did in a solemn manner openly declare that he took her to be his loving wife, promising by the Lord's Assistance to be unto her a faithful and loving Husband until Death should separate them: And there and then in the said Assembly the said Martha Daves Did in like manner openly declare that she took the said William Levering to be her husband, promising in like manner to be unto him a Faithful and Loving Wife until death should separate them. And there and then the said William Levering and Martha Daves, she according to the custom of Marriage, assuming the name of her Husband as a further Confirmation thereof, Did to these Presents put their Hands, and wee whose names are hereunder written, being present amongst others at the solemnization and superscription in manner aforesaid as witnesses thereunto, have also set our hands the Day and Year above Written.

WM. LEVERING, JUNIOR,	ISAAC DEAVES,
MR. LEVERING,	JOHN CUNRADS,
WM. LEVERING,	BARBARY CUNRADS,
HANNAH LEVERING,	JACOB COOKE,
AARON LEVERING,	SUSANA COOKE,
NATHAN LEVERING,	ENOCH LEVERING,
JOHN HINKLE,	JOHN COLP,
ELIZABETH HINKLE,	DERICK KEYSER,
PETER KEYSER,	WM. DEWEES,
HANNAH KEYSER."

The certificate appears to have been written by some one who was unacquainted with the spelling of either of the family surnames, or that of the township in which the ceremony was enacted. The bride's first attempt at writing MRS. LEVERING furnishes evidence of a bad spell of nervousness.

While the parents of the groom furnish proof of their "presence and consenting," those of the bride appear conspicuously absent.

Mr. Jones, in an article entitled, "Roxborough and the Revolutionary War," published in the Manayunk Sentinel, July 6, 1882, testifies to having seen an original military muster roll, containing names of enlisted men, under date of August 1, 1776, which did not appear upon the rolls of the Penna. Archives. This roster shows that William Levering, the subject of this sketch, was Captain of the company, which formed part of the First Rifle Battalion of Philadelphia County, under Colonel Matlack.

Mr. Jones states: "He inherited from his father the smith shop, tools, etc., opposite the Leverington Hotel, where his grandfather Wigard died; also owned the house and small farm below the shop, now (1858) owned by G. W. Hipple. Upon the partition of his father's estate he received a tract of land above the hotel, and extending from Leverington Avenue to the line of John Gorgas' land."

He d. June 1, 1806. Mrs. L. d. Sept. 10, 1828, aged 86 years. Both are buried at Lev. Cem. (219)

107. III. HANNAH (Colonel): b. 1737, at Roxb.; m. May 5, 1756, Peter Keyser, of Germantown, who was b. Aug. 18, 1732. Mr. Jones said of him: "He was a tanner and of Dutch descent." Mr. Peter A. Keyser, of Phila., says of his ancestor: "Dirck Keyser came from Amsterdam to Germantown, in New York in 1688, with one son named Peter Dirck, about fifteen years old. Peter Dirck married on Sept. 4, 1700, Margaret Sieple, and had a son Dirk, b. 1701, d. 1750, who married Alice Neus, now written Nees. This had four sons, viz., John; PETER, b. 1732; Dirck, William and two daughters, one of whom, Elizabeth, m. Andrew Wood, of Roxb. (228)

The Keyser connection with the Levering family is one of the most numerous, as an analysis of this work will disclose. The history of "The Keyser Family," as compiled by Hon. Charles S. Keyser, of Philadelphia, and published in 1888, shows the Levering relation.

Mrs. Hannah Levering Keyser d. Aug. 19, 1775. In 1787 Mr. K. m. Mary Mechlin. He d. March 11, 1818. Both are buried in the German Baptist Church grounds in Germantown.

108. IV. AARON (Colonel): b. Dec. 7, 1739, at Roxb.; m. May 19, 1763, Hannah Righter, daughter of Peter Righter, of "Righter's Ferry," Roxborough. Mr. Jones said of him: "He was a currier. His father, among other things, devised to him 'the currying shop' on the Ridge Road, above Green Lane. When the Revolutionary War broke out, Mr. Levering joined the American army. He was appointed in the early part of July, 1776, one of the Captains of the Flying Camp, and was commissioned as Major July 31, 1776. He was in the battle of Brandywine, and at the defense of Mud Fort and Fort Mifflin. He was honorably discharged with the rank of Colonel at Perth Amboy. About the year 1780, or later, he removed with his family to the city of Baltimore, Md. His sister Sarah and brother Enoch also removed there, and became the founders of the Levering families of Baltimore, where Colonel Levering engaged in mercantile business, and was quite successful. He died in B. Oct. 14, 1794. Mrs. Levering d. Sept. 6, 1806, aged 65 years, at the home of her daughter, Mary Clement, at Salem, New Jersey, where she was buried in the grounds of the Baptist Church. (233)

They had fifteen children; but two survived three years of age.

109. V. ENOCH⁵: b. Feb. 21, 1742, at Roxb.; m. Apl. 10, 1765, Mary Righter, a sister of his brother Aaron's wife. He was the owner of a large Tannery in R., and carried on the business for many years. He removed with his family to Baltimore, about the year 1774. Here he engaged in the wholesale grocery business, under the firm name of Levering & Barge. His wife died Feb. 21, 1794, aged 52 years. He followed her Oct. 21, 1795. Both were interred in the burial ground of the First Baptist Church at B., of which congregation they were prominent members.

Their sons erected a monument at their graves, which bears inscription as follows: "In memory of ENOCH LEVERING and MARY, his wife, whose bodies lie interred here. They lived respected and died lamented by their relatives and friends, and left seven sons to bemoan their departure, who have erected this monument to perpetuate the memory of their beloved parents. The character of the true Christian was affectingly displayed in the last hours of their lives; they saw and met the approach of that scene, the most trying to human nature, with calm and dignified composure, with serene and pious resignation, and a devout and steady confidence in the mercy of that God whose summons they are about to obey."

110. VI. CLEMENT⁵: b. May 25, 1744, at Roxb.; d. June 27 of the same year.

111. VII. NATHAN⁵: b. May 19, 1745, at Roxb.; m. Mch. 11, 1784, Sarah Rubicam, of Germantown, daughter of Justus Rubicam. (244)

He was grandfather of Mr. Jones, who wrote of him: "He resided with his father at the homestead on the Ridge Road (the present Leverington Hotel); ministered to his wants and helped to cheer his declining years. The old homestead was devised to him by his father.

"In the proceedings of the Committee of Safety for Philadelphia County, on August 1, 1776, Nathan Levering was appointed one of the number of persons 'to distribute money for the support of poor women and children who are left destitute by means of their husbands and fathers being now in actual service.'

"The same year that Nathan was married he rebuilt the old homestead. He was engaged in every public movement in R. He kept the Hotel for many years, and it was the frequent resort of his relatives from Baltimore. Before the Roxborough Baptist Church was built, religious meetings were often held at his house, and 'Father Fleeson,' the blind preacher, who officiated for the Church, lived for many years with him. He was a liberal contributor to the Church; was the Treasurer of the Board of Trustees; gave the land for the Meeting-house, and superintended its erection. The minutes of the Church for 27 March, 1790, state that 'Brother Nathan Levering gave a lot of ground in front of the graveyard to build the Meeting-house on, and a lane from thence out to the great road.' (Ridge Road.) On 5 Feb., 1794, he executed to thirteen trustees a deed for 72 perches of land, including the old graveyard, and on 24 April, 1804, he gave 37 perches more, which, together, formed the old Roxborough graveyard,* in which the venerable ancestor of the Levering family, and scores of his posterity are interred.

"He was also one of the early Clerks of the Church, and was ever its constant friend and liberal benefactor. Both he and his wife were among the constituent members of the Church. He was also a Trustee of the Roxborough School-house, and gave liberally to the erection of the two-story house in 1795. He was instrumental in organizing the Ridge Turnpike Road in 1811-12, to which Roxborough is so much indebted. He was a man of taste, and there never was a work of any importance going on that he was not engaged in. The beautiful avenue of Lombardy poplars leading from the Church to the Ridge Road, was planted under his direction, and at one time he had a similar row planted and growing on the northerly side of the Ridge Road, from the Hotel to the Church lane. Only one of these trees remained in 1857.

“Mr. L. died of a cancerous affection of the breast, 14 June, 1812, aged 68 years, and is buried at the Roxborough graveyard. A flat marble tombstone covers his grave, and has the following inscription from the pen of his son-in-law, the Rev. H. G. Jones:

“Sacred to the memory of NATHAN LEVERING. He lived an example of usefulness to his fellow men. As a Christian and a Patriot, he distinguished himself. Temples of God and Seminaries of learning rose and flourished under his fostering hand. To wipe the tear from the widow, the fatherless and the stranger, and to promote the national interests of AMERICA, engaged his incessant and successful endeavors. He died in hope of a glorious resurrection, resigning his SOUL into the hands of the “FRIEND OF SINNERS,” on the 14th day of June, 1812, in the 68th year of his age “Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.”’

“Mrs. Levering d. 4 March 1820, aged 61 years, and is buried by the side of her husband, and has a similar tombstone.”

112. VIII. DEBORAH^b: b. May 2, 1749, at Roxb.; m. John Streeper, of Plymouth, Montgomery Co., Pa., who was born March 9, 1745. She d. Aug. 16, 1777. He d. Oct. 18, 1817. (251)
113. IX. SARAH^b: b. Nov. 12, 1751, at Roxb., where, on April 16, 1771, she married John Brown, a native of Belfast, Ireland. Mr. Jones states: “After marriage they removed to Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Clement states it was through his influence that Aaron and Enoch Levering removed to that city. He amassed quite a fortune in the tannery business, and was also engaged with William Wilson and Mathias Maris in the shipping business. He was an active citizen, and was a member of the Committee of Vigilance of Baltimore during the Revolution. His name is found among the list of the Republican citizens of Baltimore, who signed a copy of the Declaration of Independence at the court house in Baltimore in 1776. (252)

Both were members of the First Presbyterian Church of Balt. Mr. B. died Nov. 1, 1794, aged 49 years. Mrs. B. d. Sept. 6, 1832. All their children were born in Balt.

Children of (44) Amelia' (Levering) and Abraham Shoemaker.

114. I. SARAH': b. in 1722; m. "in a public meeting at Germantown, Anno. 174 $\frac{1}{2}$, the 23d of ye 12th month, called February," to Daniel Pastorius, who was b. Dec. 22, 1717, and d. Jan. 13, 1754. She m. 2d, about 1757, to Daniel Mackenot, who d. Oct. 19, 1761, at Germantown, where she also d. Feb. 3, 1795. All were buried in Friends' Ground, Germantown, Sarah reposing between her husbands.

Daniel Pastorius was son of John Samuel Pastorius, and gr. son of Francis Daniel Pastorius, who is mentioned in the historical part of this work as prominent in making the early history of Philadelphia. See biog. (262)

115. II. GEORGE': b. about 1725; m. Feb. 25, 1754, at Abington Friends' Meeting, Pa., Martha, daughter of Jonathan Livezey. It is known that he owned a farm in Cheltenham, near Philad. I have not learned further concerning him. (270)

116. III. BENJAMIN^o: b. in 1728, at Cheltenham, Pa.; m. Feb. 28, 1753, at Christ's Church, Phila., Mary Comly, dau. of Robert and Jane (Cadwalader) Comly, of Byberry, near to Phila. She d. Mch. 17, 1793. He d. Mch. 16, 1810. They were b. in the Shoemaker graveyard in Cheltenham, near to Phila., and near to their home farm. (277)

117. IV. WILLIAM^o: b. about 1730; m. Sept. 25, 1752, at Abington Friends' Meeting, then in Phila. County, Susanna Richardson, who d. June 22, 1782. He m. 2d, July 9, 1795, Hannah Tompkins, a widow. No chn. by her. He d. Jan. 8, 1814. (291)

Susanna was dau. of Aubrey and Sarah (Thomas) Richardson, and gr. dau. of Judge Samuel Richardson, a member of the Government Council, 1688 to 1695, also a member of the Colonial Assembly, 1694, 1698, 1700 and 1701; was a Judicial officer in 1692.

118. V. ABRAHAM⁵: m. June 3, 1762, at Gwynedd Friends' Meeting, then in Philad. Co., Lydia Daws. He lived in the family mansion, on a farm in Bristol Township, near Philad., his mother, Amelia, occupying with him until her decease, a few months prior to his marriage. Mr. Benj. H. Shoemaker says of him: "I am inclined to believe that Abraham died early. Letters were granted on the estate of Abraham Shoemaker in 1767. That is about five years after our Abraham married Lydia Daws."
119. VI. CATHARINE⁵: It is not known that she ever married. The father, Abraham, devised farms in Cheltenham Township to his several sons, and provides in the Will that William shall pay "to my dau. Catharine the sum of four pounds a year during her natural life." George was likewise required to pay to her two pounds, and Benjamin four pounds, annually. Further, "all the rest and residue to my wife for support of our dau. Catharine, and if it should happen that my wife die before our said dau. Catharine, I will that my wife shall place such funds in safe hands," etc. I infer that Catharine was an invalid.

Children of (46) Magdalena⁴ (Levering) and Matthias Maris.

120. I. WILLIAM⁵: b. in Germantown; m. Mary Nice and d. about 1787. He was buried at the grounds of the Baptist Church at Lower Dublin, Philad. Nothing is known as to children.
121. II. CATHARINE⁵: b. in Germantown about 1745. Supposed to have died young.
122. III. MATTHIAS⁵: b. May 19, 1747, in Germantown. Dates given show that his father died the day he was born. He lived for many years in Roxborough with his aged mother. Late in life he m. Margaret McDowell, of St. Thomas, Franklin Co., Pa., who d. Feb. 17, 1853, aged 88 years. They had no children. Mr. Jones wrote of him: "He was a man of considerable natural talents, and became a skillful land surveyor. He was also a teacher of the Roxborough school. On the death of his mother he removed with Mr. Brown—who married his cousin, Sarah Levering—to Baltimore, where he carried on business with William Warrick, under the firm name of Wilson & Warrick. He was a successful merchant, and soon acquired an ample fortune. He purchased a tract of 200 acres of land in Franklin Co., Pa., near to Chambersburg, to which he moved and made his residence. Here he devoted himself to agriculture and the improvement of his soil.

"Although he had long been absent from Roxborough, yet he always had a friendly regard for his relatives, and occasionally visited them. He did not forget them in his will, for he bequeathed inter alia as follows: 'I give and bequeath to Matthias, the son of my cousin, Benjamin Levering, of Roxborough Township, Philadelphia County, the sum of four hundred dollars.' He also gave his cousin, Catherine Smick, of the same place, three hundred dollars, and he remembered the Baptist Church, founded by his maternal relatives. Item. I do also give and bequeath to the Trustees of the Baptist Congregation in the Ridge in Roxborough Township, Philadelphia County, the sum of six hundred dollars, to be by them loaned out at interest or vested in some other public security, the interest of which is to be given or distributed annually on the first day of every year between the poor widows who are members and in full communion in the said Baptist Congregation."

"The name of this good man is still remembered in Roxborough, and it is preserved in several Levering families as a Christian name, while it is borne in full by his great nephew, who was his chief heir."

Mr. Warrick d. Oct. 9, 1811, and was buried in Waddell's Graveyard, in Peters Township, Franklin Co., Pa.

Children of (47) Benjamin¹ and Elizabeth (Jones) Levering.

123. I. LEVI : b. in 1735 at Roxb., where he d. Aug. 12, 1739.
124. II. RACHEL : b. April, 1749, at Roxb., where she m. Louis Smick, a farmer and wheelwright. He built a large house on the south side of the Ridge Road. Mr. Jones states: "When the British occupied Philadelphia and the Hessians had a redout at Wissahickon, predatory bands used to visit the farmers and rob their barns and gardens, and on one occasion they assaulted Mrs. Smick."

Mr. S. d. Oct. 9, 1821, aged 80 years. Mrs. S., who survived her husband, was entirely blind for several years. She d. Feb. 9, 1829. Both are buried in Lev. Cemetery.

Children of (62) Abraham^s and Anna (Thomas) Levering.

140. I. JACOB^s: b. Sept. 18, 1746, at Roxb.; was m. April 17, 1760, by Rev. Morgan Edwards, to Mary Brownfield. He was a member of the First Baptist Church, of Philad. After the War of the Revolution, in which he took an active part, he removed to North Carolina, where he died, but the date is not known. (326)

His father, Abraham, in his will, dated Aug. 20, 1798, gave to him a legacy in money, which indicates that he was living at that date.

See sketch of his military career in Appendix.

141. II. MARGARET^s: b. June 20, 1748, at Roxb.; m. Paul Conner. Mr. Jones says: "She d. at Reading, Pa., leaving issue," but he names none.
 142. III. JOHN^s (Major): b. April 25, 1750; m. Jan. 8, 1778, by the celebrated Rev. F. A. Muhlenberg, D. D., to Hannah Howell, who was b. Dec. 30, 1752, and was of Welsh parentage. Her grandfather, David Howell, m. Mary Reading, who was a cousin to the great hymnologist, Rev. Dr. Isaac Watts. Their son, John Howell, b. Aug. 8, 1721, was the father of Hannah. She died Oct. 28, 1820. Major Levering d. July 28, 1832. Both were buried in Lev. Cem. (329)

Major L. was an active partisan and soldier in the Revolutionary War, and was a commissioned officer in that campaign.

He was active and prominent in the Baptist Church at Roxb., of which he was a constituent member and deacon, and was named first in the Board of Trustees, in the charter granted by the Supreme Court of Penna., in the year 1791. He was baptized June 9, 1772, by the Rev. William Rogers, into the First Baptist Church of Philad.

See biog. in Appendix.

143. IV. ANTHONY^s: b. July 5, 1752, at Roxb.; m. Mary, dau. of Captain Joseph Sterne, of Roxb. Both were constituent members of the Roxb. Baptist Church, on dismissal from the First Baptist Church of Philad. and he was a deacon of the former from Dec. 22, 1804, until his decease. He lived on Green Lane, in (now) Manayunk, in the large stone house where his father and grandfather had lived. He owned a large tract of land where Manayunk now stands, extending on both sides of Green Lane. He also was active in the War of the Revolution, sharing with his brothers Jacob and John in many scouting expeditions and in hairbreadth escapes, as their home was in the heat of the conflict and under British possession for a part of the time. Being so located they were detailed on special service, and divided risks and responsibilities as scouts with each other.

He d. Aug. 8, 1818. Mrs. L. survived her husband many years, and was awarded a pension by the Government for the valuable military services rendered by her husband. She was well versed in family history and tradition. She d. Feb. 17, 1851, aged 86 years.

Both were buried in Leverington Cemetery. (338)

144. V. MARY^s: b. Jan. 13, 1755, at Roxb.; m. Mch. 29, 1781, Cornelius Holgate, of Roxb., who was b. Jan. 27, 1758. He d. April 14, 1829, near to Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he was buried until 1876, when his son Griffith had his body removed to the Lev. Cem. and buried beside that of his wife, who d. Aug. 20, 1843, at Leverington, Philad.

Mrs. H. was a woman of strong intellect and culture. Her writings were regarded with great favor by her friends. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Abby J. H. Hanford, still preserves the original script of a poem entitled "Death and Eternity," which was written by Mary at the age of 70 years.

I referred to, and said Mr. Halghton (in his circular of Feb. 22, 1864) "in 1771, 1787 passed the Levering Family, but a few scattered a like remnant of them, and in having "a full numerous issue," those were named. In this sense and the several particular and consanguineous descendants, 1771-1787, being called "the Illinois, are not included. They in the process of (1072) Mary (Bernabey) Wood (John Courtenay, and failed to respond.

145. VI. MAGDALENA¹ b. Oct. 18, 1757, at Roxb., d. y.

146. VII. ANNA¹ b. May 2, 1700, at Roxb. Mr. Jones furnishes a tradition concerning her as follows: "During the occupation of Philadelphia by the British, a party of Lee's Virginia Troop, who were then lying around the British pickets, stopped one night at the house of Andrew Wood, on the Ridge, about two miles and a half above the Wissahickon. They occupied the night, and while asleep, were surprised by a party of Tories, who killed a large number and sent the rest to the north. Some who escaped and were badly wounded, took refuge at Abraham Levering's. He attended ANNA (noted in these records), and then took them down to his river Schuylkill and rowed them across in a canoe on their way to Valley Forge."

The Andrew Wood barn was rebuilt with the same walls. It remained in use as "pointed" stone structure, with loop-holes for ventilation. Anna died in a few years after the occurrence related.

147. VIII. SAMUEL¹ b. Dec. 10, 1705, at Roxb.; m. Rebecca Roberts, of Plymouth; b. Aug. 15, 1708. He was baptised in the Schuylkill Mch. 3, 1785. His wife followed in the religious confession before their marriage. They were of the constituent members of the Roxborough Baptist Church when organized.

They lived at the lower end of Manayunk, on what is now known as Sim's Lane. He subsequently bought the premises of Andrew Wood, where the barn was burned by the Tories.

Mr. Jones relates of him: "When he buried his first born child, he had a headstone placed at the grave, with the following inscription engraved upon it:

"THE FIRST BORN
BRETHREN."

This to an unnamed infant suggested confidence in the future.

Samuel d. Nov. 5, 1823. Mrs. L. d. March 25, 1854.
Both are buried in Lev. Cem.

Children of (63) Wickard¹ and Elizabeth (Sturges) Levering.

148. I. JOSEPH⁵: b. April 25, 1748, in Roxb.; m. Oct. 25, 1785, Abigail Ramsey, who was b. July 20, 1762, in Whitemarsh Township, Philad. Co. (366)
149. II. JACOB⁵: b. about 1750; m. Nov. 1, 1771, Mary Able, as shown by the records of St. Michael and Zion Church, Philad. (374)
150. III. ELIZABETH⁵: b. about 1753; m. to Joseph Tyson and removed to Reading, Pa. Inquiry failed to find any posterity. (376)
151. IV. BENJAMIN⁵: b. 1754, at Roxb.; m. Sarah Spencer. They lived at Plymouth, Montg. Co., Pa. Mrs. L. died June 25, 1816, aged 62 years. His will, dated Sept. 20, 1815, was proved at Norristown, July 5, 1816, indicating that they died about the same date. They had no children. He bequeathed "the Baptist Meeting of Roxbury" a legacy of fifty dollars. Both are buried near to this church, in Lev. Cem.
152. V. WIGARD⁵: b. 1756; lived at Plymouth; never married. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He d. in Feb., 1785. He left a will dated 21st of 2d mo., 1785, which was probated at Norristown, March 1, 1785. In this he bequeathed his property to his brothers Joseph and Benjamin.

Children of (65) Jacob and Elizabeth (——) Levering.

160. I. JEREMIAH : b. about 1766, in Philad. His history is not known.
- In the records of the Supreme Executive Council at Philad., on Minutes of April 7, 1781, appears: "The Board taking into consideration the case of Jeremiah Levering, a child of 14 or 15 years of age, who has been three years enlisted as a soldier in Col. Proctor's Regiment, but not taught to beat the drum or blow the fife, and being of small stature and weakly habits; Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Board that he should be discharged, and that Colonel Proctor be directed to discharge him accordingly." He was living in 1807.
161. II. ZECHARIAH : b. in Philad., and lived and died there Dec. 27, 1819. Nothing known further.
162. III. ISRAEL : b. in Philad.; m. Aug. 24, 1784, Elizabeth Perlines. He d. prior to 1807; b. Lev. Cem. (415)

Children of (66) Anthony¹ and Agnes (Tunis) Levering.

163. I. ABRAHAM⁵: b. Feb. 1, 1753. Mr. Jones stated of him: "He was possessed with a spirit of adventure and went to the western country, where he met Col. George Rogers Clark, who was known in history as "the Washington of the West," and was doubtless engaged in some business at the Falls of the Ohio, the site of the present city of Louisville, Ky. He joined Colonel Clark in an expedition against the Indians, was wounded in the head, and died Aug. 1, 1780.

"The following letter to his father, Anthony Levering, from (122) Mathias Maris⁵, gives the particulars of his death:

" To Anthony Levering:

" "ESTEEMED COUSIN—The purport of this is to inform you that I have seen Jacob Moyers, the Bridge builder, who says he is well acquainted with you, and is lately come in from Kentucky. He informs me that your son Abraham, whom he was well acquainted with, set out from the Falls of the Ohio with Colonel Clark on an expedition against the savages; that he, with several others, went out to kill Buffaloe and were surprised by a party of savages, on which they fled to their boat, but, unfortunate for Abraham, he received a wound in his head by a tommahock; after which he saved three of his companions, who were wounded, and made his way good to the falls, and was in a likely way to recover, but unfortunately he applied to a surgeon to have his wound dressed. His skull was fractured by the stroke, and the surgeon probed the wound and opened the fracture. The consequence was that his brains worked out, and he became delirious and shortly after died.

" "He enquired for Moyers before his death, but he did not come till three days after his death, which was the 1st of August.

" "One Patrick Jordan has his effects in possession, and lives within 7 miles of Herodsburg. Moyers informs me that Abraham had cash and goods to the amount of about Eighty Pounds in Specie and two Warrants for Land. If you can send an order or Power of Attorney to Miriam in 1800. Her possessions he will sell, his effects and bonds to be sold at public sale on the 29th. Abraham lived a long time enjoying his eyes. This account will be published in the 10th, 100 & tonight it my duty to miss you.

“I thank you very much for the kind regards of Friends, and to give you my affectionate and ever still oblige,

164. II. MARY : b. Mar. 29, 1733, in Lower Merion, then in Philad. Co., Pa.
165. III. HANNAH : b. Mar. 5, 1752; m. 10 mo. 23d, 1783, at Merion Merion; to Isaac Zell, who was b. in 1756. Their marriage certificate is preserved by Miss Hannah Ann Zell, at Germantown. It is signed by numerous Levering correspondents. Her whole family were Friends. (418)
 He d. 2 mo. 20, 1807, in Lower Merion Friends' Meeting House, Germantown.
166. IV. ANTHONY : b. Jun. 11, 1759, in Lower Merion; m. Sarah Howell, daughter of Hiram Howell, who became the wife of (140) John Levering. He d. Mch. 24, 1826. Mrs. L. d. 1806 and is in Lev. Cem. He left a will dated Dec. 13, 1815, which was proved at Norristown, Pa., on April 16, 1820. (424)
 He was a farmer and manufacturer, and owned a large property with mills, in Lower Merion, on the right bank of the Schuylkill, opposite to Manayunk.
167. V. INDIA : b. Mar. 10, 1761, in Lower Merion, where she died buried.
168. VI. ELIZABETH : b. April 5, 1763; m. May 14, 1783, at Sweden's Church, PHILADELPHIA, to John Amos. She d. May 21, 1842. (431)
169. VII. MARGARET : b. Aug. 14, 1765, in L. M.; m. Isaac Bond, 16th d. without issue.
170. VIII. ABIGAIL : b. Nov. 11, 1767, in L. M.; m. (127) Benjamin Levering, of Roxb. She d. in Dec., 1824. Both are in Lev. Cem. (316)
171. IX. SARAH : b. May 18, 1770, in L. M.; m. Jacob Lobb. (438)

Children of (67) Benjamin[†] and Catharine (Righter) Levering.

172. I. CATHARINE⁵: b. April 13, 1756, at Roxb.; m. April 20, 1778, John Tibben, of Roxb., who was b. Feb. 12, 1755. She d. Aug. 2, 1821; he d. Feb. 12, 1826; b. at Lev. Cem. (448)
173. II. SUSANNAH⁵: b. Nov. 25, 1758; m. Mch. 15, 1780, Peter Weidner, of Roxb., who was born April 18, 1759, and d. April 30, 1822. She d. Oct. 17, 1845, in Chester Co., Pa. (458)
 Mr. Jones lists five names, without dates, as the children of Susannah. I have found evidence of 11 children, with posterity numbering 256, more than 90 of whom were eligible to "The Levering Family."
174. III. MICHAEL⁵: b. May 6, 1765, at Roxb.; m. May 26, 1789, Mrs. Catharine Moyer (nee Tibben), who was b. Oct. 2, 1763, and d. April 20, 1817. He d. April 3, 1846. Both are b. at Lev. Cem. (469)
 Mr. Jones said of Mr. L.: "He was a very useful citizen, and for a long time was a Manager of the Poor for Roxborough. Died much lamented."
175. IV. ALICE⁵: b. Sept. 27, 1766, at Roxb.; m. Feb. 1, 1794, Rudolph Bartle, who d. April 3, 1806. She m. 2d in Dec., 1811, Reese Davis, but had no children by him. She d. Sept. 2, 1856, aged 90. All are b. at Lev. Cem. (475)
 Mr. Jones says of Mr. Bartle: "He was in the Revolutionary War. When the British marched from Philadelphia and Germantown to attack LaFayette at Barren Hill, Mr. B., who obtained news of the fact, hastened across the country and gave the alarm to Gen. LaFayette, who was thereby saved from being captured by the enemy."
176. V. JOSEPH⁵: b. Jan. 6, 1767, at Roxb.; m. Mary Weidner, who d. Sept. 5, 1828, aged 67 years. He d. Dec. 1, 1839. Both are interred at Lev. Cem. (481)
177. VI. MARY⁵: b. about 1769; m. David Moyer, of Roxb. Mr. Jones states they "had at least one son named JOHN, who m. and had issue—SUSAN, RACHEL, REBECCA, and several sons." As they were of his neighborhood, I can not understand why Mr. J. did not collect and collate the genealogical data. This family touch, as might have been deduced, is still in evidence. (485)

- 1778 VII. MARGARET, b. 1771, m. John Stadel, of Roxb. Of their Mr. Jones says they "left vigorous issue." After the death of her husband, she continued some of the children. Mr. Jones was confined to old persons of Roxb., whose account "don't know what become of them"—with such a children's children—was discouraging. The descent of property having been passed, the Society dissolved them. (486)

Children of (68) Septimus' and Mary (Thomas) Levering.

- 1776 I. GILBERT, b. 1743, in Roxb.; m. Oct. 13, 1776, Hannah Giddens, of Philad. Mr. Jones states: "He carried on the business of a druggist in Phila. He joined the Phila. Baptist Church Jan. 4, 1773, but became a follower of William Wadsworth, the celebrated Universalist, who had many people of that church. On that account he, with many others, was excluded on March 9, 1781. He d. at Phila. Aug. 29, 1788, and is buried at the Free Quakers' graveyard, on Fifth Street, above Spruce." (493)

As the Giddens Family were prominent Quakers, or Friends, the selection of a burial place was doubtless determined by the widow, who followed him "over the river." D. Dec. 31, 1830, aged over 80 years.

- 1786 II. ABEL, b. April 25, 1750, in Philad.; m. June 23, 1779, in Loudoun, Va., to James Layman, of Alexandria, D. C., who was b. in Sussex Co., N. J., of English parents, on Dec. 2, 1753. She d. April 25, 1821. Mr. L. d. April 18, 1823, in Alexandria. (500)
- 1787 III. SEPTIMUS, b. in 1758, in Philad.; m. Elizabeth Ferrill. He was a very upright man, was living in 1808. Nothing is known of their descendants.
- 1788 IV. THOMAS, b. Dec. 9, 1761, in Philad. He d. Aug. 5, 1805, in Md., in a lay. Cem.
- 1789 V. MARY, b. in 1772, in Philad.; m. Seth Cartwright, of Alexandria, D. C., who he d. in 1812. Mrs. C. resided south of the river, S. W., near to Waynesville, in Warren Co., Ohio, where she d. Oct. 10, 1862. (511)

206. VII. AARON¹: b. Feb. 28, 1774, in Roxb.; m. Dec. 1, 1796, Fanny Ouzel, who was b. Sept. 8, 1769. Mr. Jones says of him, "He was a smith and maker of augers, in a shop on the Ridge Road, which he built. In 1796, he also built the house in which the writer (H. G. Jones, 1858) now lives; the first above the 7 Mile Stone, on the north side of the Ridge Road, and which he occupied as a Hotel under the name of 'The Washington.' (The present writer knows the premises well, and has often been entertained there, both in youth and mature years, when visiting my birth place.) 'Aaron subsequently kept "The Leverington Hotel" (on the same side of Ridge Avenue, a short distance below), and was appointed the first Postmaster of Roxborough. Postoffice established June 23, 1823, which was afterwards changed to *Leverington P. O. It was then kept at the Leverington Hotel, and for many years after.' "

He d. April 7, 1829. Mrs. L. d. Aug. 21, 1835. Both were buried in Lev. Cem. (651)

He d. Aug. 11, 1838. Both are buried at Lev. Cem. (656)

227. IX. CHARLES⁶: (Judge) b. Dec. 8, 1783, in Roxb.; m. Sept. 24, 1812 (338), Hester⁶ Levering, who was b. July 25, 1790. He was a Deacon in the Roxb. Baptist Church. He served in the War of 1812 with Great Britain, and was Captain of the Roxborough Volunteers. In early life he was a mechanic, and later a storekeeper in Philad. In the year 1834, they removed to Wapakoneta, Auglaize Co., Ohio, where he bought a farm. In 1838 he was made Judge of Court, of Auglaize County, which office he held for ten years. In later years he visited his childhood home and was much interested in the encroachments of the city, and the improvements made in what he remembered as farm lands. Manayunk, where he once lived, had become a city in itself. (663)

He d. March 21, 1860. She d. Sept. 2, 1869. They were buried in "Two-Mile" Cemetery, near their home.

* Other postoffices designated by the family name, are Levering P. O., in Knox Co., Ohio, and Levering P. O., Emmet Co., Mich.

Children of (107) Hannah (Levering) and Peter Keyser.*

228. I. WILLIAM¹ b. Oct. 27, 1757, at Germantown; m. Sept. 21, 1781, Rebecca (Levering), who was b. Mch. 5, 1763. He d. 1807, at 1842. She J. Jan. 18, 1842; b. at German Baptist Church, Germ. in Ger. (675)
229. II. DERICK¹ b. May 28, 1760, at G.; m. April 25, 1782, Elizabeth Carlmets, who d. He m., 2d, in 1821, Rebecca Brewster. He d. Feb. 24, 1830, in Baltimore. (683)
 In a recent letter Mr. M. S. 8, 1893, from Charles E. Robins, Esq., he mentioned the interesting reminiscence of "the last of earth" to this sunny old man, as follows: "One of my earliest recollections is, that of being taken to the grave and bed-side of my great-grandfather, Derick Keyser, in Baltimore, while he lay dying. I was six years old, but remember it as if it were yesterday. I see the geography and some features of the house, but most of all, the amazing old man lying on his bed; nearly seventy-five years of years told I to behind him, and his cheertful manner, as he greeted me, and said, 'Well, my little boy, you are performing your duty, as I am going out of it.' He said other words which the thoughtless boy forgot, and those are faded from studies now he could remember. He was a goodly quiet old man, at least, the virtue—as Carle's poet has—'to get twenty-five years more than David's allowance of earthly days.' The next day, I was told that my great-grandfather Keyser was dead, and I remember the thing still."
230. III. ELIZABETH¹ b. Jan. 30, 1763, at G.; m. Jan. 29, 1784, Benjamin Lubman, of G., who was b. Jan. 14, 1760. They lived and died in Germantown. She, on Sept. 24, 1826. He, L. on Jan. 7, 1840. They were buried in the grounds of the German Baptist Church, of which they were for many years consistent members. (695)

*The Keyser connection is proved to the most numerous branch of the Levering family, and especially to the 3d and 4th Leverings and collateral branch of the Keyser family. A bicentennial anniversary of the arrival of Derick Keyser at Germantown on October 10, 1688, was held on the same date in 1888, in the old Methodist Church, which was built in 1788. On that occasion a history of the family in England and America was read by its author, Hon. Charles S. Keyser, of Philad. Hon. H. G. Bond was present and reported the matter to the friends of the Keyser and Levering families, followed by Dr. Silas W. Pringle, pastor of the Church, who related his family association with the Keyser name.

Peter Keyser

231. IV. PETER⁶ (Rev.): b. Nov. 9, 1766, at G.; m. Mch. 30, 1790, Catharine Clemens, of Horsham, Montg. Co., Pa., who was a sister of Derick's wife. For more than fifty years he was pastor of the German Baptist Church at Germantown. He d. May 21, 1849, and Mrs. K. followed June 6, 1854, aged 84 years. They were buried near to the church where he had officiated so long. See Biog. (703)
232. V. SARAH⁶: b. Junè 9, 1771, at G.; m. in 1794 Joseph Gorgas of G., b. April 24, 1773. She d. Aug. 5, 1835. Mr. G. d. May 8, 1850. They are buried at the German Baptist Church, to which they belonged as members. (715)

Children of (108) Aaron⁵ and Hannah (Righter) Levering.

Mr. Jones states: "They had 15 children, but all, except 2, died under the age of 3 years. Ten are buried side by side in the Roxb. (Levering) graveyard. Only 2 lived to reach full age."

233. XIV. MARY⁶: b. Nov. 23, 1782, in Balt.; m. in 1803, Joseph Clement, of Salem, N. J., who was b. July 15, 1777. Mr. Jones states: "All her children were born at Salem. They removed to Royalton, Fairfield Co., Ohio, and finally to Lancaster, Ohio. Mrs. C. always kept up acquaintance with her relatives in Roxb., both by correspondence and personal visits. Her latest visit there was in 1857, at the age of 75 years." She d. at Lancaster, where Mr. C. d. Jan. 25, 1864. (722)
234. XV. AARON RIGHTER⁶ (Captain): b. Sept. 22, 1784, at Balt.; m. Sept. 3, 1807 (504) Ann Butcher⁶ Lawrason. Mr. Jones states: "In Balt. he became engaged in various business operations with the sons of his Uncle Enoch. During the War of 1812, he was in active service, and was Captain of the Independent Blues of Baltimore. He was in the battle of North Point, in 1814. Captain L. removed to Georgetown, D. C., in 1821, and from thence to Spottsylvania Co., Va., where he remained until 1828, when he returned to Balt., and subsequently established the firm of A. R. Levering & Sons. In 1842 he was chosen a member of the City Councils, and in 1843 was elected to the Legislature of Maryland. Late in life he joined the Second Baptist Church, of Balt., and was chosen a deacon. He d. June 22, 1852, and was b. in Green Mount Cem. Mrs. L. followed c. 70 years later. (732)

Children of (109) Enoch¹ and Mary (Richter) Levering.

235. I. PETER²: b. Feb. 4, 1766, at Roxb.; m. May 22, 1798, Hannah Wilson, daughter of William and Jane Wilson, of Balt. Both were members of the First Baptist Church of that city, to which he removed with his parents about the year 1774. (743)

He was extensively engaged in the shipping and commission business of Balt., at first under the firm name of Levering & Nelson, and subsequently as Peter Levering & Sons. He d. Dec. 7, 1843. Mrs. L. d. Apl. 30, 1854, aged nearly 75 years.

236. II. JESSE²: b. Aug. 14, 1767, at Roxb., where he d. Sept. 7, 1772.

237. III. ENOCH²: b. July 4, 1769, at Roxb.; m. Jan. 28, 1800, to (254) Hannah² Brown, his cousin. At five years of age he was taken by his parents to Balt., where, in mature years, he was engaged in business with a brother, under the firm name of Enoch & Jesse Levering. He d. Feb. 27, 1828. (757)

In 1829 Mrs. L. removed with her sons to Fairfield Co., Ohio, and purchased a farm near to the city of Lancaster, where she d. Wm. 26, 1856, aged 80 years. She was a member of the First Bapt. Church of Balt., but at Lancaster, for want of a church of the same gospel order, she associated with the Presbyterian Church.

238. IV. NATHAN²: b. May 10, 1771, at Roxb.; at three years of age he was taken by his parents to Balt., where, on attaining his majority, he m. Susanna Dent, of that city. She died Aug. 1, 1823. (762)

W. L. was engaged for many years in manufacturing and shipping, and, like his brothers, conducted an extensive business. He d. in May, 1834, and was buried beside his wife in the grounds of the First Bapt. Church.

239. V. JESSE⁶: b. May 27, 1773, at Roxb. In his infancy was taken to Baltimore by his parents, on their removal to that city. He m. Dec. 5, 1793, Ann McLaughlin, who d. Oct. 20, 1799. He m. 2d, Jan. 20, 1803, to (256) Sarah⁶ Brown, who was a woman of strong character and remarkable powers. During the bombardment of Fort McHenry and the battle of North Point she remained in Balt., attending her husband and other wounded soldiers and their families. (769)

Jesse was in the War of 1812, and a member of Capt. Samuel Sterrett's company, of the 5th regiment of Maryland Volunteers. He was wounded at the battle of Bladensburg. As many others of the family connection have done, he sacrificed business to serve the country at a time of need for strong, intelligent men. He was actively engaged in mercantile business, first, with his brother Enoch, and later with his sons, as Jesse Levering & Sons. His grandson, Hon. Joseph A. Gilpin, says of Jesse: "He was a merchant of considerable note. He was, during the Napoleonic wars, deprived of several vessels, captured by the French, who were ordered by their Emperor to seize all merchantmen that were encountered that traded with the English." (Berlin and Milan Decrees.) Congress still debates upon these "Spoliation Claims," which have not been paid.

Mr. L. d. of cholera, Sept. 12, 1832. In 1841 Mrs. L. and family removed to Ellicott's Mills, about ten miles from Balt., where she d. Feb. 28, 1847, aged 65 years. She and others of the family were buried at Green Mount Cem. at Balt., about the monument erected to the husband and father.

240. VI. JOHN⁶: b. Oct. 22, 1775, at Balt.; m. Feb. 13, 1802, Anne Lawrason. They were members of the First Bapt. Church at Balt. He was of the business firm of John & Aaron Levering. He was enlisted in the War of 1812, and was wounded in the battle of North Point. He d. in Oct., 1820. Mrs. L. d. Sept. 16, 1832. They are buried at Balt. (785)
241. VII. AARON⁶: b. June 11, 1778, at Balt.; m. (502) Mary⁶ Lawrason, who d. Aug. 13, 1810. He m. 2d Nov. 29,

1814, Ann Eliza Cary, of Virginia. He was a commission merchant in business with his brother John. Died at Balt., the date not known. (797)

Mrs. S. left the farm and purchased a home in Germantown, which she occupied until her death, which occurred on Feb. 7, 1871. They were b. in Lev. Cem. (1018)
332. IV. JOHN HOWELL⁶: b. Dec. 12, 1785; m. Mch. 3, 1814, Margaret, dau. of Daniel and Mary Magdalena Hagy, of Montg. Co., Pa. She was b. Aug. 9, 1792. He d. May 16, 1825. Mrs. L. lived in their homestead—which adjoined the premises where her husband was born—in widowhood, for 44 years, and d. there, Apl. 12, 1869. Both were b. in Lev. Cem., near to the church she attended for a generation of years. (1023)
333. V. ABRAHAM⁶: b. Nov. 19, 1787; m. April 2, 1814, Catharine, dau. of William and Catharine Hagy, of Lower Merion. She was b. May 26, 1792, upon premises which had descended from her grandfather, Jacob Hagy.* It consisted of a large farm and paper mill, on Mill Creek, where this stream empties into the Schuylkill River, on its right bank, above Manayunk. This property is still owned in the family. (1026)

Abraham removed from Roxb. to Lower Merion before their marriage. Both were baptized by Rev. H. G. Jones, and joined the Lower Merion Bapt. Ch., in which he was made a Deacon on May 3, 1828. Mrs. L. subsequently was ordained a Deaconess. She officiated, as an attendant to the Pastor, when women members were received,

*Jacob Hagy was a skilled paper maker when he emigrated from Switzerland to America. He, at first, settled upon a small stream near to the left bank of the Schuylkill, opposite and about one mile above the mouth of Mill Creek, where he erected one of the earliest paper mills built in the colonies, and operated it until after he acquired the above described property.

after baptism, to "live on of hayes," into full fellowship of the church, as the writer well remembers.

In 1854 they removed West, with the unmarried part of the family, following their sons—the writer and (1032) William H.—to Lafayette, Indiana, where he acquired considerable property, and d. Oct. 7, 1866. Mrs. L. d. Nov. 21, 1883, in her 92d year. Both were taken to and b. in Lev. Cem.

334. VI. HANNAH²: b. Sept. 26, 1789; m. Weib. 4, 1810, John Hugg, a brother to above-named Catharine. Mr. H. was a Presbyterian, and was instrumental in organizing and building the church of that faith in Upper Roxborough, where they lived.

Mrs. H. was a member of the Roxb. Bap. Church from her girlhood, and remained in that fellowship. He d. March 26, 1864. She followed on January 20, 1876. They were b. in Lev. Cem. (1037)

335. VII. ELIZABETH²: b. Sept. 6, 1791; d. in infancy.

336. VIII. SARAH²: b. April 10, 1793; m. Oct. 18, 1817, Samuel Sloggett, who was a teacher, and for many years was a conveyancer and a Justice of the Peace in Roxb. He was b. Aug. 26, 1791, and d. April 12, 1858. After his decease his widow lived with her brother Enoch, in the house in which she was born, and d. there Nov. 30, 1873. She was for many years a consistent member of the Roxb. Bap. Church. They were b. in Lev. Cem.

337. IX. ENOCH²: b. Dec. 7, 1795; m. April 6, 1823, Sophia Trullinger. He was a member of the Roxb. Bap. Church, and for several years a deacon. During his life he occupied the house (heretofore described) in which he and all his brothers and sisters were born, and there he died on June 24, 1875.

"A gentle, guileless, childlike man, Content to live where life began."

His widow still occupied the premises with her unmd. daughter, Sarah, in whom the title vests. She d. Oct. 28, 1896, aged 89 years, 8 months; b. in Leverington Cem., Phila., beside her husband. (1046)

Children of (143) Anthony⁵ and Mary (Sterne) Levering.

338. I. ESTHER⁶: b. July 25, 1790, at Manayunk; m. Sept. 24, 1812, to (227) Charles⁶ Levering. They removed in 1834 to Wapakoneta, Ohio, where he d. March 21, 1860. She followed Sept. 2, 1869. They were b. at "Two-Mile Cem.," near to their home. (663)
339. II. JESSE⁶: b. July 5, 1792, and d. Oct. 7, 1804, at Manayunk.
340. III. ABRAHAM⁶: b. Sept. 19, 1794; d. Jan. 20, 1800.
341. IV. SILAS GILBERT⁶: b. Dec. 18, 1796; m. Sept. 23, 1819, Susannah, dau. of Joseph and Mary Rittenhouse, of Germ. They lived in Manayunk for many years. A letter written by him to Mr. Jones, dated Baltimore, April 7, 1856, not only relates his experiences, but is so valuable, historically, that I copy it. He wrote: "I built the first stone house in Manayunk, and kept it as a hotel for five years. It is now owned by James Bramble. The only houses built there before it was named Manayunk were my father's (on Green Lane, now owned by Perre. W. Levering) the two Tibbens', Stritzell's, Benjamin Levering's and his son 'Blind Joe,' as he was called, who had a little store, which he built on the same ground where Samuel Eckstein built his paper mill. These, I believe, were all the houses before Manayunk was commenced. I can well remember when there was nothing but a cow-path from Green Lane, on the banks of the Schuylkill, to Righter's Ferry, and also from Green Lane up the river. I was merchandizing in M., until 1838, when I removed to the corner of Green Lane and Ridge Road, in Roxborough. In May, 1850, together with my family, I removed to Southeastern Virginia, Gloucester Co., near to Yorktown. I remained there until 1852, when I moved to Baltimore."

Mr. L. d. at Balt. Mch. 29, 1857. His body was brought, and b. in Lev. Cem. In the same year Mrs. L. and her family removed back to Roxb., where she d. July 30, 1879, and was b. beside her husband.

342. V. TITUS YEPKES^r: b. in 1799 at Manayunk, in Maria, dau. of Peter Boehm. He d. May 10, 1835; l. in Lev. Cem. (1055)
343. VI. PEREGRINE WHARTON^r: b. May 20, 1802, at M.; m. June 21, 1825, Elizabeth Streepel at Rising Sun, Montg. Co., Pa. He owned, and lived all his life, in the old Levering mansion, built in 1730 upon William Levering land, on Green Lane, opposite the present Wood Street. Here he d. on Dec. 17, 1888. His wife died Aug. 13, 1865. They were buried in Lev. Cem. See ibid. (1058)
344. VII. HANNAH^r: b. Aug. 9, 1805, at M.; m. Feb. 25, 1836, to Joseph H. Hoffman, of Roxbr., who was b. Nov. 30, 1807, and d. Oct. 21, 1866. Mr. H. was an active and useful citizen, and in religious work. He served from 1857 as an Alderman of Philad., and was a Representative in the Legislature of Penna.

He possessed a remarkably clear voice, and excelled as a singer. For more than fifty years he was leader of the choir of the Roxbr. Bapt. Church, not ceasing until his voice was stifled by death. (1063)

Mrs. H. still occupied the old homestead on Ridge Avenue, next to the old home of the late H. G. Jones, whom she died in, Nov. 30, 1895.

She was born in the first house built in Manayunk, now a part of the city of Philadelphia. At the time of her death she was the oldest member of the Roxborough Baptist Church, which she joined when quite young, and remained there, along with her husband for many years. I knew her from my early childhood. More successful than King Ponce de Leon, I supposed that she had discovered the fountain of perpetual youth, which eluded the Spanish explorer, whom she outlived the span of a generation. They were buried in Leverington Cemetery.

Children of (144) Mary (Levering) and Cornelius Holgate.

345. I. JOHN: b. March 12, 1782; m. Jan. 28, 1813, Myra Gilbert, b. April 1, 1788. He was a deacon in the Roxbr. Bapt. Church. He d. April 28, 1854. She d. Feb. 7, 1857; b. in Lev. Cem. (1064)
346. II. WILLIAM: b. Dec. 28, 1783; d. unmd. on Sept. 14, 1805.

Y., where he died on Jan. 5, 1881. He was a lifelong member of the Baptist Church, a type of Christian consistency and of business integrity. Both were buried at Mt. Moriah Cem., near Philad. (1096)
352. VIII. SARAH⁶: b. Nov. 20, 1794; m. Dec. 13, 1818, Alexander Brooks. He was born Nov. 21, 1796, in Danbury, Conn.; went from there when 20 years of age to Berwick, Pa., where he became acquainted with Sarah. After their marriage—1826—they removed to Factoryville, New York, where he bought a woolen factory and manufactured cloths. He was a deacon in a Bapt. Church there for many years, and was the main financial support of the church.

Prof. Alex. Atwood⁷ Brooks wrote of his mother, Sarah:
 "My natural ability and my success in life I owe to my mother. She was a woman of superior qualities of both head and heart, and of exalted character in all the walks of life."

Both d. at WOODBURY, N. Y.; she on Jan. 2, 1840, and he on Aug. 12, 1876. On July 24, 1841, he mar. Margaret Lynn Broom, of Waverly, who d. March 1, 1893.

They are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. W., in his active years, was a prominent architect. (1883)

Mrs. Williams has taken interest in this work. In a letter dated Jan. 27, 1893, she relates experiences of early days in the West. Of the difficulties attending travel she wrote: "We started from Cincinnati, O., on March 22, 1853, for Oregon Territory, and arrived here (Dexter) October 31, being over seven months on the way by slow transportation of ox teams. The distance traveled was over 3,000 miles. By following a guide who claimed to know a shorter route through, we were lost for three weeks in the Cascade Mountains, and were reduced almost to starvation when found by those who came to our relief."

671. IX. WILLIAM AUGUSTUS⁷: b. Aug. 15, 1826; m. Nov. 28, 1852, Phylena King, in Ohio. In the spring of 1870 he removed with his family to Coffee Co., Kansas. He was

Nov. 28, 1863, and was b. in the cem. of the German Baptist Church, which was as largely supported by the *Keyser*s as the Roxborough Baptist Church by Leverings. (1906)

Mrs. K. during her last years held the old family Bible of Wigard Levering, which has been described herein as handed down by her grandmother, Hannah Levering⁵. Its chief value was based upon the genealogical record or register it contained. Since the discovery that this register is unreliable as to dates, the volume has been held in less esteem.

On the death of Mrs. K. the book was passed to her descendants as an heirloom. Probably is in the family of her dau., Sallie Linton.

*In "The Levering Family" Mr. Jones states that "388 William⁷," son of William⁶ and Barbara Leibert Keyser, "married Elizabeth Fort, of Balt.," and had four children by her, naming them. This is erroneous. It was his "400 William⁷," son of Derick⁶ and Elizabeth Clemens Keyser, who m. Elizabeth Fort and was the father of her children, one of whom, Mrs. Keturah B. Keyser Fracker, corroborates my solution of the confusion by writing. "Yes. My gr. father was Derick Keyser; my tather, William, was his eighth child, and my mother's maiden name was Elizabeth Fort."

1889, at her home in Roxb. Had no chn. Both were prominent and devoted members of the Baptist Church.

As has been mentioned herein, Mr. Jones was the author of THE LEVERING FAMILY, issued in 1858, which is the first published record of the family in this country. I have frequently copied his expressions in this work, in the present tense, feeling, as I do, that "he being dead yet speaketh." As we grew up near to each other, and maintained a close friendship until his death, his voice is a fresh memory with me. It was at his repeated, earnest solicitation that I undertook this family history and genealogy. See Biog.

All the family, of which he was the youngest, were born at the old Righter (first wife) mansion, on the left bank of the river Schuylkill, above the mouth of the romantic Wissahickon Creek, now a part of the famed Fairmount Park of Philad. His mother died when he was twenty months old. When three years old the family removed to the homestead of his mother, on Ridge Avenue, in Roxborough, where he spent his life, and died Mch. 14, 1893.

He was buried in Leverington Cemetery, which was laid out and incorporated by him and others of the family, upon land inherited from their mother, Deborah⁶ Levering.

In a letter of Feb. 13, 1893, Mr. L. wrote of himself: "My name is William Wigard. I enlisted in Co. K, 1st Ohio Vol. Inf., Aug. 17, 1861; was discharged with my company Sep. 8, 1864; was absent from my regiment but three days during that time. I was but 16 years old when I enlisted. I was in fifteen hard-fought battles, among them Shiloh, Stone River, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Mission Ridge, Resacca, Kenesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, etc., and in about fifty skirmishes, and received no hurt. My age disqualified me for commission. I had the pleasure [?] of meeting our historian, Col. John Levering, on the battlefield of Chickamauga. I have been with the Adams Express Co. 11 years." [Some of New York's dandy "400" who are seeking commissions at the hands of their Governor, in the militia of the State, might envy that "soldier boy" his record as a "private."]

His mother having died at St. Mary's, Ohio, when he was five months old, Gussie, as he was called, was taken in charge by a relative of a different surname. When the excitement, which is well remembered, prevailed over the whole country, consequent upon the kidnaping of the little child, Charley Ross, at Germantown, Philad., and photographs of the stolen boy were extensively circulated, in the hope of finding him, searchers came upon Gussie Levering, who bore a marked resemblance to the lost child, and being known as an adopted child in the household of his protector, he was siezed upon, and under order of Court taken from Ohio to Philadelphia, in August, 1877, for recognition, but the parents of Charlie Ross disclaimed him on sight. During an examination by the bereaved parents and others, our subject, then six years old, insisted, "My name is Gustus Levering. I ain't got any other name." So he was relieved from the gaze of immense crowds, who gathered about the cars and other places, and was carefully returned to his foster-mother.

DESCENDANTS OF GERHARD LEVERING.

For personal of Gerhard², see children of Rosier Levering.

THIRD GENERATION.

Children of (7) Gerhard¹ and Mary Levering.

1. I. ABRAHAM²: b. about 1695 in Roxborough, Philad.; married Ann ———. He d. July 29, 1730, at Philad., and was buried in the grounds of Christ's Church. Nothing is known of his wife Ann, but I infer from Abraham's history that she died first. I believe her maiden surname was Randle or Randall. See statements of him elsewhere. (6)

2¹ II. HENRY²: b. about 1699, in Roxb. His wife's given name was Catharine. It is not known whether they married in Roxborough. In 1730 or 1731 he removed with his father and brothers to Whitpain Township, in the west end of, then, Philad. County, where his father purchased 100 acres of land for him, in 1731. He d. probably in Jan., 1778, in Whitpain, and was buried at Boehm Churchyard. The destruction of the earliest records of Boehm Church deprives me of data concerning him, his father, and others of his generation. (9)

His will was probated at Philad., Feb. 7, 1778. In it he states: "I bequeath my largest Bible unto my grandson, Daniel Levering, son of Garrett Levering." I have made effort to trace and find this bible. My want of success does not satisfy me that the old volume is not in hiding somewhere.

3. III. JACOB²: b. about 1701, at Roxb. Removed with his parents in 1730-1, to Whitpain Tp., where, in 1731, he acquired 100 acres of land through his father. In "Pennsylvania Marriages," Vol. II, page 42, in "First Presbyterian Church of Philad. list," is recorded the fact of his marriage, thus: "1:28:1732, Jacob Levering to Sinah Davis." (13)

He subsequently became a proselyte to the Friends or Quaker Society. In his will, dated Jan. 28, 1793, which was admitted to probate in court at Norristown,* he makes a bequest to the Gwynedd Preparatory Meeting, and was buried in the grounds of that Meeting. He devised to "my cousin, Daniel Levering, grandson of my brother Henry Levering, my plantation or tract of land, containing 100 acres, situate in Whitpain," and further, "I give my large English bible to my cousin, Henry Levering." As he called the grandson of his brother Henry, his "cousin," in this bequest, he must have referred to Henry¹ Levering, son of his brother Daniel², as there appears no other Henry.

4. IV. DANIEL³: b. Dec. 2, 1704, in Roxb. In archives of Christ's Church, Phila., is preserved a Marriage Register, which shows: "May 12, 1735, Daniel Levering and Margaret Beane. 12 sh. pd.," i. e., fee, 12 shillings. (14)

Daniel occupied and cultivated his 100 acres of land in Whitpain Township, now in Montgomery County, and died there on June 12, 1776. His widow followed him on Jan. 9, 1778. They were buried at Boehm Church. His will, dated Mch. 11, 1776, was probated in Philad., July 6, 1776.

5. V. MAGDALENA³: b. about 1707, in Roxb. From the statement of Mrs. Heist, it appears that Magdalena was living in 1731, in Whitpain, as she was made the beneficiary of a money equivalent from her father, when he allotted to each of his sons 100 acres of land. It is believed that she did not marry. The destruction of the old records of Boehm Church, as has been related, deprives me of any record of her decease.

* Norristown, the county seat of Montgomery County, which was created in 1784, from the western part of Philadelphia County.

FOURTH GENERATION.

Children of (1) Abraham³ and Ann Levering.

6. I. JOHN¹: b. Sept. 29, 1720, in Roxb.; d. July 20, 1721; b. in Christ's Church grounds, Philad.
7. II. RANDLE JOHN¹: b. Oct. 19, 1722, in Roxb.; d. Nov. 26, 1723; b. in Christ's Church grounds, Philad. Recent discovery of the above in the records of old Christ's Church in Philad., and the fact, with dates, of their christening in a few days after birth, suggests the membership of the parents in this Anglican congregation. The deaths are noted also in the Penna. Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. 5, p. 225.
8. III. JOHN¹: b. Dec. 11 (O. S.), 23 (N. S.), 1723, in Philad.; m. May 19, 1748, at Bethlehem, Pa., Maria Susanna, fourth dau. of John and Maria Apollonia (Marrett) Bechtel of Germantown, Philad., where she was b. Feb. 22, 1730. The ceremony performed by the noted divine, Bishop Spangenberg, of the Moravian Church. Mr. Bechtel was a man of local importance, and an interesting character in the religious history of the German settlers of Penna.

 72. V. ELIZABETH⁶: b. May 8, 1792, in Whitpain.
 73. VI. MARGARET⁶: b. about 1794, in Whitpain.

Daniel⁶, in his last will, executed July 29, 1817, provided that his "wife Susannah," shall have and occupy during her natural life, all his property, real and personal, "except so much of my property which Jacob Booz now has in his possession, he, the said Jacob Booz, and his wife to have the same so long as they both shall live, and after the decease of them both, then to belong to my wife. The said wife and heirs to pay unto the heirs of Jacob Booz so much money as the said Jacob Booz expended in putting buildings on the same."

The will provided further that after the death of his wife, "then my real and personal estate is to descend to my beloved daughter," without naming her. It is assumed that both Elizabeth and Margaret were dead, and had died unmarried, before July, 1817, as Catharine survived until 1872, and her husband, John Heist, was constituted "whole and sole executor" under the will.

There is no explanation as to Daniel's relation to Booz. Hon. Jones Detwiler, on August 1, 1892, answered me: "I am inclined to believe that some branch of the Leverings was married into the Boaz, now called Booz, family here." As Mr. H. G. Jones was in correspondence during the year 1856 with Catharine⁶, and her son, Dr. Daniel Levering Heist, of Whitpain, both since deceased, it is surprising that he did not secure data relating to other members of her family.

Mrs. Esther Rambo Selover, of Chesterville, O., wrote May 5, 1892: "My father, William Rambo, was from Upper Merion, near Norristown, Pa. He learned a mechanical trade. Took contract to build a stone house in Bedford Co., Pa., for Daniel Levering, whose daughter, Grace, he subsequently married. They soon after came to Knox Co., O., and entered a tract of 160 acres of land. The parents of Grace,—Daniel and Mary Levering,—came along. They brought numerous live stock along. Grace cared for her sick mother, and milked nine cows through the entire journey. William Rambo entered lands also in Licking Co., O."

Miss Elmira A. Rambo, adds: "They were God-fearing, industrious people, and were interested in all good works. By his will, he made each of his children, and a grandchild, life members of the foreign missionary society of the Presbyterian Church."

80. II. HENRY⁶: b. July 18, 1791, in Belfast Tp., Bedford Co., Pa.; m. April 24, 1817, in Knox Co., O., Dinah Cook, who was b. June 7, 1795, and d. Jan. 29, 1836. The history of Knox Co., O., relates that the marriage of Henry Levering and Dinah Cook was the first ceremony in their locality.

81. III. CHARLES⁶: b. Aug. 19, 1793, in Belfast, Pa.; m. in Ohio, July 13, 1819, Mary Blair, who was b. Feb. 7, 1795, and d. Dec. 17, 1848, in Knox Co., O. Mr. L. subsequently resided in Delaware Co., O., until 1853, when he removed to Sparta in Monroe Co., Wis., where he d. May 24, 1869. (257)

82. IV. NATHAN⁶: b. Oct. 14, 1795, in Belfast, Pa. In 1813 he removed with his parents to Knox Co., O., where, on April 17, 1827, he m. Mary Karney, who was b. Sept. 4, 1800. They resided on a farm about 2½ miles from Levering, O., where he died. (267)

He was a man of considerable intellectual ability, and took more than ordinary interest in the history of his family.

83. V. JOHN⁶: b. Dec. 27, 1797, in Bedford Co., Pa. Removed in 1813 with his parents to Knox Co., O., where he m. Sept. 11, 1821, Charlotte, dau. of Abraham and Elizabeth Blair, who were of the party that emigrated from Penna. (275)

He was a man of enterprising business habits. He contributed largely to the location and development of the present town of Levering, in Knox Co., O., whose history and his were blended. He already owned and operated a flouring mill (built by his father) and a store at the place, when in 1841 the town was laid out by his brother Noah and one Fawcett, to be known as Levering,—the same designation as had been given to the Post Office in October, 1836, when it was established upon the application of John Levering, who was made Postmaster. Because of some differences between John and Fawcett, the name Levering was dropped and that of Waterford substituted, which was the known designation until in the year 1893, when, by judicial proceeding, on my persuasion, the name LEVERING was permanently fixed and conforms to the continued name of the Post Office.

John continued in business until his health failed in 1865. He d. Mch. 13, 1871. Mrs. L. d. Feb. 7, 1890, aged 90 years. She was a woman of unusual force, both physically and intellectually. Her early experiences in the wilderness exposed to Indian incursions and other dangers, developed her natural characteristics.

84. VI. WILLIAM⁶: b. July 23, 1800; d. Aug. 1805, in Bedford Co., Pa.

85. VII. NOAH⁶: b. Nov. 17, 1802, in Bedford Co., Pa. Removed in the year 1813, with his parents, to Knox Co., Ohio, where he m., Mch. 25, 1828, Armanella, dau. of John and Ann Cook, who had removed from Washington Co.,

While attending the family reunion, in Aug., 1891, I called upon this family. They occupied a comfortable, two-storied brick house, which was built in the year 1823, by the father of Milton. While enjoying the visit, my mind reverted to my small-boy days, when numerous emigrant wagons used to start out from Philadelphia, toward the West. We used to watch them with much concern, and remark of them—"going to the backwoods of Ohio"—which seemed to us so remote that we would never more hear of them; nor did we suppose there were LEVERINGS at that time occupying brick farm houses in the supposed "backwoods," built before I was born.

125. IX. MARY⁶: b. Apl. 7, 1825, in Ohio; m. June 9, 1848, to Josiah M. Stilwell. Their dau., Mrs. Xantha Ireland, wrote of them: "They began and ended their married life upon a part of his father's farm, near to Levering, O. He improved it, and made a charming home. He was a kind and excellent man and neighbor. Her death was caused by cancer. She d. Mch. 17, 1872. He d. Aug. 24, 1893. They are buried in the Baptist Cemetery on Owl Creek. They belonged to that church." (436)

On October 14, 1895, I received a telegram from Henry Lavering, of Milford, in Kosciusko County, Indiana, informing of the death of Daniel Lavering. I responded at once, asking explanation and for the family relations, but received no reply.

On January 16, 1897, one Samuel Lavering wrote me from same place, stating that my letter had fallen into his hands on his return from Iowa. That the telegram—missent to LaFayette—was in search of John, a brother of Daniel, and was not intended for me. Essay-ing to answer my inquiries, Samuel stated that he knew no ancestor beyond his grandfather, William (father of Daniel and others), who was born about 1796, in Pennsylvania, in vicinity of Philadelphia; that he was the oldest of three children, a brother and sister being all that were known to them, nor were their christian names known; that the maiden name of William's mother was Haus, or Hass (a common family name, I am informed, in the early settlement of Wilt-pain, Montgomery Co., Pa.); that while too young to remember,

William's parents separated and he was reared in the family of one Motherger, whose residence is not known; that when he attained matured years, he (William) removed to Montgomery County, Ohio, where he married Elizabeth Schuder, and where their first child, Daniel, was born in 1830; that soon after they removed to Allen County, Ohio, and from there to Elkhart County, Indiana, where he died in 1870. Nine children were born to them. David, the father of Samuel, being one of the number.

Subsequent correspondence with Samuel encouraged him to make investigation among his surviving uncles and aunts for family history. The results were meager. I glean from his statements: (1) "One of my aunts says grandfather's brother was named John, and another says Jonathan." (2) "My uncle, John Lavinger, of Ober, Starke County, Indiana, told me about Mothergers, but he did not know what county in Pennsylvania. He mentioned Bedford County." (3) "My oldest aunt, Chesty, remembers that my grandfather told that his mother's maiden name was Häss." (4) "My grandfather could not read English, and all my uncles and aunts speak Pennsylvania Dutch."

The Dutch idiocracies of name and dialect are evidences that this branch is of the Gerhard vine, as he removed in 1731 into a Dutch locality in Pennsylvania, and his offspring remained there, even the removal to Bedford County did not change their idiom of language. The transplanting from Montgomery County to Bedford County, Pennsylvania, the subsequent following to Ohio, and thence to Northeastern Indiana, suggested strongly a relation to (35) John⁵, and I recognized in (101) William⁶, born 1796, and who was reported as having died in infancy, the supposed object of my quest, but the members of that family connection aver that this William did not survive. The grave marker of William, in grounds at New Paris, Elkhart County, Indiana, tells: "Died Oct. 5, 1870, aged 73 years, 3 month, 7 days." From these data his birth date is estimated.

Samuel sent for my inspection, the certificate of the christening of his father, David. It is in German print and script, and states: "In the year of our Lord, 1843, on 30 September, in Jackson Township, Elkhart County, Indiana, was born in holy wedlock a child named David. Parents, Wilhelm Levering und Frau Elizabeth, geborene Schuder. The ceremony performed by Rev. Andreas Hinkel." From this it appears that the corrupting vowel which has crept into the surname, is chargeable to the existing generation.

As my compilation is considered complete, and the descendants are a recent accession, and I can not place them with certainty, I assign them place collectively. William appears a dropped stitch in the family fabric in the sixth generation.

BIOGRAPHIES.

T. ELLARD BEANS.

(558 of Gerhard.)

(CONTRIBUTED.)

WAS born in Salem, Ohio, in 1829, of Scotch-Irish parentage, his father, Israel Beans, and mother, Jane Byrnes, having emigrated to Ohio from Virginia, early in the Century. He was brought up in the midst of the stirring Anti-Slavery times, Salem being a Quaker settlement, was naturally one of the staunchest for human rights. It was one of the strongholds of the Underground Railway for escaping slaves. When a lad, Mr. Beans helped one of these unfortunate negroes on his road to Canada and freedom, by driving him in a closed carriage by night, to the next station.

With such an Ancestry and Quaker blood in his veins, and with such influences about him, during the plastic days of youth, what wonder that he became one of the hardy pioneers of the great West.

After a few years of business in Philadelphia and Pittsburg, both in commercial and banking houses, he, with a party of adventurous youths, started in 1849, overland for the gold fields of California. After many ups and downs of fortune among them—being flooded out in Sacramento, and losing everything but a lot of crow-bars,—he went to the mines, and located in Nevada City, where he mined for two or three years, and then opened a general merchandise store for Miner's supplies.

Here, in 1856, he married Virginia Knox, of London, Missouri.

A few weeks after his marriage the city was nearly destroyed by fire, and he narrowly escaped with his life. In 1861 he lost his wife and youngest son, and was left with two little children, a son and daughter. His home being broken up he visited Ohio, hoping the change might restore his health.

After various changes he finally (in March, 1866,) settled in San Jose, where he founded the Bank of San Jose (which was the pioneer bank of Santa Clara County), of which he has been manager, President and principal owner for thirty years.

In August of the same year he married Charlotte Bray, daughter of John Grandin Bray and Frances L. Miller, and great granddaughter of Anna Johanna Levering.

There were two daughters born to them, Frances Levering and Anna Rowena.

In the midst of the financial panic of 1875, in California, the Bank of San Jose stood firm. Again in 1893, during another financial stress, his bank came through unscathed.

Thus for thirty years has the subject of this sketch stood among the foremost men of the State for sound business integrity and unswerving honesty of purpose.

Every scheme for the public welfare finds in him an earnest friend and helper.

For fifteen years he served on the Board of Trustees of the State Normal School, and during that time the building was destroyed by fire. The State appropriated $150,000 to rebuild, and the Board returned to the State Treasury several thousand dollars after having erected a fine, substantial building—something rare in the history of public officials.

In 1892 he took great interest in Sunday closing of saloons, and, with others, succeeded in carrying the ordinance.

At the present time he is engaged with fifteen other freeholders informing a new charter for the city, in which they hope to reform many municipal abuses.

(CONTRIBUTED.)

GEORGE HENRY BOKER was born in Philadelphia, Pa., October 6, 1823. He was the son of Charles S. Boker, a wealthy financier of Quaker descent.

In 1842 he graduated from Princeton College, and afterwards studied law, which, however, he never practiced. In 1847—after a return from a tour of Europe—he published "The Lesson of Life and Other Poems," followed in 1848 by a tragedy called "Calaynos," which was successfully brought out on the stage in England. He next produced the tragedies of "Anne Boleyn," "Leonora de Guzman" and "Francesca da Rimini" and numerous other plays and poems of merit. During the Civil War, he wrote many patriotic lyrics.

His later works were "Street Lyrics," "Konigsmarkt and Other Poems," (1869) "The Book of the Dead," (1882) and a volume of sonnets which appeared in 1886.

Mr. Boker was appointed by President Grant in the fall of 1871, Minister to Turkey and in 1875 was transferred to the more important mission of Russia.

In Philadelphia he filled many prominent positions. He was Secretary of the Union League of Philad., the foremost of Republican Associations in this country, and was its President from 1879 to 1884, when he retired.

He was President of the Fairmount Park Commission since 1886, was a director of the Mechanics National Bank, and an active member of the Philadelphia Club.

He died January 2, 1890, after an illness of several months, at his residence, No. 1720 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

It is noticeable that the subject of this biography bears the surname of the maternal progenitor of one branch of the Levering family in America—Magdalena Boker, wife of Wigard Levering—born at Leyden, in Holland, and married at Gemen, in Germany, in the year 1674. Mr. Boker was manifestly of the same source. The successive generations following in parallel lines for two centuries, again become affiliated.

FRANCIS ANTHONY DREXEL.

(CONTRIBUTED.)

FRANCIS ANTHONY DREXEL was born January 20, 1824, 90 Sixth Street, below Chestnut, in the City of Philadelphia. He was the oldest son of Francis Martin Drexel, who came to the United States in 1817. The elder Drexel was born at Dornbirn, Austrian Tyrol, April 1, 1792, and some sketch of his career will be of interest to those who wish to know about his son. He was a man of unusual talent and energy, and began life as a student of the fine arts in a Catholic Institution near Turin. When he returned home in 1809, he found his country invaded by the French, and himself liable to conscription. He went, therefore, to Switzerland, and subsequently to Paris. Returning to the Tyrol in 1812, incognito, and finding the conscription still in force, he sailed from Amsterdam to the United States and settled in Philadelphia. After a few years he went to Peru and Chili in pursuit of his profession of portrait painting. While in these countries he contracted a friendship with General Simon Bolivar, whose portrait he painted. Upon his return from his South American travels, he founded, in Philadelphia, the banking house of Drexel & Company in 1837. On the death of Francis M. Drexel, which occurred on the 5th of June, 1863, the business was continued on the lines he had laid down, and developed until it has attained its present commanding position, by his three sons, Francis Anthony, Anthony Joseph and Joseph Wilhelm, all of whom are now (1895) dead. Between the two brothers, Francis and Anthony, there existed the closest intimacy and absolute confidence. Together they gave their life's work to the upbuilding of the great power of their banking house, and the exercise of that power to the wisest and most enlightened ends. To the world at large, therefore, the life of Francis A. Drexel is but a part of the history of Drexel & Co., and will be found of interest to those who wish to study the growth of such institutions and their influence upon the communities in which they exist.

But there is another, and to him the most important, side of Mr. Drexel's life and character that the world could but guess at—the inner life, the habit of thought, that found its outlet in the privacy of the home, and the exercise of practical charity. His business talents brought him the command of a large fortune, and he recognized the obligations its possession devolved upon him. He gave munificently—to the poor, to religious and charitable corporations, to many a worthy cause—yet all without ostentation, and, whenever possible, so that the world at large should know neither the benefactor nor the recipient of his bounty. He was a man of the simplest tastes and habits. Music was one of his greatest pleasures, and he knew much of its science. He was a master of the organ, and found recreation in playing upon it. At his residence he possessed a fine instrument, and in his earlier manhood he was wont to act as organist of his church. He was a keen lover of nature, and had made himself very familiar with botany and arboriculture. His country place was graced by beautiful plants and flowers, and his gardens were notable for their choice fruits and vegetables. While his wealth might have procured these things without exertion, they could never have afforded him the pleasure he derived from growing them. Animal life afforded him an unceasing and absorbing interest; his horses, his cows, his dogs, his poultry, his pigeons, he knew them all, and from his hand they were sure to receive evidence of his care.

An early riser, he enjoyed riding on horseback along the country roads and watch the harvest fields as they were lighted by the first beams of the sun. With such tastes, it is not strange that he preserved a clear head, a strong and simple mind to deal with the heavy problems daily presented to him.

Mr. Drexel had little opportunity for education as the term is generally understood. From his thirteenth year he had been engaged in business, and it would not have been strange had he looked with little reverence on the learning of books; but this was not so. He was a careful and appreciative reader, his library comprising many volumes, the contents of which he well knew. No one could talk with him and fail to be impressed with his clear, strong, and often original views upon every vital question of life. His manner of speech was simple and direct. He was tolerant of the opinions of others, but he looked with aversion upon anything that savored of affectation. His bearing, while always dignified and self-respecting, was singularly unobtrusive and kindly. A cordial grasp of the hand, a hearty greeting, awaited the friend or neighbor wherever met.

The key-note to his character was his religion. He was earnestly convinced of the truths of Christianity as taught by the Catholic church, and to it his life was devoted, not alone in the, to him, easy duty of giving alms, but in the supreme duty, difficult to all of whatsoever nature, of self-discipline, self-control. He followed with steady steps the teachings of the church and the dictates of his conscience.

Mr. Drexel died on the 15th day of February, 1885, leaving to survive him three daughters, two of whom are still living. His will further accentuated his character. One tithe of his great fortune he bequeathed to various charities, and made provision whereby the remainder will follow in case of the extinction of his direct line of descent within the legal period.

CATHARINE M. DREXEL.

MISS CATHARINE M. DREXEL, as known to the world, and as genealogically embraced in this compilation, has retired from social life, and has devoted herself to alms and good works. Known in her church, by religious consecration, as "Mother Katharine," she is the head of an order called the "Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament for Indians and Colored People." The society consists of religious women of the Roman Catholic Church who have dedicated themselves to charitable labor. As indicated by their title, they are especially set apart for educating and training the American Indian and colored races.

Notwithstanding the fact that the highest social standing was enjoyed in the society of Philadelphia, and that great wealth was bestowed upon her by her father, Miss Drexel willingly abandoned the first and generously bestowed the latter as so many talents entrusted to her keeping.

Her munificence erected a conventual chapel and extensive buildings at Andalusia, in Bucks County, Penna., a short distance from Philadelphia, where a large number of colored children of both sexes are being educated. In addition, another house has been established in New Mexico for Indians, and another is in contemplation, to be constructed in Virginia, for colored people.

Miss Drexel assumed the White Veil of her monastic order at Philadelphia, on November 7, 1889, and secondary vows were taken at Pittsburgh, Pa., on February 2, 1891. Her final vows of consecration until death, to Poverty, Chastity and Obedience, were pronounced on January 9, 1895, in the Chapel of the Sisterhood, which she, herself, founded as St. Elizabeth's Convent of the Blessed Sacrament, near to Philadelphia; built of Moorish design, partaking of the architectural outlines of ancient Mission buildings in California and Mexico.

Following the example of the Master, though she was rich, yet for their sakes she became poor, that they through her poverty might be rich.

There is no monument, no fame, more enduring than the imperishable memory of one who has made the world better by having lived in it.

JACOB REESE ECKFELDT.

JACOB R. ECKFELDT, the son of Adam and Margretta Eckfeldt of the city of Philadelphia, was born there in March 1803.

Because of his father's faithful and life-time service under appointment by President Washington in 1794,—in the United States Mint at Philadelphia, Jacob, in early life, became skilled in the assay of precious metals, under his father's instruction, and so early as 1832, succeeded to the office of Chief Assayer of the United States Mint, and held the position through varying administrations, until his death—a period of more than forty years.

When Mr. Eckfeldt entered upon this work, the machinery and refining apparatus of the mint were old-fashioned and the weighing processes inexact. When gold became a standard of currency, rather than an object of curiosity and ornament, there was need of new systems. His scientific mind and education were equal to the emergency, and the reforms made by him were adopted in other countries. The uses of various alloys, as nickel, bronze, etc., commanded his close application and ingenuity, in adapting them to their new uses and amalgamation with other metals, but he met every demand upon him to the satisfaction of related branches of the government service.

He not only educated young men in the science of metallurgy and assays of precious metals, but was the author of several publications upon these subjects, which were availed of by scientific men, in like service, abroad. An ex-officer of the Royal Mint at London, in response to notice of the death of Mr. Eckfeldt, wrote, "I have to express my unfeigned regret at this loss to science, and especially our branch of it. I was not personally known to Mr. Eckfeldt, but I can say his name and his works will live forever in the wide world. I sympathize in the loss his official relations will have to sustain."

Mr. E. was reared in the Lutheran Church, under the religious guidance of his parents, but subsequently espoused the Presbyterian faith, and held the office of Elder for many years, honoring the position and promoting benevolent objects. After a few months of impaired health he died August 9, 1872, in his 70th year.

The measure of loss sustained by the government was expressed in meetings held in the United States Mints at Philadelphia and at San Francisco, and the records of these institutions bear testimony of their privation.

Mr. Eckfeldt's son and namesake succeeded him in the Mint at Philadelphia, which has not been without an Eckfeldt since its establishment.

LEONARD MATTHEWS FINLEY.

BORN in New Orleans, Sept. 6, 1846, the subject of this sketch was forced by circumstances to enter early into the battle of life. That in the short space of time allotted to him on earth he achieved a victory, the record of his life will show.

After an academic education he entered, as collector, the office of the Sun Mutual Insurance Company, of New Orleans, of which his maternal grandfather—for whom he was named—had been President at the time of his death in January, 1854. While in its employ he studied law, receiving his degree of Bachelor of Law from the Law Department of the University of Louisiana in 1872, graduating with honor. At the same time he had become a proficient in shorthand, and a good French and German scholar. Circumstances prevented his practicing law, and he devoted his energies to insurance, rising rapidly through all the grades of promotion, until he was elected Vice-President of the company in 1888, and President in 1892. Other positions of trust confided to him were: Manager of the Southern Department of the Palatine Insurance Company, of England; Vice-President of the River and Marine Underwriters; a director of the Board of Trade, of the Canal Bank, and New Orleans Improvement Society; a member of the Chamber of Commerce; several times President of the Underwriters' Association; President of the Fire Patrol; member of the Executive Committee of the New Orleans Fire Underwriters' Association; President of the Louisiana Club, and member of the Pickwick Club—social organizations—and of the Carnival Mystic Societies, and of the Louisiana Historical Society. On the death of Senator Gibson, in 1892, he was made a member of the administrators of the Tulane University. "As a member of the Committee on Free Scholarships, one of the most important of the Board, as a member on real estate and the academical buildings of the H. Sophie Newcomb College (for girls), and the New Medical Building, he served with distinction, and the new university on St. Charles Avenue stands to-day as a monument to his memory, for he was a member of the special committee on college grounds and buildings and chairman of the sub-committee on new college buildings."

He was captain of a company of the White League on the memorable 14th of September, 1874. The minutes adopted by the Administrators of the Tulane University, state in that connection: "Although he was uniformly of modest and unassuming manner, his participation in the stirring incidents of that occasion furnish the proof that he was possessed of heroic qualities and readiness to assert and defend his convictions of duty, if need be with his life."

As a son, husband, father and brother he was a bulwark of protection and duty, a cheerful and affectionate companion, of broad intellect, wide yet thorough reading, genial and witty, temperate in all things, never boastful, with a heart and hand ever open to charity. "As a friend," it was written of him, "he was one of those whom we are commended to 'grip to our hearts with hooks of steel.'"

What he was to his business associates and to the welfare of the city may best be gathered from the following extracts from resolutions adopted at his death: "While submitting to the will of our Heavenly Father," the Chamber of Commerce declares, "we deeply regret the loss of one whose heart and brain were so deeply in sympathy with every movement which tended to the advancement of the moral and commercial interest of our city or was conducive to the happiness and prosperity of her citizens. * * * A man of talent and a man of heart, a pure and patriotic citizen, and one whose place can not well be filled."

The Directors of the Sun Mutual Insurance Company adopted the following: "That the death of Leonard M. Finley is to us a calamity which no extravagance of language can exaggerate, and which even the healing hand of time can only partially repair. He was possessed in an eminent degree of those qualities of heart and mind which not only command success in the pursuit of business, but win esteem, confidence and affection. He presented a combination of talents and virtues rarely found united, and which secured to him the admiration and confidence and the love of all who came in contact with him. Indeed, of him it may most truly be said that

'None knew him but to love him,
None named him but to praise.'"

He died at New Orleans, La., June 7, 1894. Buried in Live Oak Cemetery, Pass Christian, Miss.

THE railway management of the country feels the influence and energy of a lineal descendant, or, perhaps, ascendant of the family pioneer, in the person of William Wilson Finley, of the Baltimore branch of Leverings, who was born in 1853 in the city of Pass Christian, Miss.

His initiation into his chosen profession was, fortunately, in the office of a railroad manager in New Orleans, in 1873, where, beginning as a stenographer, his adaptation to executive work soon made him Chief Clerk and Assistant General Freight Agent, in connection with both the Illinois Central and the Texas & Pacific Railroads. Promoted to the office of General Freight Agent of the latter road, he located in Texas in the year 1886, and remained there until he accepted a like office in the management of the Denver, Texas & Fort Worth Railroad, which required his location in Denver, Colorado, in 1888.

A Traffic Association of western roads being organized, Mr. Finley was selected as Chairman, and removed in 1889 to Kansas City, Mo., remaining until 1891, when he was called to Chicago to assume charge of a like organization. But the "come up higher" induced him to relinquish this position in 1892 and accept the duties of General Traffic Manager of the Great Northern Railway System, with offices at St. Paul, Minn.

The paramount consideration of health induced Mr. F. to remove in 1895 to the southland, where he filled the position of Commissioner of the Southern States Passenger Association, with offices at Atlanta, Ga., for a short time.

Then he accepted the offer of the chair of Third Vice-President of the Southern Railway Company at Washington, D. C.

After but eight months occupancy of this position, the offer of the Second Vice-Presidency, by the Great Northern Railway Company, and their urgency, persuaded him to resume his residence at St. Paul, in May, 1896, but preferring a southern location, he was prevailed upon by the Southern Railway Company at Washington, D. C., to return to them, in an advanced position—as Second Vice-President. He was installed in September, 1896, and is actively employed in the duties of the office.

These frequent steps appear as rounds in the ladder, by which the subject of this sketch is climbing to a position but few attain.

To paraphrase the bard of Avon: "Some are born to succeed, some achieve success, and some have success thrust upon them," he might have added, but not without merit.

HEINRICH FREY, the progenitor of the Fry family in America, was a native of Altheim, in the province of Alsace, in Germany, born about 1652. He, with three others, came as adventurers to America about or before 1680—before the advent of William Penn. It has been believed that Wigard Levering was one of his pioneer companions, but we have sufficient record evidence to dissipate this tradition.

The party located as "squatters" on a plain near to the Wicohickon Creek, between what has since become Germantown and Roxborough, Philad.

It is known that the settlement of Germantown was made in October, 1683, by Francis Daniel Pastorius and his fellow immigrants (33 persons) from Frankfort, Germany. In the summer of 1685 Wigard Levering arrived with his wife, four children and brother Gerhard. Nearly six years after, as is shown in her genealogical order, Anna Catharine, daughter of Wigard Levering, then sixteen years old, married Heinrich Frey, who was at the time said to be twenty-four years the senior of his girl wife. The marriage ceremony was performed, pursuant to notice nailed on the door, in the little log meeting house which the settlers of Germantown had erected, and in the presence of the assembled population, (see copy of marriage certificate in place). This ceremony was for a long time believed to have been the first marriage in the province, but there is record of a prior wedding. They were residents of Roxborough, where Frey purchased one hundred acres of land from John Jennett, patentee, by deed dated October 1, 1692. This tract adjoined a like area owned by Gerhard Levering. The conveyance executed for the sale of this land to John George Wood furnishes evidence of their removal from Roxborough and settling on Towamencin Creek, near to Skippack, in the westerly part of Philadelphia County, before 1700, as in the deed, dated March 9, 1700, Frey identifies himself as "Henry Frey, of the parts adjacent to VanBebber (since Skippack) Township, in the county of Philadelphia, Turnet."

Hon. Abm. H. Cassel has documentary evidence that the conveyance of 200 acres on Towamencin to Frey for the consideration of thirty-three pounds, was dated December 10, 1724, and that was regarded as the time of settlement. This date, in my opinion, fixed the time of final payment which entitled him to deed. It has been shown that deeds of conveyance for lands and lots in Germantown as allotted to and occupied by the early settlers, were executed years after the purchase and possession.

Henry Frey's signature appears upon a preserved petition for locating the Skippack road to Farmer's Mill, in Whitmarsh Township, which was made in 1713. Mr Cassel has the original plat of survey of Frey's 200 acres, as dated "26th of first month (March), 1713." It is known that Frey and family were the first occupants of this land. After his purchase his sons walked up from their Roxborough home, eighteen to twenty miles, carrying provisions for a week, to make a clearing and build a house, which was completed and occupied by the family the succeeding spring. His purchase was part of a tract of 1,250 acres in the wilderness, first taken up by William Smith, of England, from William Penn, in March, 1682, and was then, and for long time after, partly occupied by wigwams of Indians. The consideration for the original purchase by Smith was "one shilling, sterling, for each and every 100 acres, payable yearly, on the first of March, forever."

The Freys appear to have been the pioneers of the Levering movement from Roxborough to Whitpain Township, nearby, as Gerhard Levering and his sons followed in 1730-1, though Peter Indehaven, a son-in-law of Wigard Levering, already a resident there, may have influenced the removal.

Henry Frey was an enterprising and successful man, and a mechanical genius. Tradition says he made the first plow used in the province. He was, as he states in several documents, a turner, by trade. Mr. Cassel wrote, "Heinrich was a Turner. I have a beautiful quart jar that he turned for my great-great-grandfather Christopher Saur, who, having studied medicine in Germany, before he came to America, established a drug store and apothecary in Germantown before he commenced printing. No glass jars could be had, and at that time, no facilities for importing them. Frey turned a great number of quart, half-gallon, and gallon jars for him, out of a peculiar kind of wood, which shows no grain, with tight fitting lids, and cornices to them. They were painted or varnished."

I am informed that Henry Frey had brothers, William and Andrew, living near, in Skippack. That the three, with a well known religious leader, Henry Antes, John Bechtel, and others, of various religious tendencies and persuasions, belonged to the "Associated Brethren of Skippack," an alliance for religious union and instruction, which held meetings during many years.

Becoming quite aged, Henry Fry in an article of agreement, to which his wife, Anna Catharine, and some of his children were parties, made provision for his and their maintenance. The instrument reads as follows :

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT indented made concluded and agreed upon this twetfth Day of october ano Dom one thousand seven hundred and thirty-two BETWEEN Henry Free of the County of Philadelphia and Province of Pensilvania Yeoman and Kathrin his wife of the one part and Jacob Free of the same place Turner, one of the sons of the said Henry and Kathrin, Eliza Free, Rebecca Free and Amaly Free three of the daughters of the said Henry and Kathrin of the other part in manner following, viz. It is strange that the signature of Jacob is omitted. It may have been that he was custodian of the paper, and hence his signing deemed unnecessary.

Endorsed upon the instrument are receipts, as follows :

“Received the Eighteenth Day of August anno D^m 1735 of the within named Jacob Fry the sum of Ten pounds in full with all other Legacies Portions Matters or things whatsoever within mentioned Due or becoming Due by the within articles unto the within named Elizabeth Fry now being my wife. I say recd.

By me Johannes Müller.”

“Received the Nineteenth Day of November A. D. one thousand Seven Hundred and thirty seven of the within named Jacob Fry the sum of Ten pounds in full with all other Legacies Portions Matters or things whatsoever within mentioned due or becoming Due by the within articles unto the within named Amelia Fry now being my wife I say recd.

By me Frederick Lembach
Amelia Lembach."

Mr. Cassel, who has the original of this document, says of it: "It is very large, like a title deed. The lines go across the whole paper, nearly two feet long. It was ready to fall apart from age, so I fixed it up in my large scrap book. It is written in English, but the style is antiquated."

Mr. C. suggests the education of the daughters, as their signatures are well written, and calls attention to the family name as spelled in the paper (evidently by a lawyer), Frey, "because that is the English of Fry."

The daughters have already anglicized the surname by dropping the vowel e, so I will conform to it.

The endorsed receipts by husbands suggests that the marriages of Elizabeth and Amelia occurred before 18 years of age, but we have evidence that the latter was nearly 20.

The dates of decease of Henry Frey and Anna Catharine are unknown. The latter was living in 1742, at the time of execution of her father's will. An article written in July, 1754, by the Lutheran Mission of America, under Rev. H. M. Muhlenberg, and published in the "Halle Reports" (Germany), stated that Anna Catharine was then still living.

After decease the remains of both were consigned to a family grave yard upon their home farm. Here the graves were marked by rough stones only, and the place had been much neglected, which came to the notice of a descendant about 30 years ago, when he purchased the hallowed spot, as evidenced by a recorded deed.

At my instance, my willing helper, Mr. James Y. Heckler, of Hatfield, Pa., visited the old grave yard in April, 1896, and wrote of it: "The yard is about forty or fifty feet square, enclosed by barbed wire fence, out of repair. The ground is overgrown with briars and some bushes. Three apple trees and one small cherry tree. No stone to be seen with letters or figures on it. Perhaps a dozen or fifteen stones. Some graves are badly sunken. Several children appear to have been buried under an apple tree. It is said that old Dr. Henry Fry, who died about 1845 to 50, was the last buried there. His brother, George, who died in 1853, was buried on the Skippack Mennonite Cemetery, as I saw to-day."

I repeat this description for preservation, as the place may—like most farm grave-yards—become a memory to grandchildren and be unknown to later generations.

The family appear to have left conspicuous “footprints in the sands” of the locality, which inspired a local bard—after the manner of the times—to an effusion in historic rhyme, which is entitled, “A LEGEND OF TOWAMENCIN.” It is rather diffuse for insertion here.

JACOB FRY, a lineal descendant of Heinrich Frey, who settled near to Philadelphia several years before the advent of William Penn, and a son of Hon. Jacob Fry, a member of Congress from Pennsylvania, was born at the Trappe, in Montgomery Co., Pa., on Feb. 9, 1834. His early and successful application as a student was a stepping stone to a collegiate course of education in his 14th year. He was graduated at Union College, New York, in the class of 1851, and at the Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1853. His first pastorate was over the Lutheran Church at Carlisle, Pa., which he held from 1854 to 1865. In the second year of this service he married Miss Eliza J. Wattles, of Gettysburg, Pa., who still survives.

On Feb. 1, 1865—thirty-one years ago—Mr. Fry was installed as pastor over the Trinity Lutheran Church, founded 1751, in Reading, Pa., which position he has held continuously ever since. His scholarly attainments were recognized by his Alma Mater, Union College, which conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him in 1873, and availed of by the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia, in which he was elected Professor of Homiletics and Sacred Oratory, in 1891, a position which divides his time with his pastoral duties in old Trinity.

A telegram from Reading, dated Feb. 7, 1896, to the Public Ledger, of Philad., reveals the unwillingness of his congregation to release him from his pastoral work. It read:

“Denominational circles in this city were stirred to-day by the news that Rev. Dr. Jacob Fry, the honored Pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, contemplated tendering his resignation. For the past few years Rev. Dr. Fry, in addition to presiding over a congregation of nearly 1,500 members, has been a member of the faculty of Mt. Airy (Philadelphia) Theological Seminary, and if he retires from the pastorate of Trinity, it is to give all his time and attention to the duties of his position at that institution. It is known that Dr. Fry had not such a step under consideration recently, but the first public indication of such intention was at the meetings of the Women's Missionary Society, Young People's Association, Sunday-school and other bodies of Trinity Church, when resolutions were passed requesting him to remain in his pastorate. Last Sunday Dr. Fry preached his thirty-first anniversary sermon as pastor of Trinity Church. During his residence he has become the acknowledged leader in local pulpit thought, and he is a preacher of rare power and eloquence. He is one of the leaders of the Pennsylvania Lutheran Ministerium, has held many offices within its gift, and is to-day preaching to a congregation which is 150 years old. The church edifice is 105 years old, and its pulpit has been filled by many eminent men, but Dr. Fry has been probably more successful as a pastor than any of his predecessors."

Nov. 24, 1896, I learn that Dr. Fry has been induced to resign his pastoral charge, and devote his time exclusively to his chair in the Theological Seminary.

REV. EUGENE P. GREIDER.

EUGENE PATTERSON GREIDER, son of Anna Marilda (Levering) and Michael Greider, was born at Warwick, Lancaster Co., Pa., on December 2, 1825.

Owing to circumstances beyond her control, his mother found it necessary to take the care and training of her children into her own hands. At the age of six years, the subject of this sketch was given into the care of his uncle, John Levering, who was a merchant at Lititz, Penna. At the age of eleven years he was transferred to the home of another uncle, Jacob Tschudy, a merchant of the same town. Following the custom of those days, at the age of sixteen years he was apprenticed to a tinner, in the city of Lancaster, Pa. This occupation he soon left to learn the shoemaker's trade. Then he engaged in at Bethlehem, Pa., where he was near to his mother, who had become stewardess of the Moravian Seminary for Young Ladies at that city. Before completing his apprenticeship to shoemaking, the residue of his time was purchased by a merchant who desired his services as a clerk in his store.

The missionary spirit of the Moravian Church, which belonged to him both by inheritance and early influence, soon after caused him to resolve to devote his time and ability to the ministry of the gospel among the heathen. Preparatory to this work, one year of service as teacher at Nazareth Hall—a Moravian boarding school for boys at Nazareth, Pa.,—intervened. Thus far his services had not been offered as a missionary, but in the year 1848, by request of a visiting missionary from the Island of St. Thomas (Danish W. Indies), he received and accepted an appointment as assistant missionary and teacher, and for six years he labored in this capacity on the islands of St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John, until recalled to work in the home church. On June 7, 1855, he married Sarah F. Carpenter, of Lancaster, Pa.

After ordination as deacon of the Moravian Church, a period of more than eighteen years was spent as pastor of the churches at Hope, Ind.; Graceham, Md. (where he received ordination to the second order of the ministry); Egg Harbor, N. J., and Lebanon, Pa. In 1873, with his family, he removed to the Southern Province of the Moravian Church. Here, as pastor, provincial elder and supply, more than eleven years of active, arduous service were accomplished. The exposure and travel in this service resulted in enforced retirement from active duties in the autumn of 1885, which determined his useful service of more than thirty-seven years. Both Mr. G. and his wife, in feeble health, are spending the evening of life at Lebanon, Pa. After much earnest, self-sacrificing work done for the Master, they have the sympathy and love of their children, who "rise up and call them blessed."

HON. CORNELIUS H. HANFORD.

(CONTRIBUTED)

THE subject of this sketch was born in Van Buren County, Iowa, in 1849. Four years later the family removed to the Pacific Coast, first settling in Oregon, and shortly afterwards coming to Seattle, on Puget Sound, where they finally made their home. Young Hanford and his brothers were educated in the public schools. His career as a youth and young man was that common to so many bright, energetic and ambitious young men of the western country. He worked on a farm in summer, taught school in winter. He displayed as a boy the qualities which later distinguished him as a man. He was diligent, studious, faithful in small things as well as large, and in every calling and employment won the confidence of those with whom he came in contact. On arriving at man's estate he studied law. He was largely his own preceptor. The law offices in Seattle in those early days afforded but scanty opportunity for instruction. The lawyer was too busy making a living to give much time to the student. The libraries were small, but they usually contained the leading text-books on the law. These became young Hanford's teachers, and he soon made up for the lack of other instruction by the diligence and intelligence with which he applied himself to the study of the great masters of law. He read and absorbed great books. He not only mastered them, but he mastered them in such a way that they became a part and parcel of his intellectual life and property. He became so thoroughly imbued with their spirit and mode of reasoning that when he discussed a question of law he spoke as if he were reading a text-book. In his early studies he did not overlook the statutes and statute law of the territory (now state) in which he lived; and upon his admission to the bar, there was scarcely a lawyer in the territory who was so thoroughly familiar with the statutes of Washington Territory, as young Hanford was. He was admitted to the bar in 1875. He tried his first case at the session of court at which he was admitted. In the management and conduct of the trial of that case he astonished the old lawyers. He displayed the skill, the coolness, the self-possession and fertility of resources of a veteran lawyer. To the ready and accurate knowledge of the facts of his case he united a clear and firm grasp of the law applicable to it that would have done credit to the most experienced member of the bar. From that on his progress in the profession was rapid. He soon took his place in the front rank of the bar of the territory, a position which he easily maintained until his retirement from practice to take the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory of Washington, to which he was appointed in the spring of 1880.

It was always a delight and a pleasure to listen to his law arguments. They were so clear, so direct, so logical; so free from irrelevant matter that courts, lawyers and laymen alike, listened to him with unflinching interest and unflagging attention on the dryest questions of the law. When he arose to make an argument the court expected to hear an instructive discussion of the principles involved, and he rarely disappointed expectations. He seldom discussed a law question without shedding light upon it. In the early years of his practice he was frequently called in to the trial of cases by other lawyers, and still more frequently consulted upon questions of common and statute law upon both of which he had come to be a recognized authority among the members of the local bar.

His judicial career began with his appointment as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory of Washington, in the spring of 1889. He held this position until the following fall, when the court ceased to exist by reason of the admission of the Territory into Statehood.

When Washington became a State Judge Hanford was appointed District Judge of the newly created District of Washington. In order to appreciate the difficulty, volume and importance of the work before Judge Hanford, on assuming his new duties, it will be necessary to understand the conditions existing in the new State.

Washington exhibits the physical and industrial features of two States. It is divided into two natural divisions by the Cascade range of mountains. The two sections are widely different. Agriculture is the chief industry of Eastern Washington, while in Western Washington the pursuits of the people are more diversified. There are besides agriculture, which is by no means unimportant, the great lumber interests, coal mining interests, shipping interests, and extensive fisheries. Both lumbering and coal mining are carried on upon an extensive scale. To build and operate the great sawmills of Puget Sound and to open and work the coal mines large capital is required. Hence it has come to pass that these enterprises are carried on for the most part by foreign corporations. Most of the litigation in which these companies are concerned finds its way into the United States Court. The same thing is true of the litigation in which the principal railway companies are concerned, for, being non-resident corporations, they have a right to remove all causes against them, sufficient in amount, to the Federal Court. The foreign and domestic shipping of Puget Sound is large and growing rapidly, and, as is usual in such cases, gives rise to considerable litigation in admiralty, of which the District Court has exclusive jurisdiction.

Beginning with the year 1888 a period of extraordinary expansion and development of the great natural resources of Washington took place, and was at its height when the first Federal Court was organized in the State. By act of Congress of April 5, 1890, Washington was divided, for judicial purposes, into four divisions, with provision for the holding of court at one place in each division, namely, at Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Walla Walla.

This was the situation in this State when Judge Hanford opened the United States Court for the first time in the State of Washington. The number and variety of cases that almost immediately poured into the District and Circuit Courts for the District of Washington were surprisingly large. It is not too much to say, when one considers the four calendars of the Clerk's office in the four divisions of the State, that no new State admitted to the Union within the last fifty years could show, within the first five years after its admission, anything approaching the amount of litigation thus presented. It was like merging the work of four districts into one. The volume of court business was enormously increased by the panic of 1893, throwing as it did five of the railway systems of the State into the hands of receivers, amongst them being one of the great transcontinental lines, namely, the Northern Pacific. In addition to all the rest, came the great Pullman strike and the Coxeys movement, with their inevitable disturbances and disorders.

A reference to the reported cases decided by Judge Hanford, numerous as they are, will give but an imperfect idea of the amount of work he had to perform. The court work arising from the multitude of receiverships was even more onerous than the consideration and decision of contested cases, and yet the only record of this work lies buried in the files of the clerk's office.

In spite of his inexperience in this new and difficult line of duty, he proved equal to the task before him. He organized his court. He proceeded to work with as little friction and awkwardness as if he had been accustomed to the duties all his life. A stranger looking on would never suspect that here was a new court, and a new and inexperienced judge. His early habits of industry and thorough reading in the law now stood him in good stead. He long ago acquired that great quality in lawyer or judge, "the transcendental capacity of taking trouble." He didn't spare it, and he didn't spare himself. Cases were heard and decided with commendable promptness. Nor was the quality of his judicial work permitted to suffer on account of the amount of work or the dispatch with which it was performed. When the Pullman strike was at its height, and the destruction of life and property was taking place elsewhere and was imminent here; when the Coxeys movement filled other States with its disorder and defiance of law, and threatened to produce the same conditions in Washington, Judge Hanford rendered an invaluable service to the fair name and reputation of the State by the vigor, firmness and stern impartiality of his administration of the law. The appeal to his court in proper form of law to preserve the peace and order of the State was answered with a promptness and vigor that made the law at once feared and respected. His firm, vigorous and impartial administration of the law, in his jurisdiction, has aided powerfully in making Washington a place where life and property are as secure and as well protected as in the most law-abiding parts of the country.

In the conduct of his court he is patient, considerate and attentive. He is a good listener—a great thing in a judge. He can sit for hours, patiently listening to an argument without saying a word or asking a question, but following the argument closely in every division and detail. His charges to juries are so plain and clear that jurors have often remarked that a case that seemed all confusion and perplexity during the trial became very simple and easy to understand after hearing the charge of the court. His opinions are distinguished by clearness of statement and soundness of reasoning.

Judge Hanford finds his pleasure and recreation in his work. A mere change of subjects of the law seems to afford him the rest which others have to seek in novels and kindred literature. Judge Hanford's reading, outside of strict law, is chiefly confined to works relating in some way to jurisprudence and the science of government. He accepts the dictum that "the law is a jealous mistress," and his devotion to it is single and undivided.

No man ever enjoyed a clearer reputation at the bar or on the bench for honesty and strict integrity, and whatever else may be said of Judge Hanford no one who knows him will ever draw in question his uprightness, probity or integrity.

(CONTRIBUTED.)

CHARLES RICHMOND HENDERSON was born at Covington, Indiana, on December 17, 1848. After preparing at LaFayette, Ind., for college, he entered and graduated, B. A., from the University of Chicago. Then entered and graduated B. D. from the Baptist Theological Seminary, 1873. In after years the college conferred upon him the degree of D. D. In his twenty-fourth year he was called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church in Terre Haute, Ind., where he labored for ten years, leaving when summoned to a field of more extended influence at the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church, of Detroit, Mich., which, under his personal effort, grew to be one of the largest and most influential congregations in the country; and which, during his pastorate of ten years, built one of the finest churches in the West, and expended for Christian work more than a half million dollars.

In 1892 Mr. Henderson was elected, without his knowledge or consent, to fill the office of Secretary of the Baptist Home Mission Societies of America, as high a compliment as could be conferred by the denomination. Not feeling satisfied that the work would be suited to his nature, he declined the office. During the same year he was solicited to accept the position as director of religious work and Professor of Sociology in the University of Chicago. This he accepted, and removed to Chicago in October, 1892.

Mr. Henderson has always felt himself less the receptacle of theological lore and more the student of human nature than most men of his calling. He is a close student of political economy, and is recognized as an authority upon subjects touching social science. He has written a book upon "Dependency and Crime," which is used as a text book in many colleges. His unusual influence among men has been recognized in many ways by both rich and poor, one of the most pertinent, perhaps, was his being chosen arbitrator of the great "strike" among the street-car men in Detroit in 1891.

In his present position, although still a young man, Mr. Henderson stands in the front rank of men of religious, philanthropic and educational influence in this country, occupying at present (1896) the chairmanship of the Bureau of Charities of Chicago, in addition to his duties in the University.

ABRAHAM LEVERING HOLGATE.

ABRAMHAM LEVERING HOLGATE, third son of Cornelius and Mary Levering Holgate, was born in Roxborough, Philadelphia, March 1, 1791, and was named for his maternal grandfather. He and his brother Griffith served our government in the war of 1812 in the Chestnut Hill Rifle Rangers. After his return home at the close of the war he united with the Baptist Church at Roxborough, and soon after removed to Pittsburgh, Pa., where, on March 26, 1818, he married Elizabeth, daughter of Nathan H. and Abby Clark Jones.

He, with Alexander Campbell (who later left the regular Baptist Church and founded the so-called Campbellite Church) were instrumental in organizing the First Baptist Church at Pittsburgh. They found in the town five others of the "same faith and gospel order," who joined with them in weekly prayer meetings. Soon after, a traveling Baptist Missionary, Rev. Jordan Dodge, was induced to preach for them during the winter. He was followed by Rev. Obadiah Newcomb, as their first pastor, who, with his little band of earnest co-workers, established the first Sabbath-school west of the Alleghenies. In this school Mr. Holgate found a teacher, Miss Jones, who, subsequently, became his wife.

In October, 1819, they removed to Cincinnati, O., where they united with what is since known as the Ninth Street Baptist Church.

In 1824 they removed to Lebanon, O., and united with a Baptist Church there.

In 1827 removed to Trenton, O., and found a prosperous Church of their faith with which they united. In April, 1837, they removed to Winchester, O., where he was instrumental in reviving a Baptist Church, which had almost become extinct. By his encouragement a brick church edifice was erected and dedicated in September, 1838, with a pastor installed.

In October, 1839, under the inspiration of his missionary spirit, he and family—after special farewell services by their church, shared by visiting friends from Trenton and Lebanon—again sought new fields for service of the Master, locating in the then territory of Iowa. Here, as in other places, they found Baptists and united with a country church in Van Buren County. Deacon Abraham Levering Holgate died at Winchester, Van Buren Co., Iowa, on November 1, 1847, an honored citizen and faithful Christian. The seeds of the church so widely scattered by him is producing fruit still. Like the widow's two mites, they are still buying. As "one star differeth from another star in glory," we assume that he has become one of the first magnitude.

His widow and children subsequently removed to Washington Territory, now a State, where his sons and his son's sons fill honored places.

BORN in Trenton, Butler Co., Ohio, October 15, 1828. At eleven years of age he was removed, with his parents, to Iowa. In the spring of 1847 he accompanied a party of neighbors in their removal to Oregon, which was a tedious and difficult undertaking at that time. They reached Fort Vancouver on November 12th of that year, and found the country in a state of excitement because of an Indian outbreak.

Mr. H. joined the forces which were organized to resist the depredations, in which they were successful, though they were exposed to great hardships and performed many daring deeds.

Having heard of Puget Sound, Mr. H. started on a tour of exploration in August, 1850, in company with some friendly Indians, and performed much of the journey on foot. He proceeded to Elliott Bay, and was so pleased with the surroundings that he selected a claim near the mouth of the Duwasmish River, where he determined to locate, though at the time there was no white settler in that section of the country. He remained here until the fall of 1855, when all the settlers who had located in that section were compelled to congregate at Seattle, for mutual protection and defense, by organizing a company of Home Guards, which did good service.

On the morning of Jan. 26, 1856, the town was attacked by a large force of Indians that, under cover of darkness, had crawled into their midst. In the attack, Milton Gilbert Holgate, a brother, was the first victim, having been fatally shot at the door of the block-house.

After remaining in Seattle for several years with his mother and brothers, Mr. H. was attracted, in 1864, to the gold mines of Idaho, and there became interested in mining, which he pursued with varying success.

On March 25, 1868, he lost his life in defending his property from the incursions of marauding miners. He was buried at Silver City, where the citizens erected a handsome monument to his memory.

It is said of Mr. Holgate, that he maintained a consistent Christian character in all his undertakings, and was honored by all who knew him. It is such men, possessed of a high degree of intelligence and indomitable courage, who became the real pioneers and founders of new states and of their substantial development.

REV. WILLIAM H. HOCH.

(CONTRIBUTED.)

WILLIAM HENRY HOCH was born March 27, 1846; graduated July 19, 1870, from the Moravian College and Theological Seminary at Bethlehem, Pa. From Sept., 1870, to June, 1872, he was a teacher at Nazareth Hall, at Nazareth, Pa.

On Sunday, October 20, 1872, was ordained a deacon of the Moravian Church, and on Trinity Sunday, June 8, 1873, was ordained a presbyter of the same church.

He served as the pastor of the Coveville Moravian Church from October 20, 1872, to the autumn of 1876. During the last year he married Miss Frederiche Dorothea Deubler, at Reading, Pa. Served as pastor of the Moravian Church, at Emaus, Pa., from the autumn of 1876 to the autumn of 1877, when they followed a call to the Harmony Moravian Church in Poweshiek Co., Iowa, where he officiated until the spring of 1880, when they followed a call to the pastorate of the Moravian Church at Green Bay, Wis., where he continued until the fall of 1882. During this pastorate—in December, 1880—Mrs. Hoch died, which compelled him, at the end of his official service, to take rooms with his motherless children in the North-Western Orphans's Home, at Green Bay, where he served the cause of the institution for a year, traveling much in order to win proper support for it, at the same time supplying pulpits of pastorless Presbyterian and Congregational churches.

In November, 1883, Mr. Hoch moved, with his children, to his native and parental home, in Bushkill Township, Northampton Co., Pa. In the spring of 1884 he took charge of the Third Moravian Church of Philadelphia, Pa., where he served as pastor until mid-summer of 1886. Next, he served until the end of November, 1888, as the pastor of the Moravian Church at South Bethlehem, Pa., when he followed a call to the Moravian Church at Egg Harbor City, N. J., where he served until in October, 1894. Early in 1895, at his request, he received a letter of dismissal from the governing board of the northern diocese of the North American Province of the Moravian Church. He was connected with the Hope of Israel Mission in New York City until the close of the following month of May, when he was examined and received into the Tohickon Classes of the Eastern Synod of the Reformed Church in the United States.

Mr. Hoch is at present (January, 1806,) living with his parents at Bath, Pa., where he has assisted and preached in Presbyterian and Reformed pulpits, besides having done much work of sacred literary character, and is ready to take charge of pastoral work again, and believes that the Lord will be with him in seeking to help advance His sacred cause on earth.

REV. HORATIO GATES JONES.

REVEREND HORATIO GATES JONES was born February 11, 1777, in Tredyffryn Township, Chester County, Penna. His father, the Rev. David Jones, was pastor of the Great Valley Baptist Church, and a Chaplain in the Revolutionary War. The so called "Great Valley," in Chester Co., Pa., embraced the famous Valley Forge camping ground of the American army while the British forces occupied Philadelphia.

He was educated at Dr. Allison's Academy, at Bordentown, New Jersey. Was baptised, June 24, 1798, at the Great Valley Baptist Church. Studied divinity with his father, and was licensed to preach on September 26, 1801. Was ordained February 13, 1802, at Salem, N. J., where he remained until April, 1805. After a few years of mission preaching in the locality now known as Bryn Mawr, a suburb of Philadelphia, and in a building furnished him by the Hon. Charles Thomson, the first Secretary of the American Congress. Mr. Jones, having resigned his charge at Salem, N. J., in 1808, organized the first Baptist Church in Lower Merion, in Montgomery County, Pa., which had, until a few years before, been a part of Philadelphia County.

He continued in the pastoral charge of this church a period of forty-five years, and until his death, and during all this time he resided in Leverington, or Roxborough, six miles distant. His Sabbath services were held morning and evening in the church, and he usually preached in some school-house mission on Sunday afternoons; nor was he often absent from week night prayer meetings.

I have a vivid memory of the saintly man. He filled the pulpit in my babyhood. I left him there, when, nearly a quarter of a century after, I started west with the wife to whom he married me. My father was one of the earliest deacons in his church, and he, too, filled his place for a generation of time.

In early manhood Mr. Jones lived in a then country place on the left bank of the Schuylkill River, which is now on the border of the great Fairmount Park of Philad. In March, 1825, he removed about two miles west on Ridge Road, now Ridge Avenue, Philad., to premises inherited by his second wife, Miss Deborah Levering, where he lived and died.

He was an earnest friend of education, and filled many positions of trust and honor, especially in church work. He was prominent in the old Philad. Baptist Association, and for many years filled the chair of Moderator.

In 1812 he received the degree of A. M. from Brown University, and in 1851 the University of Lewisburg, Pa., conferred upon him its first honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

He died Dec. 12, 1853, aged 77 years, and was buried in Leverington Cemetery, Philad., where a substantial monument was erected to his memory. A mural tablet to his memory was placed in the church where he served so long.

HON. HORATIO GATES JONES.⁷

IS WELL known among the kindred as the compiler and publisher of THE LEVERING FAMILY, in the year 1858, a volume devoted exclusively to the annals of his maternal relations. His paternal ancestors were from Wales, and settled, first, in 1710, in the State of Delaware.

As has been stated herein, he was born, lived and died in Roxborough, a suburb of the city of Philadelphia, Pa., upon a part of the large estate purchased by our pioneer, Wigard Levering, two centuries ago, which became the propagating ground of the Levering family in America, the title to which was acquired by inheritance in regular succession, by the object of this sketch.

Mr. Jones's early years were spent upon the small farm of his father and in the common schools of the neighborhood. He subsequently was entered at the Baptist College near by, at Haddington, following the institution to Germantown upon its removal there, and later, was matriculated at the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, where he graduated in the class of 1841.

He studied law and was admitted to the Philadelphia bar in 1847, and continued the practice, chiefly in the Probate and Orphans' Courts, until his last illness.

Mr. Jones's attention was readily excited toward historical researches. He was, in consequence, a prolific writer upon several local subjects, and he enlarged the range of historical inquiry by seeking association with many kindred societies, notably the New-England Historical and Genealogical Society, the Moravian Historical Society, the Western Reserve Historical Society, the American Antiquarian Society, and others, and in 1877 was elected an Honorary Fellow of the Royal Historical Society of Great Britain. In 1846 he was elected corresponding secretary of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, and later became one of its vice-presidents, which office he held until his death. He was president of the Welsh Society of Philadelphia. As a prominent Baptist layman he held the office of clerk of the old Philadelphia Baptist Association for fifteen years, and was for a time, secretary of the Crozer Theological Seminary, also of the Baptist Home of Philadelphia.

Mr. Jones was a member of the Senate of the State of Pennsylvania for eight years, from 1874, and as such he was identified with several important laws, especially those of ecclesiastical bearing or tending to moral reform.

He was a collector of rare old books and manuscripts, especially those in the Welsh language, with which he was quite familiar. His library was extensive, being the collection of his reverend father, to which he added numerous volumes.

This record evinces a life of industry and usefulness, which was characteristic of his lineage from both sources. In his span of life he was accorded the Psalmist's full measure, and "after life's fitful toiler he sleeps well!"

His interment in Leverington Cemetery may be said to be upon his own inherited grounds, being in an extensive addition to that "Peace Yard" laid out by himself, his sister and brothers. He lies surrounded by The Levering Family. His birthplace, family relations, marriage and home are mentioned in connection with his name in its genealogical order in this work.

Though several years my senior, we were intimate in childhood and manhood. His father was pastor and mine a deacon in the same church during all our maturing years.

His initial steps in gathering material and formulating "The Levering Family" were taken many years before its publication. I recall the discussion of plans, the most feasible of which appeared to the youthful minds in the form of a family tree, having ROSEB for the trunk, ending at a cleft, with Wigard and Gerhard for divergent limbs, then came the family branches, but we failed in the structure as a banyan would scarcely have furnished space to represent the twigs and tendrils of succeeding generations, to say nothing of the cions engrafted by ceremony from year to year.

Nine years after I left for the then far West, his work appeared in the form with which those who possess the volume are familiar, a form suited to the comprehension of all.

For many years past each has informed the other of any discoveries made in the line of family history, or correcting genealogy, and more than any other person he is responsible, by persuasions used, for the great family task imposed upon me in this work.

PETER KEYSER was brought up to his father's business in Germantown. He remained in the tannery until 1794, when he removed into Philadelphia and began the lumber business, which became very extensive in the hands of himself and partner.

He removed his residence again to Germantown in 1828, but continued in the business until 1831, when he retired altogether, and passed the remaining years of his life in the house in Germantown, where he was born. As a Dunker, he pursued his business subject to the tenets of his sect, neither suing nor being sued during his whole life, but although he devoted so considerable a portion of it to business, it was only its minor accessory. While he was in the tannery, where he worked as a young man, the thirst for the scriptures, which was the inheritance of his blood, gave him no rest. An occupation—however at variance with the bent of a man's disposition—may be made to contribute to its development, and so this predestined man, while not ceasing from his manual labor, brought down to the mill, the Bible which had become and was to be an inseparable part of his existence. He constructed a shelf above the hopper of the mill where the bark was grinding, on which he set it, and from morning till evening, from daylight to darkness, as the hours of labor were in those days, he read it, forgetting nothing, until he had committed to memory a great part of the Old and the whole of the New Testament. In April, 1794, he retired from this business, and engaged in the lumber business in Philadelphia, but he continued the reading from four in the morning, when he customarily rose, until his business hours began, and in this manner continuing the memorizing of the Old Scriptures, at the same time adding, also, stores of other knowledge to his never exhausted memory. He followed his father, uniting with the brethren in 1784, then just eighteen years of age, was baptized by Martin Urner, of Coventry, on the 25th of September of that year. The following year, 1785, he was called to the ministry, and on the 2d of August, 1802, was formally installed in the church, as bishop or elder. He was for sixty-three years thereafter pastor of the Germantown and Philadelphia churches, forty-seven years of which he was a bishop. His great earnestness, dignity and force of character, with his singular knowledge of the scriptures, drew great crowds after him, not only of his own, but of other denominations, speaking to them both in the German and English languages.

During all these years he lived the Master's life, not by word alone, but in the daily practice of his own, doing what was possible for him, to lighten the afflictions, to alleviate the sufferings, and to promote the education of his fellow citizens.

He was for many years a member, and sometimes Secretary of the Board of Health.

He was a member of the Society for Alleviating the Miseries of the Public Prisons, and a director and controller of the public schools when the system was first adopted in the State.

In his latter life he became totally blind, but did not thereby cease from his labors. Those who heard him (and there are many yet living) say he would lay the old Bible on the table before him, and, rising from the low bench on which he sat in the meeting house, look down on it, read a chapter from his memory, give out a hymn, read his text, also from memory, and preach the sermon. So he bore about the very mission of the God he served, word for word and letter for letter, in his memory.

He died in the house in which he was born, in Germantown, on the 21st day of May, 1849, in the 83d year of his age, and was buried in the German Baptist ground at Germantown, where his father also lies. He was tall, six feet three inches in height, with marked features. He was erect, and had a strength and endurance far beyond others, as in his memory he was far beyond any of his generation. He wore, also, drab clothes that reached down to his feet, and were made in the Quaker pattern as we see it yet. His hat was drab, with a broad brim, under it his deep, dark eyes looked out with a sense of power. His great height and the repose of his whole nature gave him the appearance of one of some nobler race. He was, in fact, the accredited servant of a higher power.

There was an incident in his life which occurred at Ephrata, and which seems to indicate, it may be, something remaining of the introversive sight which we have seen in two of his great ancestors. He had once selected a text and had carefully thought out a sermon on his way to the church, but while riding through the woods to the meeting place he was continually bewildered by a bright light before him, which rose up as often as he thought of the text or sermon and then disappeared. He called the attention of the others with him to it, but they saw nothing. At the proper time he rose to preach in the meeting house the sermon that he had intended, but, what never occurred to him before or after, his memory failed him altogether, and he was, for all his great strength of will, helpless, confused and speechless. He sat down and remained awhile silent, and then rose and preached from another text which came to his mind, a sermon of great eloquence and power. This he often related as the most strange experience of his life and wholly unaccountable. The text that came to him was, "I see a light afar." His sermons were all as they came to him at the time, without a line or note before him. He never wrote a sermon. He led the singing in his meetings.

Rev. Phillip Mayer, late pastor of the St. Johns Lutheran Church of Philadelphia, used to say that "if by any dire mischance all the copies of the Holy Scriptures were destroyed, as long as Peter Keyser lived it could be reproduced." These were his exact words.

Frank Keyser, his grandson, who well remembers him, says that when he was reading to him, and skipped the hard places in the Bible, he would say "Not so! not so, boy! go back and read the verse as it is written."

Mr. Joseph Sheetz, the sexton of the old Dunker Church in Germantown, says also that he could repeat word for word every text and passage of the Scriptures in Dunker meetings in Mr. Keyser's time. There were no lights in the meeting house, no pulpits and no pews, only wooden benches. There was a table on which he laid the Bible. The bench he sat on still stands against the wall under the porch of the house Mr. Sheetz now occupies. It had no back. The benches on which the congregation sat, only had backs. The first moonlight Sunday night in October was the love feast. They first washed each other's feet, then broke bread and drank coffee. The communion was held at the same time, at which they partook of bread and wine. These ceremonies took place once a year.

The first meeting house was in a log structure. The present meeting house, in which Peter Keyser preached, is of stone, and stands back from the street.

Singing, prayer, singing and preaching composed the service; prayer and doxology concluded it.

Alexander Mack was the first preacher in the meeting; after him came Peter Keyser. In the garret of Mr. Sheetz's house he has stored an old chest containing the plates and cups used in the service. He has also the tubs for the feet washing.

Abraham H. Cassel, the aged and well-known antiquarian, who was intimate with Mr. Keyser, wrote of him, in 1889, as follows:

"I was well acquainted with Rev. Peter Keyser. He told me much of his early life; that his father had been a tanner, and that he was early in life put at the mill for grinding bark. Above it he made a shelf on which he kept an open Bible, and as the grinding went on he would read a passage and memorize it. So he would take up verse after verse and chapter after chapter until he had completely memorized the whole of the New Testament. Of the Old Testament he memorized the whole of the Psalms and the Prophets and the five books of Moses. The whole of the New and the greater part of the Old Testament were at his command.

"In his latter life Mr. Keyser became totally blind, but continued reciting the Scriptures from memory, and pursued his ministrations until his death."

CHARLES M. KEYSER.

(CONTRIBUTED.)

CHARLES MARIS KEYSER, the tenth child of Derrick and Elizabeth Keyser, was born in the city of Baltimore, Md., December 6, 1799.

At the age of eighteen years he succeeded his father in the queensware business, in which he engaged at the age of thirteen, and from which he retired in 1866. He took a deep interest in public affairs, especially in his native city.

In the year 1848 he was elected one of its representatives to the Maryland Senate, and at the close of his official term was again offered the nomination, but declined.

In 1860 he was nominated for Mayor of Baltimore, but on account of his then poor health, declined the nomination.

His earnest public spirit, untiring energy and sterling integrity, together with his great personal and moral courage, caused him to be selected for many places of honor and trust.

He was commander of the Eutaw Infantry, which quelled the furious political mobs of that time. He was chief of the Liberty Fire Company of the old volunteer service of Baltimore. He was one of the early directors of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and also, was among the organizers of several banking corporations, as well as manager of many of the city's charitable and educational institutions.

In association with several other prominent Baltimoreans he organized and had incorporated the House of Refuge of the State of Maryland, an institution which has done, and is still doing, much good by assuming the care and training of fatherless or incorrigible youth. He was made its first Vice-President, and upon the death of its President a few years afterwards he was appointed to its executive chair, and retained his seat until his death, in 1874, having been its President nearly twenty years.

In the growth of this institution and the progress of the good work for which it was incorporated, he took an unceasing, all-absorbing interest, and until his death its care was ever uppermost in his mind.

He died in Baltimore, August 2, 1874.

EUGENE LEVERING, SENIOR.

[FROM "THE MONUMENTAL CITY," BY GEORGE W. HOWARD,
BALTIMORE, 1873.]

UPON a monument which stands in the burial-ground of the First Baptist Church of Baltimore is this inscription: "In memory of Enoch Levering and Mary, his wife, whose bodies lie here. They lived respected and died lamented, and left seven sons to bemoan their departure, who have erected this monument to perpetuate the memory of their parents. The character of the true Christian was affectingly displayed in the last hour of their lives. They saw and met the approach of that scene, the most trying to human nature, with calm and dignified composure, and with serene and pious resignation."

The Enoch Levering to whom this filial testimony was given was the grandfather of Eugene Levering, of whom we write. Peter Levering, one of the seven sons, was Eugene's father. He inherited his father's honor and transmitted it to his son.

Enoch Levering came from Roxborough, Philad., to Baltimore about 1773, and established himself in the grocery business on a large scale and formed the ancient firm of Levering & Buge. His son Peter was born in this city (Balt.) Feb. 4, 1776, and became a large shipping and commission merchant. His first firm was Levering & Nelms, which was subsequently changed to Peter Levering & Sons. He married Hannah, the only daughter of William Wilson, of the house of William Wilson & Sons, a lady who was distinguished for her activity and usefulness in the social and religious matters of the city.

Eugene Levering was the youngest son of Peter and Hannah (Wilson) Levering; was born in Baltimore Oct. 24, 1819. His parents were both members of the First Baptist Church, and trained their children in the principles of the Christian religion. Mr. Levering's nature responded to their culture, and he connected himself with the church of his parents, of which he became one of the most useful members, and subsequently became a valuable member of the Seventh Baptist Church, under the pastorate of the late Richard Fuller, D. D., of whom he was an intimate friend.

Mr. Levering began his business life with Hoffmans & Co., dry goods, auction and commission house, and later was with George & Yates in the dry goods importing business, where he remained for several years. He then entered into partnership with his brother, Frederick A. Levering, under the firm of Levering & Co., on Hanover street, in the general grocery business, and at the end of three years moved to Commerce street, near Pratt, and in 1855 to No. 2 Commerce street, built by the firm, and since occupied by it.

Levering & Co. took a leading position in the trade, and not only established a reputation for themselves, but added to that of Baltimore in this department. The firm of Levering & Co. continued until 1866, when it was dissolved by the death of Frederick A.

Eugene Levering, Sr., then associated with him as partners three sons, William T., Eugene and Joshua, under the firm name of E. Levering & Co. With this young and active co-operation the business grew to large proportions.

The firm, by degrees, ceased handling all other commodities and made coffee their specialty. The house took position at the head of the trade, which it has steadily held. In the light of this statement, the valuable influence of Mr. Levering's house on the commercial growth of Baltimore may be appreciated. Under the new regime, the firm enjoyed prosperity, and Mr. Levering looked forward to the time when he might retire; but he was called away in June, 1870, when but 52 years of age. He left legacies to religious and charitable purposes amounting to thirty thousand dollars. Among other objects, his beneficence provided means for building up what is known as the "Levering Mission" in the Creek Nation, Indian Territory.

The present firm, composed of four sons, William T., Eugene, Joshua and Leonidas, succeeded to the business, which is the largest coffee house in the city, and one among the largest in the United States.

Mr. Levering had nine sons and three daughters, nine of whom survive.

In reviewing the life of Eugene Levering, senior, and considering its practical results, he appears one of the most successful men that have graced the mercantile annals of Baltimore. If success is to be measured only by accumulation of money, this remark does not hold good, for many have made more money than he; but a man may acquire millions and yet be a failure. The legacy of personal character and of children trained up to the standard and practice of righteousness is the richest and most enduring a man can confer upon his race. His life was eminently successful and worthy of imitation.

JOSHUA AND EUGENE LEVERING.

(2118-19)

THE Rev. Dr. Lothrop, in a written tribute to the memory of a distinguished merchant, very aptly stated: "Commercial biography is a department of literature in which we have fewer books than might be written for the benefit and instruction of the world. Of the lives of statesmen, poets, artists, literary, military and professional men of all sorts, we have enough, but of eminent and successful merchants; men who have made commerce the sphere of their extensive activity and usefulness, we have few permanent records."

This is literally true. Commercial men in all generations have been the strength and support of all enterprises. They have been the producers, while the classes enumerated above, have been the consumers; the dispensers. They have, in most experiences, been inspired by selfish ambition, while the counting rooms of the land have furnished the fuel which vitalizes all activities, or, still, the support of all the religious, educational and philanthropic institutions which prosper us.

The names of George Peabody, Samuel Appleton, Thomas P. Cope, Stephen Girard, Peter Cooper, Amos Lawrence, John Jacob Astor, et alias, of generations ago, still are graven in the memories of the people, and still deeper in the hearts of their descendants.

And "footprints in the sands of time" have already been made by diligent and generous merchants of our name and generation. I apply this especially to Joshua and Eugene Levering of Baltimore. Twins by birth; twins by education; twins in noble impulses; twins in all the experiences and business of life, I make them the dual subject of this sketch.

Both are diligent in business, serving the Lord, and both love the "courage of their convictions" in political affiliations and actions, in that they vote as they pray, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven," reasonably construed, means, in part, no rum traffic; no drinking saloons.

Both have, from time to time, been selected as candidates for congressional and State offices by the Prohibition Party, and while election was not expected—in competition with the old political parties—the votes received by both were largely in advance of other candidates. At the national convention of that party, held at Cincinnati in 1892, Joshua Levering was the choice of the party for Vice-President of the United States, though for good reasons was not nominated, and in the State convention of the Prohibition Party at Maryland, held April 1, 1895, he was unanimously nominated for Governor of the State. The vote received by him at the election succeeding was creditable to the best element in the commonwealth.

Joshua Levering is President of the Young Men's Christian Association of Baltimore, also of the Board of Trustees of the House of Refuge, in which he takes great interest for the reclamation of youth. Is also Superintendent of the Sabbath school of the Eastw-Poor-Baptist Church, and is prominent in many benevolent and educational enterprises.

Eugene Levering's name has high place upon the rolls of contributors to the well known Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore. LEVERING HALL—one of the prominent buildings of the University—was erected and presented by him. The Workingmen's Residence at Club of the city—designed to improve and benefit the class named—was established by him. He is a recognized leader in most philanthropic schemes, and in his church (Eutaw Place Baptist). He is President of the National Bank of Commerce of Baltimore, and is President of the Board of Trade of that city, a commercial organization of more than fifty years' existence, and second to none in importance.

Their usefulness is vouchsafed to them, by reason of their mercantile prosperity. The business of importers and dealers in coffee, as established by their father, more than half a century ago, has not only been maintained, but largely increased by them. The firm name of E. Levering & Co. is known to the business world. Two younger brothers, Leonidas and Franklin W., are members of the firm. The unostentatious beneficence of all these is well known.

As an instance of the integrity and public spirit of these men, I notice in a recent number of the Baltimore Herald, this statement, "Not long ago City Collector Hopkins received a letter in his mail which said, simply: 'We think that the volume of our business last year justifies us in requesting you to add another fifty thousand dollars to the assessment of the firm of E. Levering & Co. for taxable purposes.' In other words, they voluntarily tendered $1,000, additional to the tax bill which would otherwise have been presented to them, minus this amount. If this example were followed by other men of wealth, there would be no need for a new assessment law."

Of the other quartette of these enterprising brothers—William T., Frederick A., Leonard M. and Edwin A.—all are extensively engaged in the coffee importing business.

Tupper wrote: "There were nine Homers—goodly sons of song, but where is any record of the eight?" Here are eight Leverings, goodly sons of a father, distinguished in mercantile circles, and all have made records of success and influence which will outlive them.

"And still the honors grew." Since writing the foregoing, at the National Convention of the Prohibition Party, convened May 27, 1896, at Pittsburg, Pa., Joshua Levering was unanimously nominated as the party candidate for President of the United States.

FRANK H. AND GRACE D. LEVERING.

GRACE DANFORTH was born in Indianapolis, Ind. Her genius for music was made manifest in her childhood. She had capacity for reading music at sight, and her voice developed to that of a woman at twelve years of age.

When but thirteen years old she assumed the position of soprano in the quartette choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral at a large salary.

At fourteen years she was quite proficient in the study and practice of the piano and organ, and composition, under Carl Weigmann, an acknowledged master, who demonstrated his appreciation by dedicating to her a musical composition of merit, and was employed by him in concerts. At this early age she rendered the difficult music of Bach's Oratorios in the Messiah, in the Creation, the Season, in Judas Maccabeus, in Elijah, etc.

After her marriage to Frank H. Levering (May, 1878), she pursued musical studies; for a time in the College of Music at New York. She was recognized as a leader in all local musical organizations of merit. She was soloist of the Lyra Singing Society of Indianapolis, and a prominent member of the Indiana Music Teachers' Association.

In the fall of 1887 they removed to Denver, Colo., where an engagement as leading soprano in the First Baptist Church awaited her. On the opening of the new Trinity M. E. Church—one of the finest in America—she was engaged as soprano soloist, at a salary larger than ever before paid in the city. At the same time she was at the head of a select musical organization in the city, and contributed to musical journals of the highest class in the East, and had charge of classes of music in the University of Denver.

While enjoying such successes, she was not unmindful of a religious duty to contribute to the pleasure of the poor and afflicted, as in both her native and adopted cities she visited hospitals and asylums, and sang cheerful songs to the inmates; even the insane were expectant of her weekly visits, and were attentive listeners to her songs.

But, "Like an untimely frost upon the fairest flower of all the field," she was stricken down, in September, 1891. Though disease suddenly prostrated her, hour after hour she sang praises to Him who doeth all things well. In the quiet of a Sabbath evening she essayed to sing her favorite hymn: "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," surprising her weeping husband and friends with the pathos and melody of the effort. At the ending of the second line her voice suddenly faded away, as echoes from a distance. She had gone with it, and a new and rapturous song was hers to mingle with angelic greetings in answer to her intoned prayer.

In the funeral service which followed at the First Baptist Church, in which all the Protestant clergy of the city participated, the throng of people was so numerous as to require more than an hour in passing the bier. A memorial window in the Calvary Baptist Church of Denver, completed in 1892, is an ever present reminder of the loved and lost.

Frank H. Levering—left alone and childless—yielding to his oft-time inclinations, abandoned the practice of the law, for which he had been educated in the Chicago University and the University of the State of New York, and, following the Master, became a "fisher of men." He is now engaged in Missionary labor in the Madras Presidency of India, under the supervision of the American Baptist Missionary Union.

He was licensed to preach the gospel by the Calvary Baptist Church of Denver, in which he was a constituent member and a Deacon, on April 13, 1892. Upon the solicitation of the official heads of the mission work of the church, who wished to avail of his legal education, he consented to labor in the Telugu field, in India. He sailed from Boston on September 25, 1892. Was located with Dr. Clough, at Ongole, for a year, since at Nellore, where, on July 19, 1894, he married Miss Ida Faye, of Matawan, New Jersey, a graduate of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, Pa., in the class of 1891, who preceded him one year in Mission work, and whose devotion and adaptation to the service has caused her to be called "the second Mrs. Judson."

Frank H. Levering was regularly ordained to the ministry on March 30, 1895, at Ongole, India, and assigned to duty in the great city of Madras, but the professional skill of "Dr. Faye" was so missed in the mission hospital at Nellore, which she had created, that they were returned by the Board to that city in October, 1895, and are still (1897) located there.

JACOB LEVERING.

OF ROXBOROUGH, Philadelphia, born in September, 1749, shared the patriotism of his brothers, John and Anthony. The three were active soldiers in the Revolutionary War. As their home was in the storm center of that conflict, they were very useful to our military commanders.

It is said of Jacob that he was shrewd and active, and performed many valuable services for the American army. In the plain dress of a farmer, he frequently went into the city of Philadelphia while it was in possession of the British forces, and obtained valuable information, which he communicated to General Washington. He was familiar with all the streets and highways in and about the city, and for long distances in the surrounding country. After visiting the city and disposing of marketing among families of his acquaintance, from whom he could glean information, he would return home and remain there, sending one of his younger brothers to communicate such messages as he deemed important to American officers. Once, when returning to the house of his father, who lived on Green Lane, he was arrested by some British troopers and charged with being a spy, named John Levering. This he denied. He was carried farther up the river Schuylkill, on the right bank, to a point opposite his father's home (now Manayunk), where some neighbors were attracted to the gathering, as the soldiers were preparing to hang him to an oak tree. Upon the testimony of the neighbors that their prisoner was not John Levering, Jacob was released.

Reference is made to this occurrence in the "Life and Correspondence of President Reed," viz.: Col. Moylan, under date of Oct. 1, 1777, wrote as follows to General Washington:

"I set out last night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, in consequence of General Reed's information, that a party of the enemy's Light Horse had crossed the Schuylkill at Levering's Ford. I met him (Reed) at Bonners, and agreeable to his advise, called at Levering's house. He had returned last evening. The party that seized him, gave him dismissal on the hill leading to the middle ferry, on which, he is very confidant, they crossed. As he is a Whig, I believe he would not decieve me, so that the expedition I set out upon, is frustrated."

At the time that Jacob was arrested, he had a pass from Washington in his possession. This he managed to get into his mouth, and swallowed it. Such special favor as a general pass from the commander-in-chief of the American forces would have cost him his life, if it had been discovered.

After the close of the war, Jacob removed to a place called Ocracoke Inlet, in North Carolina, where, after several years' residence, he died.

An interesting episode in the military experiences of Jacob Levering may be found in the volume entitled "Levering Family Reunion," as held at Levering, Ohio, on August 6, 1891. The historical fact was contributed by Mrs. Catharine Latch, an octogenarian of Roxborough, through William H. Levering, of LaFayette, Ind.

WAS born April 25, 1750, in Roxborough, Philad., in a large stone house on Ridge Avenue, built by his father. He was a carpenter and builder. Reared in the pious atmosphere of his father's home, he espoused religion when 22 years of age. The records of the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia bear evidence of his baptism on June 9, 1772. He subsequently (1789) became one of the constituent members in the organization of the Roxborough Baptist Church. He was made a trustee and a deacon of the church, and continued in office through life.

In "the days that tried men's souls" he was intensely loyal. At the outbreak of the Revolutionary War he, with his brothers, Jacob and Anthony, enlisted in the cause for American liberty. They were Christian soldiers of like spirit and characteristics as qualified the limited army of Gustavus Adolphus, the hero of Protestantism in the "thirty years' war" in Germany, who went from morning prayers into battle for the right.

John Levering's services became conspicuously valuable to the army leaders. His home being within the theater of action, within hearing of the old Liberty Bell, which first proclaimed the Declaration of Independence, and within call of the Continental Congress; environed by British rule, while the enemy occupied Philadelphia (1777), he was in position to observe much and apply it to advantage. One act of his daring and exercise of good judgment is related in the volume of proceedings of the Levering family reunion August, 1891, and shows how General Washington relied upon him.

He was at the battles of Trenton and Princeton and in other engagements of the war. As commissioned Ensign he carried the colors, thus leading in the fray.

While writing I have before me a dilapidated paper which is a relic of those days and official evidence of his then relation to the Continental Army. It reads :

I DO hereby CERTIFY, That John Levering, of Roxbury Township, House Carpenter, and Ensign in the 2nd Btln., Philad. County, Hath voluntarily taken and subscribed the Affirmation of Allegiance and Fidelity, as directed by an ACT of General Assembly of Pennsylvania, passed the 13th day of June, A. D. 1777.

Witness my hand and seal, the 20th day of May, A. D. 1778.

JOHN MOOR.

Printed by John Dunlap.

While several commissions were issued to John Levering assuming various official duties, I call attention to one now before me, issued by THE SUPREME COUNCIL to him as Captain in the army, which was "Given under the lesser seal of the Commonwealth at Philadelphia, this tenth day of May in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and eighty."

This commission imposed new responsibilities which were readily accepted, though it came at a time when the American troops were discouraged, and the term of enlistment of many about to expire. The forces had passed through a severe winter, and endured distress from cold and hunger; their means of subsistence now almost exhausted. It was the most critical period of young America's existence. Nor was it yet known, at the date of this commission, that Lafayette was returning with a Godsend of French helpers. In this emergency our grandsire consecrated himself anew before our country's altar. Ducit Amor Patria, was his inspiration. Well may we wish that he and his compatriots could know that their children's children are proud of their achievements and appreciate their sacrifices which gave Columbia to us.

Entertaining fear that the Britons might undertake to regain their lost cause, John Levering urged the maintenance of military organization; he was commissioned Major in the Pennsylvania Line after the war, and again took active part in the War of 1812, when over three score years of age.

The military archives of Pennsylvania preserve his name. In the office of Auditor-General of the State the records show—under the head of “Associated Battalions and Militia”—that John Levering was, in 1780, made Captain of the 6th Company of the 7th Battalion, commanded by Lieut.-Colonel Matthew Holgate. (Penna. Archives, Vol. 13, p. 759.) He is also mentioned in the alphabetical lists of Revolutionary soldiers in the same volume, page 129. This evidence is repeated in the book, “Pennsylvania in the Revolution,” which is now out of print, but well preserved volumes maintain tangible memories.

Major Levering died July 28, 1832, in the house in which he was born, aged 82 years.

COLONEL JOHN LEVERING, U. S. V.

[From “Officers of the Army and Navy who Served in the Civil War.”
Philad., 1893.]

COLONEL JOHN LEVERING was born near Philadelphia, Pa., April 19, 1826. He is a descendant of Wigard Levering who settled in that city in 1685 and became a large land-owner, and a grandson of Captain John Levering of the war of the Revolution.

In 1849, with wife and child, he removed to Cincinnati; thence, in 1850, to La Fayette, Ind., where he conducts a real estate and loan business, which he established in January, 1856, in the same building now occupied.

On the breaking out of the war, in April, 1861, at the instance of Governor Morton, he went to Philadelphia and made contracts for the equipment of Indiana troops. At the designation of Governor Morton and General J. J. Reynolds, in July, 1861, he was appointed by President Lincoln, captain and a quartermaster of volunteers, and served in the Cheat Mountain (Va.) campaign. In 1862 he had charge of Post Gauley Bridge, W. Va., until August, when he was ordered to the Staff of General Pope, commanding the Army of the Potomac. Because General Pope was relieved soon after, he was ordered by the quartermaster-general to report at the headquarters of General McClellan, and September 21, 1862, reported to General

GLIMPSE OF SIDE YARD.

Humphreys and was charged with equipping new troops after the battle of Antietam.

November 10, 1862, at the request of General Reynolds, he was ordered by the War Department to report with that officer to the Army of the Cumberland. February 17, 1863, he was appointed chief quartermaster at Nashville, Tenn., but was excused that service in view of expected transfer to the adjutant-general's department, to which he was commissioned by the President, with the rank of major, May 7, 1863, and assigned to Reynolds' Division.

In December, 1863, he was ordered with General Reynolds, from Chattanooga to New Orleans, where he served during 1864 as adjutant-general of the Defences of New Orleans, and of the Nineteenth Army Corps, and of the Reserve Corps of the Military Division of West Mississippi. On December 22, 1864, he was ordered with General Reynolds to Little Rock, Arkansas, where he served during 1865 as adjutant-general of the Department of Arkansas, and of the Seventh Army Corps, so assigned by the President, with rank and pay of lieutenant-colonel. March 2, 1865, he was commissioned by the President, colonel, by brevet, and confirmed by the Senate, May 9, 1865. In April, 1865, by department order, he visited Fort Smith and Port Gibson, in the Cherokee Nation, on special duty of inspection. July 4, 1865, he was ordered to Memphis and New Orleans on an important errand to Generals Canby and Sheridan, and on August 7, 1865, on a like errand to General Sherman at St. Louis. In December, 1865, he was on special duty in the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations, with headquarters at Boggy Depot. On returning to Little Rock, he asked to be relieved from further military service. By Special Order No. 3, War Department, January 4, 1866, he was honorably mustered out.

Under W. D. G. O. No. 86, of 1865, issued to department commanders, General Reynolds awarded Colonel Levering the highest commendations on qualifications of staff officers; also when recommending promotion he wrote, "Colonel Levering entered the service at the very beginning of the Rebellion, and has served zealously and faithfully; has never been absent from his command in the field, except when compelled to be so by sickness contracted in the line of duty. He served as chief quartermaster in West Virginia at Clear Mountain and Gauley River, and his reports on file in Washington prove him to be a superior officer in that department. As adjutant-general he has been equally distinguished in the Army of the Cumberland and Department of the Gulf. He is an officer of superior business ability. He has been commended heretofore by General Canby and myself. Colonel Levering has been on my personal staff during nearly all this war. I perform an act of justice to an intelligent and zealous officer by earnestly recommending him for increased rank as a recognition of valuable services rendered in the staff departments of the army, which promotion seldom reaches, though merited, as in this case. He is peculiarly qualified for the duty of investigating irregularities, and would be unsurpassed as a member of a board, or to be entrusted with individual investigations."

On arriving in Indiana, March 1, 1850, Mr. Levering located upon a farm ten miles south from LaFayette, which he operated for six years. During this experience he was instrumental in organizing a County Agricultural Society; was a member of the State Board of Agriculture, then recently organized; was also elected a member of the Legislature of the State, and was Principal Clerk of the House of Representatives during the session of 1855—the first under the new Constitution.

When he established the real estate and loan business, in January, 1856, as adverted to in the above military record, he practiced surveying and civil engineering, which continued—as County Surveyor, and City Civil Engineer—until the breaking out of the war. His brother, William H. Levering, being associated under the firm name of Levering Brothers, the business continued. After the war (W. H. Levering retiring in 1868) real estate transactions and mortgaged loans required exclusive attention. The aggregate investments for patrons in the speculative years following the war, reached millions of dollars.

His business buildings, situated upon the west side of the public square in LaFayette, he has continuously occupied for more than forty years, except while erecting a new building upon the site, in the summer of 1870.

His present residence, on northwest corner of Twelfth and Tippecanoe streets, has been the family home since March 1, 1858. Then, in the northeastern suburbs, the city has since overtaken and extended far beyond the location.

Col. Levering maintains military comradeship by membership in the Loyal Legion of the United States (a companion in Chicago, Illinois Commandery, before Indiana was organized), the Army of the Cumberland and Grand Army of the Republic. Is the author of "Recollections of the Civil War, 1861-5" (700 pp. in MSS.), also of "Lee's Advance and Retreat in the Cheat Mountain Campaign," and of other historical matter. Is now, by appointment by the Governor, a trustee, and treasurer of the Indiana State Soldiers' Home.

WILLIAM HAGY LEVERING was born at Ardmore, a suburb of Philadelphia, Pa., April 10, 1826—a twin and perfect duplicate of the author of this history. Business demands in early life gave him opportunity only for a common school education, yet he has been a life long student and has thus become one of the best informed and educated men in the business circles.

In 1851 he removed to LaFayette, Ind., where he still resides. Here, in 1851, he established the first "one-price" store—hats and furs—in the State; the business is still being successfully carried on in the same location by his younger brothers. In 1856 he entered into a real estate, loan, civil engineering and insurance business with his twin brother, and continued many years. In this experience he obtained a thorough knowledge of real estate and insurance law, and calls for his services in the latter—in the adjustment of losses by fire, and in litigated cases, were so urgent that he retired from office work and gave one-half his time to this profession, and in pursuit of it has settled numerous difficult cases throughout a field extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

It is a notable fact that for more than one-half his life he has had no occasion to ask for favors on business. His motto has been "create a demand for yourself." He gives this motto to young men as the definition of success in life.

Mr. Levering has indexed copies of all his letters written during 38 years—kept in three series; "personal," "professional," "religious," and all letters received during these years are bound in books and indexed. All his writing since 1853 has been done with but two pens—of gold.

He began attendance at Sabbath School in July, 1828 (then aged 27 months, and has in his possession a piece of the dress worn on that occasion) at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church. The Lower Merion Baptist Church (the Church of his parents) having at that time no school. In his eighth year four women of the latter Church opened a Sabbath School in the "Union Schoolhouse." As none of them could lead in song he became chorister, and from that time to the present time—a period of 63 years—has his voice led the young in songs of praise to God.

At the age of 14 years he was baptised into membership with the Lower Merion Baptist Church, and at the age of 19 was elected Superintendent of the Sabbath School of that church. He has held this office in various schools with but little intermission to the present. Since 1869 he has devoted all his energies to fellowship of Christians, to mission and to international Sabbath School work, and during many of these years has conducted two schools at the same time, and is now in his 23d year with one—a school of colored people—holding two sessions each Sabbath—International and Normal.

He has been an active member of the Indiana S. S. Union since its organization, May 30, 1865, and served nine years as President, to wit: 1874 to 1877, and 1881 to 1887, when impaired health compelled him to relinquish. During the first term of official service he visited and organized S. S. unions in each of the 92 counties of Indiana, thus attaining the standard of complete county organization; and in the second term restored organizations that had been suffered to lapse or retrograde, and traveled in all the 92 counties, emphasizing missionary and evangelistic effort with marked success; and in so doing was cordially received to the pulpits of almost every denomination of Christians in the State. During his presidency 150,000 children were added to the Sabbath Schools of the State, and as many as 33,000 children were added to the churches in a single year. In addition, he assisted in the cause in other States—as many as seven in a single year.

In 1875 he organized a S. S. union in Virginia City, and in Gold Hill, Nevada—said to be the first S. S. union organization in the Sierra Nevada range.

He conducts conventions, institutes and normal assemblies, and delivers a variety of Bible lectures, devoting during the last ten years all of his time to this work for Christianity, and has never been willing to accept remuneration in any instance, and has himself defrayed all expenses of every kind.

With half a century's experience, he is eminently fitted for this work, and has given great impetus to Sabbath School and Christian endeavor.

For many years Mr. Levering has written a synopsis or "key-notes" of the current S. S. lessons, after teaching them, for his files, making them uniform in size and style—a fac-simile of one of these, of which he has several hundred, is shown.

He has devoted much time to the uplifting of different classes of men in his own city. Works for temperance and benevolent societies. Was for many years President of the "Home of the Friendless." Has had many positions of trust and honor; in fact, has spent and been spent in the interest of "the weaker brother for whom Christ died."

He has for several years been an associate of the Victoria Institute or Philosophical Society of Great Britain, a relation maintained by correspondence, but has taken little interest in secret or social organizations.

MORTIMER LEVERING.

(2731)

MORTIMER LEVERING, only surviving son of William H. Levering, was born near Philadelphia, Pa., April 25, 1840, and in June, 1852, came to LaFayette, Ind., where he was educated in the local schools, and for several years—associated with his father—he was engaged in the book and stationery business.

In October, 1872, he married Miss Julia Henderson, a resident of the city.

Disposing of the business in 1874, they removed to Southern Florida, where they remained until 1876, when they returned to LaFayette, and Mr. Levering engaged in the real estate and loan business, in which he has been very successful, continuing in the same room in the First National Bank building.

He takes earnest interest in live stock, especially in sheep and horses, in which he is an acknowledged expert, evidenced by demands upon his time to exercise his judgment at live-stock fairs held in Eastern and other States, and he has visited England in the same interest.

For several years he was Secretary and Treasurer of the Tippecanoe County Fair Association, filling the offices very acceptably. He has served continuously as Secretary of the Indiana State Live-Stock Sanitary Commission since its creation, in 1880, by the Legislature. He was the founder and has been Secretary and Treasurer of the American Shropshire Sheep Association since its organization, in 1884. Has been Secretary of the American Shetland Pony Club for four years, and is Secretary of the Associated Sheep Organization of America. Is Chairman of the Registration Committee of the American Live-Stock Association. Is local statistical reporter of the United States Department of Agriculture and Bureau of Animal Industry, and is an honorary member of a foreign live-stock association.

Mr. Levering's social tendencies lead him into many societies and companionable organizations. He is a member of both the Lincoln and LaFayette Clubs of the city, and of the Sons of the American Revolution. Is identified with numerous secret orders; a member of Tippecanoe Lodge, F. and A. M.; of LaFayette Chapter, No. 3, R. A. M.; Past Eminent Commander of LaFayette Commandery, No. 3, K. T.; Knight of Malta; Scottish Rite, 32d degree; Murat Temple, Mystic Shrine; a Past Noble Grand of Friendship Lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F.; Wabash Encampment, No. 6, I. O. O. F.; Past Commander LaFayette Canton, I. O. O. F.; Imperial Council, No. 316, Royal Arcanum; member of LaFayette Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias; of Ben Hur Tribe of the Owls, Masonic.

Mr. Levering's religious predilections are inherited. He has for many years been a member of the Baptist Church, and in this connection is developed his inherent family gift for music. As a participant in the choir and a director of church music he has rendered valuable service.

Mr. L. has a very attractive residence, with extensive grounds, near to the city, where he indulges his penchant for cultivating fancy breeds of sheep, ponies and other live stock.

IT might be said of Peregrine Wharton⁶ Levering that he was of Manyunk, Philadelphia; but it may reasonably be said, also, that Manayunk was of him in a great measure. He was "to the manor born," a considerable land-owner, and, as a carpenter and builder—inspired by innate energy and faith in the future—he did much to advance the interests of the place. Born and reared in the first house built on Green Lane, built by his great-grandfather in 1736 (which has been described elsewhere), the growth of the village into a borough, and subsequently into a part of the city proper, was the paramount business of his life. His forefathers, from Wiggard² to Anthony,⁵ had tilled the same lands for a livelihood. In Peregrine's day came the Schuylkill Canal, with its great elevation above the river. Its locks for an outlet into the stream indicated a terminal affording almost unlimited water power. He saw the opportunity and availed of it, encouraged manufacturing enterprises, and but few years passed until a long line of large cotton and woolen factories and paper mills lined the left bank of the Schuylkill, drawing their power from the canal.

"Perry" (as we were wont to call him, and as he was his name) was busy building dwellings for the great accessions to the population. In a few years the place had become a town whose autonomy was maintained by local officers, and so continued until the main city gathered the prosperous suburb under her municipal wings.

Nor was Perry unmindful of his obligations to the Higher Power. He was a deacon in the Roxborough Baptist Church from 1832. In 1851 his desire to benefit the increased population about his home—a mile away—prompted him to contribute to their welfare. He gave the ground and "loaned to the Lord" a great part of the cost of a new Baptist church building, nearly opposite his home on Gayton Lane. Then he, with many of his neighbors, constituted a swarm from the mother congregation into the new hive, where he resumed official relations in what has since been known as the First Baptist Church of Manayunk.

As may be supposed, the object of this sketch shared in the local management of the town and in other public enterprises. He was part owner and for several years President of the Manayunk Bridge Company, maintaining a large bridge across the Schuylkill River to the Lower Merion side. He was Director of the Poor; also School Director and Comptroller.

Though he gained sixteen years upon David's allotted span of life, Perry was a busy man until a few days before his death, which occurred on December 17, 1888, and the place which knew him so long knew him no more. Nor do his survivors, who knew the place so long, know it any more, as his unmarried daughter, Eliza Levering, who succeeded to the ownership, in the year 1891 demolished the time-honored homestead, and erected upon its site a stately double, three-storied mansion of cut stone, with approaches of granite steps and terraced lawn, with conservatory and other architectural adornments. It is hoped that the stones that formed the walls which sheltered so many generations of her ancestors were not rejected by the builders of the ornate structure which appears a monument to the family name, as Peregrine W. Levering was the last of his generation.

CAPT. SAMUEL LEVERING.

“ 316. Samuel Levering⁶: b. at Philad., Sept. 13, 1778; d. at Kaskaskia, Ill., in 1811—aged 33. He was a ship carver. He was sent by the Governor of Ohio Territory on a mission to the Indians.”
—THE LEVERING FAMILY, 1858, by H. G. Jones.

This reference to Samuel Levering by Mr. Jones—a family tradition, doubtless—suggested that he was an enterprising scion of the 18th Century, and must have a history. I determined, “nothing so hard but search will find it out,” and placed the task in hands of Frank H. Levering, then of Denver, Colo., who is skilled in historical research. His diligence was rewarded while perusing an early “History of Illinois,” where conspicuous footprints of the subject of this sketch were found.

In 1810, and previously, many massacres were committed by the Indians of Illinois Territory upon pioneer settlers of Louisiana Territory. The most daring and cruel was that committed at Portage du Sioux, July 21, 1810.

On July 24, 1811, Captain Samuel Levering was commissioned by Governor Ninan Edwards (Ill.) “to proceed to the tribes on the Illinois River and demand of them—the perpetrators of the murders which had been committed—the property which had been stolen by the Indians in the Louisiana and Illinois Territories during the preceding two summers.”

Capt. L. left Kaskaskia on the same day and reached Cahokia on the next. Here he selected and mustered a force and prepared for his expedition by way of the Mississippi and Illinois rivers. He embarked on July 25th, his army (?) consisting of four white men—one of them a French interpreter and spy—one Indian and eight French boatmen, who acted also as soldiers. A small band, but like Gideon of old, he did not rely upon numbers. All were armed with guns. On July 28th they reached Portage du Sioux. Here, a Captain Williamson, with a few men from the block-house near the mouth of the Illinois River, joined them. They soon encountered an Indian fleet, under the Sac chief Quas-qua-me, and fired a gun to bring to his canoes. The Indians—uneducated in military correspondence—misunderstood the signal, and fired back, to which they received response from four beligerent guns, without, however, doing them any apparent harm.

On August 3d the expedition reached Peoria. Here, Indian Agent Forsythe informed Capt. Levering that a letter had been received from Governor Clarke in relation to murders, which letter had been delivered to Chief Gomo, who answered that he was well disposed to respond, but the tribes would not surrender the murderers.

On Aug. 4th Capt. L. was told that one of the Indians who committed murder on Shoal Creek was a Pottawottamie named Nomb-itt, who was with his tribe many leagues away on the trail to Detroit, that the murderers of Portage du Sioux were probably at the apple orchard on the way to Detroit, thus locating the outlaws beyond reach.

A messenger was sent to Gomo's village to give official notice of the presence of Captain Levering, with a letter from Governor Edwards. He responded, received the letter, and promised to send on the next day for several chiefs, whose names and locations he furnished. Captain L. gave presents of tobacco for the chiefs, and then awaited their coming.

When assembled the council differed. A part consented to surrender the murderers, and a part to surrender the stolen property, reporting the murderers not found. The policy most prevalent was to send one of their number—Little Chief—to make promises which they hoped would tide them over.

Captain Levering proposed that the tribes of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Louisiana should unite in a treaty, so that none could shirk responsibility. The chiefs demurred, and went off up the river. Captain L. employed two Indians to pilot himself and his interpreter, Farnier, to Gomo's village up the river. They arrived at 11 P. M., and roused the chief. After some parley they were invited into a large bark lodge. In it were scaffolds several feet wide, which they shared with their host, remaining all night. The next day Captain L. gave advice privately to Chief Gomo, who expressed gratification that the mission had come for personal communication, but if he (Gomo) should make statements in behalf of the whites, he would be called "sugar mouth" and be charged with treachery. Further, he wished all the chiefs in the Territories to hear the Great Father's words, but he feared the chiefs of St. Joseph's and other Northern tribes would not appear, because rumors from the British were among them, exerting adverse influence. Captain L. explained to him the British enmity then existing against Americans, their defeat in the recent seven years' war; that the British urged the Indians to warfare against the whites, offering to protect them in their outlawry, while they (the Britons) were unable to protect themselves.

in warfare with the American forces ; that we, the conquerors, offer peace to the Indians and protection from any unlawful encroachments by the whites, and that we demand justice in return. They must not murder our people nor steal our horses.

On August 11 Captain Levering, at the instance of the Governor, gave commission as Justice of the Peace for Peoria to Thomas Forsyth, also one to John Baptiste Dupond as Captain, of the same place. Dupond anticipated annoyance, but accepted, "to let it be known that there is one man well disposed toward the Government."

On August 15th came Miche-pah-ka-en-na, the Kickapoo chief, with eleven warriors, offering to Capt. Levering usual salutations and expressions of peaceful purpose. The same day came Gomo, Little Chief and others. Little Chief showed Capt. L. a paper and asked explanation. It was a pass from Capt. Heald, dated at Chicago, July 11, 1811, stating that the bearer was on his way to St. Louis, and as protection he gave him a flag. The chief characterized it as a piece of worthless cloth. Capt. L. explained the texture so made as to float in the wind, and explained the use of flags and the devotion of white men to the emblem. On the next day Capt. L. was invited to a council, on reaching the place he observed the flag flying with the union down, he asked to have it properly hoisted, but as it suited the warriors as it was he had to insist upon the change or he would not hold council, so it was done.

In council Capt. Levering addressed the chiefs and presented the letter of Governor Edwards ; he recounted the outrages and demanded the perpetrators. Gomo, as spokesman, said : the Great Spirit placed the redmen where they were, and those who wear hats on the other side of the big waters. He referred to the treaties made by Gen. George Clark at Kaskaskia, and Gen. Wayne at Greenville ; retorted, by citing injuries sustained by Indians at the hands of the whites, which were unavenged, and charged the wrong doings by Indians to undue influence of the Shawnee Prophet on the Washash, who is jealous of the chiefs on this river. This closed the day's council, and the chiefs shook hands with Capt. Levering for their respective nations.

On the next day Capt. Levering addressed the council at length ; said he had no resentment against Indians, that he had grown up far beyond the paths of redmen. He explained that the whites had been punished for molesting them, that the killing of Indians by white men had been done in self-defense.

The council dissolved on the 18th ; Gomo gave up two horses and promised to deliver two more to Capt. Heald at Chicago, and would deliver more when found. As to surrendering murderers, no council action was taken, but Little Chief gave the names of two ring-leaders to Capt. Levering, and privately advised him to invite them to a council at Fort Wayne and arrest them.

The assembly adjourned and Capt. Levering returned to Kaskaskia with his men.

Though an extended relation of the official actions of Capt. Levering upon an important public service, this recital revives pioneer history, so is worth a place. It is but a brief statement from Capt. L.'s official report, which occupies many pages in the old volume named, which is now very rare.

His selection by Governor Edwards for such adventure, requiring business capacity and stern bravery, to meet a murderous foe face to face in a controversy which must excite antagonism, and the result of the errand honored his name, so we may honor his memory.

In hope of finding some tangible evidence of his death and place of burial I made inquiry at Kaskaskia, and learned that neither church nor other records now existing mention Captain Levering's name. The writer remarked—"last spring (1892) the State of Illinois caused the removal of the bodies of early pioneers buried in Kaskaskia, from places where they were exposed to being washed away by the Mississippi River, to a place of safety on the bluffs east of the Kaskaskia River. I superintended the removal and do not recollect of finding any stone or other mark to indicate Captain Levering's place of burial."

The State subsequently erected a fine granite monument, 20 feet high, in this new ground to the memory of the unnamed pioneers. It was unveiled with ceremonies on July 4, 1893, and exposed the inscription:

"Those who sleep here were first buried in Kaskaskia, and afterwards removed to this cemetery. They were the early pioneers of the great Mississippi Valley. They planted free institutions in a wilderness, and were the founders of a great commonwealth. In memory of their sacrifices Illinois gratefully erects this monument."

Aye! They builded better than they knew. The commonwealth of Illinois was limited then. Perhaps twenty years after the daring exploits of Capt. Samuel Levering a small school geography, of which I have memory, was published by Sam'l Gammere, in which he gave the names of the principal towns in Illinois as Kaskaskia, Cahokia, Edwardsville and Vandalia—the last named being then the State Capital.

ALLEN LEVERING.

ALLEN LEVERING, of Mount Gilead, Ohio, son of Morgan and Mary (Bell) Levering, was born in Woodview, Morrow County, Ohio, November 12, 1839. His boyhood days were spent in attending the district school and assisting his father on his farm and in conducting a general store. Upon the death of his father, which occurred while Allen was yet a minor, his mother placed him in charge of the store, which he conducted very successfully for three years, during which time he made several trips to New York City to purchase goods, there meeting with merchants who had for twenty-five years done business with his father, and who were very profuse in their words of praise concerning his character and integrity as a business man, all of which made a lasting impression on Allen's mind. Not being satisfied with his education, in 1863 he sold his interest in the store and attended the Bellville High School for two terms, and in 1865 took a course at Eastman's National Business College at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

In 1866 he accepted the position of teller and book-keeper in the First National Bank of Mount Gilead, Ohio, which he filled for about one year, when he resigned the position, it being too confining for him. He next purchased a stock of dry goods in Mount Gilead, and for ten years conducted a very successful business. After selling his store he was induced to accept the nomination for Representative to the General Assembly. In the campaign which followed Allen proved his popularity by leading his party ticket and being elected, he being the first member of his party elected to that position from Morrow County for twenty-two years. His abilities were recognized by being placed on two very important committees, those of Finance and School Lands, where he rendered valuable services. He secured the passage of several laws. Among them was one providing for the building of the Mount Gilead Short-Line Railroad, connecting that place with the Big Four Railway, and in recognition of his services the junction of the two roads was called Levering Station, and in 1891 he was appointed a trustee of the road by the Common Pleas Court.

In 1880 he joined his brother Robert in the purchase of the dry-goods store that he had formerly owned, and for two years did business under the firm name of Levering & Co. Selling his interest in the store, he again entered the political field, and in 1883 was elected Senator from the district composed of Holmes, Knox, Morrow and Wayne counties. He was successful in securing the passage of many bills that he introduced, one changing the provisions of the Constitution, that was approved by the people; another providing for the execution of criminals sentenced to punishment by death at the State Prison, this being a pioneer step in the matter that has since been followed by several States of the Union.

Allen has held other important positions in business organizations. In 1873 he was elected a director of the bank in which he had formerly been employed, and the next year was its First Vice-President, which position he held for eleven years, when he was elected President of the bank, and continued in that position four years. In 1875 he assisted in the organization of the Mount Gilead Building Association, and was elected its Secretary and Treasurer. This association, in conjunction with the Town Council, erected a fine business block, containing a large auditorium, which, upon petition of the citizens, was named Levering Hall.

In 1878, when Company E was organized and assigned to the 14th Regiment, Ohio National Guards, at the suggestion of the Adjutant-General, and upon the unanimous vote of the company, they were christened The Levering Guards, of Mount Gilead, Ohio. In 1880 he was elected an honorary member of the Philomethan Society of Otterbein University, of Westerville, Ohio. In 1884 he became a member of the State Archeological and Historical Society. He has been a Director of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Company, a Director and Vice-President of the Black Diamond Railway system, and connected with many other enterprises that space will not permit us to mention.

In 1865 Allen was made a Mason, and has ever since been an active member of that fraternity, having taken all the degrees of Knight Templar, Scottish Rite to 33d degree, and a member of the Mystic Shrine. He has also allied himself with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias.

In all his varied career Allen has exemplified the higher type of manhood. In the business interests that have been entrusted to his care he has proven himself worthy of the confidence reposed, and has so discharged every obligation as to leave his character above reproach. Being of a kind and generous disposition, he has endeavored himself to a great circle of friends, and though unmarried, these ties bind him to a great family of friends.

Allen was very active in the organization of the Levering Family Historical Association, and he is greatly interested in its success, giving of his time and means freely.

CHARLES JOSEPH LEVERING.⁶

ONLY son of Joseph and Catharine (Klewell) Levering, was born in Nazareth, Penna., on January 23, 1795. He was educated at Nazareth Hall—a Moravian College for young men—and later was a teacher for some years in the same institution. In the year 1818 he went to Salem, North Carolina (a Moravian town), where he married and engaged in the tailoring trade; he had a farm nearby which divided his time and attention. There he carried on until the year 1836, when he removed to Hope, in Bartholomew County, Indiana, where a Moravian settlement was forming. Here he began anew by opening a farm in the dense woods, for that part of Indiana was then a vast forest.

Being one of the very few men who had brought an education with them to that new country he at once became the "people's man," teaching school in winter, farming in summer; all the while, a public servant, in a local sense, as he was called upon by the settlers from a large area of country to write deeds, mortgages, bonds, even receipts for money paid or obligations discharged, as illiteracy prevailed in those days. The commercial and legal forms and blanks of the present time were then unknown. Notwithstanding the fact that his services were indispensable to the beneficiaries, he was seldom remunerated by them, an occasional bushel of corn increased his store.

With the improvement of the country better days dawned. In the dispensing of public offices he received many tenders of important places, but, wedded to home, he accepted local distinction only. He was elected and served six consecutive terms as Township Trustee—the last being in 1860. He was postmaster at Hope during the presidential terms of the first Harrison, and Tyler, succeeding again under Taylor and Fillmore, continuing for two years under Pierce's administration, when he claimed exemption.

He was an earnest, progressive man; took active part in local politics, but was not an "offensive partisan." In his time he affiliated with the Federalists, next with the Whigs, then encouraging the Know-nothing or American party, acting with each while they existed. During the latter years of his life, and from the party organization, he was actively Republican. He was patriotic and loyal. While living in North Carolina he was a slave-owner, yet no one rejoiced more heartily than he at the overthrow of slavery.

While on his deathbed in January, 1877, with his son and several friends about him, he, characteristically, entered into the discussion of the Hayes-Tilden presidential controversy, which he dismissed with this expression: "I have lived under all of the Presidents of our republic, and to enjoy its Centennial birthday, glad to see the curse of slavery eliminated from its soil; the successful outcome of the war that accomplished its overthrow gives me faith in the permanency of our country; I will die with my faith unshaken in the Republic and in my Redeemer."

His chosen church and its prosperity, spiritually and temporally, seemed the paramount object of his life. Until the infirmities of age forbade he dutifully performed official service in the congregation, and was a cheerful and generous contributor to all benevolent objects.

Possessed of a comfortable estate, with his wife of more than half a century, he expended the closing years of his life in reading and social intercourse among friends, who always welcomed his coming.

Having laid his aged consort to rest, but four months intervened until he followed, and his more than four score years became "an old tale that is told."

JOHN LEVERING¹

(8 of G.)

WAS born near or in Philadelphia, Pa., December 11, 1747. He was a son of Abraham, who was the son of Gertieck. His parents died while he was yet very young, and in consequence of this early bereavement he experienced many hardships in his childhood.

He was taken in charge by a relative in Whitpain, then in Philadelphia County, and was by him apprenticed to a tailor. The name of the relative or that of the tailor have not been discovered.

After learning his trade he journeyed from house to house making clothes for those who employed him, as was the custom at the time. During such employment at the home of the famous old Henry Antes, of Fredericktown, he heard the Gospel preached by the Moravian brethren, and possibly by Whitfield, and was there spiritually awakened.

Soon after (in 1743) he visited Bethlehem, Pa., and applied for admission into the newly-founded Moravian settlement. Before the close of the year he became a member of the Moravian Church and a resident of Bethlehem. Previous to this time he seems to have had no settled abode. Bishop Cammerhoff, writing from Bethlehem to Count Zinzendorf, in 1747, speaks of him as having come from Manatawny, Philad.

The brethren at Bethlehem perceived in John Levering an aptness for controlling children, and in 1746 Bishop Spangenberg addressed him in reference to enlisting his services in this important branch of church work. The result was that on the 18th of August of that year he made formal application to enter the service of the church, was accepted, and soon after was sent to Fredericktown to take charge of the school which had been opened at the house of Henry Antes. The Moravian schools at that time were conducted as family institutions.

In 1747 he was transferred to the school at Germantown, where he remained but a short time, returning from there to Bethlehem, where, on Sunday, May 19, 1748, he was married by Bishop Spangenberg to Maria Susanna Bechtel, born February 22, 1730, fourth daughter of John Bechtel, a former resident of Germantown, and a lector of the Reformed Church. After marriage he, with his wife, returned to Fredericktown, where they remained until that school was abandoned in the fall of 1750.

Returning to Bethlehem, their first child was born there on December 16, 1750. In the year 1751 they removed to Nazareth and took charge of the "Kindereltern," or nursery, which had been established in December, 1748. In December, 1755, the Nursery and the Girls' School were removed to Bethlehem, as were the children of all the outlying stations, for safety because of the Indian outbreak. This exodus from Nazareth of seventy-eight children, with fifteen teachers and servants, together with Mr. Levering and wife, was made in five large wagons. In June, 1756, all returned to Nazareth, where Mr. L. continued to the close of the year 1758.

On January 3, 1759, John Levering and his wife, in Bethlehem, began preparations for going to the new mission work on the Island of Jamaica, and on the 12th of February, after sending their infant son Abraham back to the Nursery at Nazareth, leaving Joseph at Nazareth Hall and Anna Maria in the Girls' School at Bethlehem, they, with the Rev. Joseph Powell and wife, proceeded on their journey. They set sail February 19 from Philadelphia, on the brigantine "Louisburg." On March 19 they anchored before Kingston, Jamaica.

In Jamaica their service consisted chiefly in caring for the children of the slaves and in pastoral work by means of visiting from hut to hut and in superintending the temporal affairs of the Mission. Though Mr. L. is commonly regarded as having been a clergyman, no record has been found of his ordination, either before or after he went to Jamaica. He continually held religious services and delivered addresses to the natives in the Mission.

They were first stationed at Carmel, where their fifth child was born, but on February 27, 1762, they removed to the Bogue Estate, where a new work had been commenced. Here their sixth child, a son, was born. They removed to Mesopotamia on November 25, 1762. This proved to be his last field of labor, as he was taken sick August 13, 1764, with a malignant fever, and on the 19th he passed away, and was buried the next day in the garden adjoining the Mission House, where his child Christian and several other persons had been buried.

His widow remained in the church service in Jamaica until the spring of 1767, when she returned to Bethlehem with her two children born abroad, arriving on the 22d of May.

On April 11, 1768, Mrs. L. was again married, at Bethlehem, to John Merck, who had been in mission work for several years at St. Thomas. On May 25, 1768, Mr. Merck and wife sailed for St. Thomas, and after service on that island they were transferred to St. John, where they labored together for fifteen years. In the meantime (1774) they revisited Bethlehem for a few months. Mrs. Merck died on the Island of St. John August 10, 1783, and was the first person buried in the graveyard of the brethren there. Mr. Merck returned to this country in 1786, and died at Nazareth in 1791.

JOHN COOK LEVERING.

[CONTRIBUTED.]

JOHAN C. LEVERING, son of Noah and Armanella (Cook) Levering, was born September 11, 1829, at Levering, Knox County, Ohio.

Being the oldest of a family of ten children, he, early in life, found it necessary to "put his shoulder to the wheel" and assist his father in the control and management of the farm. During the winter seasons he attended the district school and obtained such an education as was then afforded. Arriving at the age of manhood, he married, bought eighty acres of land from his father, which he improved by clearing off the heavy growth of timber and erecting good and substantial buildings, which yet remain to testify of his labors.

Mr. Levering has always taken an active part in agriculture and stock-breeding, devoting his time and means liberally to the business, and his farm is noted for its prize-winning stock. In 1866 he became a member of the Knox County Agricultural Society, and has ever since been a member of the board, serving as President of the society for a number of years. In 1881 he was elected a member of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, and assisted in the purchase and improvement of the present beautiful and commodious State Fair Grounds. He served as a member of the board for six years, being elected Treasurer in 1885, and President of the board in 1886. In 1883 he was selected as delegate to represent the State of Ohio in the National Agricultural Convention held at Washington, D. C.

At the close of his term as a member of the State Board of Agriculture in 1887, he was appointed by the Governor of Ohio as a member of the Ohio Centennial Board, and took an active part in the management of the Ohio Centennial that was held at Columbus during the fall of 1888.

At the request of the Secretary of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, Mr. Levering wrote a paper on "The Farmers' Horse and Horse-Breeding," read at the annual Agricultural Convention of 1890, which afterward led to the organization of the Ohio State Draft and Coach Horse Breeders' Association, in 1891, of which organization he was made President for three successive terms.

In the fall of 1871 he was elected a County Commissioner, and served in that capacity for six years, being re-elected in 1874. During his first term of office he caused the building of the first iron bridges in the county, and during his entire term of office, seventy-four iron bridges were constructed, which to-day are the pride of the county. During his second term of the office he was instrumental in building the Knox County Infirmary, at a cost of $100,000. Mr. Levering was a careful, painstaking commissioner, and commanded the respect of all, as will appear from the following article taken from the Mount Vernon "Republican" under date of November 20, 1877:

"Superintendent Williams gave a dinner at the infirmary, chiefly in honor of Commissioner Levering, whose term of office has about expired. Mr. Levering may be called the founder of the new infirmary, as he had more to do with it than any other officer. Quite a number of guests from the city were invited. Commissioner Levering goes out of office with the respect of both parties. As we never lose an opportunity to tell the truth about a Democrat, it is proper to say that any compliment we can pay to the gentlemanly conduct of Mr. Levering while in office, and to his honesty and uprightness as a private citizen is not out of place."

In politics Mr. Levering is a Democrat of the Jefferson-Jacksonian type, firmly adhering to the principles established by those worthy political sires. In 1886 he was nominated by his party as its candidate for Congress from the Ninth Ohio Congressional District, and although he made an excellent canvass, he was unable to overcome the large Republican majority in the district. Early in life Mr. Levering united with the Presbyterian Church, and has been a zealous worker in the cause, being in that, as in all other things, always at the post of duty, firmly battling for that which he believed to be right.

Addendum.—In the formation and organization of the Levering Historical Association, and in getting up the successful Levering Family Reunion in 1891, no one was more interested or industrious than John C. Levering, and as Corresponding Secretary of the Association he has been prompt and helpful. No other has been of more service to me, and I rely upon him for accomplishing the publication of this work when my undertaking shall be completed.

[The story of his useful life, as copied from preserved manuscript of more than a century ago, is given here as an authentic relation, having been penned immediately after his death, for preservation in the archives of the Moravian Church, as is their custom. Given as a sample church record, its verbosity will be excused.]

[Translated from the German by his grandson, Levi L. Levering.]

Biographical sketch of our sainted Brother, Joseph Levering. Departed this life in Nazareth, 6th June 1797.

Our sainted brother Joseph Levering was born the 28th of March 1755, in Nazareth. (Penna.) His sainted father Johann Levering, and his mother, Susannah Bechtel, were at that time Home Missionaries in Nazareth, and later were called to serve the Lord as Missionaries among the Negroes in Jamaica, where, soon afterwards the father died. (1764) The mother—who afterwards was married to our sainted bro. Merck—served among the Negroes in the Mission in San Juan, and ended her life-work there. In his younger years he frequently gave evidence of the desire of his heart, to also serve the Lord as a laborer among the heathens, but disliked making application for such service, in-as-much as he believed that if the Lord wanted him, there would come a call for him, and in such case he would gladly have accepted such a call.

On his last sick bed, he recalled and spoke of various instances of visitations and seasons of grace experienced by him, in his child and boyhood years, particularly, how well it was with him in his 7th year, one time at a children's prayer meeting, when he experienced and realized the nearness and love of the Saviour in his heart, with such power, that he surrendered himself to Him, as His property and realized how great and important the grace, granting him the privilege of thus approaching and worshiping his Saviour. And again when admitted into the "boy's corps," and into the congregation in the year 1767, when he made the covenant with the Lord, to live on earth for Him only, and to be and remain His property, body and soul.

In like manner in the year 1774 the blessed season of grace he experienced in the Passion Week, in particular on Holy Thursday, at his first admission to the Lord's Supper, which was an experience to him never to be forgotten.

After having been at Nazareth Hall until his 13th year, he went to Christians Brunn (a small village near Nazareth) and learned the gunsmith's trade, which then, on account of the frequent visits of the Indians, made that business brisk and profitable, and in which he afterwards for a number of years, engaged as proprietor.

God had endowed him with the beautiful talent for music, especially for singing, wherewith he not only sang to the praise of God, his Savior, for the glorious heritage he had in Christ's atonement, but on festival and other occasions he willingly sang for the congregation with a glad heart for the upbuilding and good cheer of his brethren and sisters.

On the 27th of July, 1787, he entered into holy wedlock with the widowed sister Johanna Elizabeth Smith (nee Ashly), with whom he for several years resided in Christians Brunn, and afterwards removed here to Nazareth, and here, besides gunsmithing, began also the thinner business. On October the 17th, 1790, he was made widower by the death of his wife, the fruits of their wedlock having been two children, of which one (a daughter) had died before the mother, and the other (a son) soon after the mother.

On the 5th day of June, 1791, he was united by marriage with the single sister Anna Catharine Klewell. This union was blessed with three children—two daughters and one son—all of whom are still living.

He served as Justice of the Peace several years with consciousness and solicitude that everything should be conducted honest and upright before God and man, and he enjoyed the confidence of his fellow citizens throughout the whole neighborhood.

As his health had for several years been failing from frequent attacks of bleeding of the lungs—the result of a fall he had when the weather had brought on a great sleet—so last May a year ago he was compelled on that account to resign his office and take more rest than theretofore. And now he sought that silent and confidential communion with the Friend of his soul, who, through his holy spirit, wrought a peculiar work of grace in his heart, of which he spoke freely to those visiting him during his sickness as to his hopes, fears and joys that he thus experienced. On account of his family he desired to be restored to health again, and employed every known means to accomplish that end, yet expressed his belief that his illness might prove to be the occasion for his early departure to his heavenly home. At this time he also acknowledged the great mercy and long-suffering of the Lord, which he had shown toward him, both in his youth and in maturer years, for he considered himself a great debtor, inasmuch as he felt that the pledge made to his Savior in his childhood, to live for Him alone on earth, had not been lived up to as it should have been, but he could say, in the language of that beautiful verse in the well-known hymn :

I see I stood, poor dreamer,
 Condemned—and justly so—
 Then gave, my dear Redeemer,
 Himself for me, to show
 By heart with grief o'erflowing,
 By blood-sweat, flowing free,
 By soul in death then bowing.
 His wond'rous love for me.

Which was sung on the occasion of a Lord's Supper, and from the thought therein expressed he derived such comfort and consolation at the time that he never forgot it, and often repeated it on his sick bed, for he realized that by his transgressions he deserved condemnation, but felt in his heart that he had received full forgiveness, and was ever thankful to the Lord for the sufferings he endured on his sick bed, on account of their having been the means of drawing him into a still nearer communion with Himself, and had no fear of death whatever.

Since about a month ago he began to rapidly grow weaker, and was almost constantly confined to his bed, and now his longing to be at home with the Lord, and to reach the end of all care and suffering, increased daily. To his beloved wife, for her tender care and nursing through his sickness, he was very thankful, and commended her and his dear children to the care of their Heavenly Father to watch over their temporal and spiritual welfare and preserve them to Himself and His people.

In the afternoon of June 3, at his request, he received farewell blessing, prayer and benediction, at the close of which he expressed his perfect peace with God. On the 6th, at his request, there was singing and praying by brethren and sisters at his bedside the whole forenoon, which served to cheer him in his suffering from the great tightness in his chest, which had become extreme. He remained conscious to the last moment, and passed away quietly at 6 o'clock. His age was 42 years.

RIGHT REV. J. M. LEVERING.

REV. JOSEPH MORTIMER LEVERING, who is one of the Bishops of the Northern district of the United States, for the Moravian Church, maintains the ministerial character of this branch of the family, which began in religious teaching and foreign missionary labor, by his great-great-grandfather, John Levering.

He was born at Hamburg, Hardin County, Tennessee, February 10, 1849. Shortly after his birth his parents returned to Hope, Bartholomew Co., Ind., from whence they had removed. In 1851 they removed to Illinois, and lived at West Salem, in Edwards County, until the autumn of 1856, when they located at Olney, in Richland County, where Joseph M. lived with his parents until 1870.

Having to assist in maintaining the family, he was prevented from going to college until he became of age, but, keeping this object in view, he made use of the best educational facilities within his reach, and was aided in private study by several scholarly clergymen, who took an interest in him.

In September, 1870, he was matriculated at the Moravian College and Theological Seminary at Bethlehem, Penna. After being graduated in the class of 1874, he taught in Nazareth Hall, at Nazareth, Pa., until the close of the year, when—December 20, 1874—he took Deacon's orders in the Moravian Church, and in January, 1875, he assumed charge of a new home mission at Uhrichsville, Ohio.

During the sessions of the Moravian Synod at Nazareth—on May 21, 1876—he was ordained a Presbyter. Immediately after the session he married Miss Martha Augusta Whitesell, a teacher in the Moravian Parish school at Bethlehem.

In April, 1879, he was called from Uhrichsville to Lake Mills, Wisconsin, where he labored until September, 1883, when (in Oct.) he became one of the two pastors of the Moravian Church at Bethlehem, which position he yet (1895) fills.

In February, 1888, he was elected to supply a vacancy in the General Executive Board of the American Moravian Church, until the meeting of the Synod held in September, and at the close of the Synod—Sept. 30, 1888—he was consecrated a Bishop of the Moravian Church, continuing, however, in the local pastorate at Bethlehem.

In 1889 Bishop Levering attended the General Synod of the Moravian Church of Europe and America, held at Herrnhut, Saxony, and was chosen a Vice-President of that body.

In 1895 Bishop Levering was elected president of the Moravian Historical Society, and the archives of the Moravian Church in America are in his custody.

As I understand, his Episcopal relations extend to all the churches of his denomination in the northern States; there being a separate Bishop and Executive Board in the South with its seat of government at Salem, North Carolina.

The little leisure left to Bishop Levering, by his numerous official duties, is devoted largely to historical research in which he takes particular pleasure. He has been especially helpful to me in glean- ing the history of John Levering,⁴ whom Mr. Jones, in his compilation of 1858, was pleased to regard as the progenitor of the "Naza- reth Branch," which line of demarkation, however, the bishop discards as useless and indefensible, in which I concur.

His marriage has been blessed with two children, both daughters.

JUDGE FRANK O. LEVERING.

(830 of G.)

UPON the accession of Frank O. Levering, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, to the judicial bench of Knox County, on February 9, 1897, a local newspaper said of him:

Mr. Levering was born on the old Levering homestead, near the town of Levering, in this county, September 29, 1862. His parents are Hon. John C. Levering and wife, Carrie. He spent his boyhood on the farm, attending the district school in the winter, until he reached his majority. He had always aspired to be a lawyer, and had expected to take a collegiate course in preparing himself for his chosen profession, but on account of the large farming interests of his father his presence was demanded at home, and he found it impos- sible to gratify this wish of his boyhood's ambition. In the spring of 1883 he secured a teacher's certificate, and during the fol- lowing winter instructed the young ideas of a neighboring school. He was successful in this capacity, and was requested to continue, but he had determined to increase his own education, and repaired to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he took a complete commercial course in the Eastman Business College, and graduated with honors. He returned home, and in the spring of 1885 he engaged in mercantile business at Levering, Ohio, which he continued successfully until February, 1890, when he yielded to his inclination. Disposing of his business, he removed to Mount Vernon to prosecute his study of the law. He pursued the study with Hon. Frank V. Owen, and in March, 1892, was admitted to the bar.

He immediately began the practice of his profession with his preceptor, and obtained a lucrative business. He was appointed a member of the Board of Electors for this county in 1883, to fill a vacancy, and was twice reappointed, and resigned last fall, after his nomination for office of Judge, to which he was elected in November by a large majority over a competitor who was a candidate for re-election.

Judge Levering is a member of Mount Zion Lodge, F. and A. M., of Clinton Chapter, R. A. M., of Kinsman Council, R. and S. M., of Quindaro Lodge, I. O. O. F.; also of Royal Arcanum and National Union, all of this city.

It is unnecessary to predict that Judge Levering will make a successful and competent official. His gentlemanly ways, accommodating manners and unimpeachable honesty of character render him peculiarly capable to discharge the duties of his office.

Shortly after entering upon the duties of his office Judge Levering administered the oath to his deputy, Miss Maggie Dermody.

NOAH LEVERING.

NOAH LEVERING was born April 13, 1827, in Knox County, Ohio, on the farm where the Levering Family Reunion was held on August 6, 1891.

He received the first rudiments of an education in the village of Levering, near by, then called Watertord. The late Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the United States Treasury, was his classmate. He afterwards attended Sloan's Academy, at Mount Vernon, Ohio, where Hon. Frank Hurd and Gen. Henry Banning were his classmates.

In 1849 he located at Bryantsville, in Garred County, Ky., where he taught school. Early in 1853 he removed to Urbana, Ill., and in the fall of the same year to Bloomington, Ill., where he studied law in the office of Leonard Swett, who subsequently was a law partner of Abraham Lincoln.

In 1854, upon the recommendation of Hon. David Davis, he was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Illinois. In the fall of 1854 he located at Toledo, Iowa, and on August 9, 1855, he married Margaret Fry Martin, of Jacksonville, Ill. In the fall of 1856 he removed to Sioux City, Iowa, where, in 1862, he was elected County Judge, without opposition, and in the same year was elected City Clerk of Sioux City, and appointed by Governor Kirkwood as Commissioner of Iowa troops, and reappointed in 1863.

In 1864 Mr. Levering was made an honorary member of the State Historical Society, and in October of same year was appointed Regimental Quartermaster of the 6th Iowa Vols., then quartered at Sioux City, and was appointed Enrolling Officer for the draft.

In the fall of 1865 he resigned the official positions held and removed to Independence, Mo., where he engaged in mercantile business. In 1869 was appointed postmaster at Mecklin, Mo. In 1875 removed to Los Angeles, Cal., where, in 1876, was chosen by the Los Angeles County Agricultural Society as editor of their department in the Los Angeles "Herald."

Mr. L. has for more than thirty years been interested in bee culture, and is now conducting The Apiary department of the "California Cultivator." In 1880 he successfully shipped the first Italian bees ever sent to the island of New Zealand, a distance of over 7,000 miles, an enterprise in which many had failed.

In 1883 he organized the Historical Society of Southern California, now the leading society of its kind in the State. In 1884 was elected Justice of the Peace, and re-elected a member of the School Board, a position which he had held for twelve years.

These annals of a busy life prove Noah to be characteristically a Levering. He is now (1895) enjoying well-earned rest in a quiet home near to Los Angeles, pursuing horticultural studies and employment, preferring rather to wear out than to rust out.

[From the San Francisco "Chronicle" of July 22, 1894.]

EX-GOVERNOR FREDERICK F. LOW was one of the pioneers of this State, who became a very prominent figure in its later history. He was born into a plain country family, near Frankfort, Maine, in 1828. He acquired a good common school education, and then became a clerk in a store in Boston. In 1849 he joined the rush to California, arriving in that year by the steamer Panama, which brought with him many men, then or afterwards prominent characters.

He had a brief experience in the mines, and soon went into merchandising with a partner on Sacramento street, the firm name being Lambert & Low.

About 1855 he removed to Marysville and went into business with his brothers. They subsequently relinquished merchandising and succeeded to the banking business of Adams & Co., at Marysville, under the name of Low Brothers & Co. His career in this line was a very successful one.

In 1861 he was elected to Congress on the Republican ticket, and about the same time he and his brothers removed their business to San Francisco, where they operated as capitalists and investors.

In 1863 Mr. Low was appointed Collector of the port of San Francisco by President Lincoln, and during the same year was elected Governor of the State. He was a conscientious and clear-headed executive, and his administration was notable for its purity and vigor. He rendered valuable service to the Nation during the closing years of the war, and won many plaudits for his administration of State affairs. In 1867 he declined a renomination.

In 1869 he was appointed United States Minister to China, serving in that capacity about four years, under the administration of President Grant.

On his return to San Francisco he became Associate Manager of the Anglo-Californian Bank, and so remained until his death. He was a large stockholder in the Sutter Street Railway Company, and for many years its President.

Mr. Low made considerable money in Hawaiian sugar plantations, owned large lumber and milling properties in Humboldt County, and was engaged in other enterprises. He was a man of shrewdness, good sense and integrity and won general respect wherever he was known.

While living in Marysville he married Miss Mary Creed, a niece of John C. Fall, of that place, a well-known pioneer and business man.

He died July 21, 1894, at his home, corner of Sutter and Gough streets, in San Francisco, the result of the gradual exhaustion of his powers. His wife and an unmarried daughter—an only child—survived him.

REV. GIDEON P. MACKLIN.

GIDEON PILLOW MACKLIN was born at Waldo, in Marion Co., Ohio, June 28, 1850. He was graduated from Otterbein University, at Westerville, O., in the class of 1879, and a few days after married Mary Elizabeth Arford, of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. He studied theology under the auspices of the United Brethren Church, and was ordained to its ministry. His early pastoral charges were at Fostoria, Findlay and Honey Creek, in the Sandusky Conference. While residing at Fostoria, Mrs. Macklin—who is a lady of superior education—was employed as Lady Principal and Professor of Mathematics, for three years, in the Fostoria Academy.

After five years of ministerial service in the Sandusky Conference, both Rev. M. and wife were elected to positions in Westfield College, Illinois. He, as Professor of Latin and Greek, and Mrs. M. as Lady Principal and Professor of Natural Sciences.

At the end of one year Mr. M. was tendered the Presidency of Avalon College, Mo., and the chair of Mental and Moral Sciences. Mrs. M. was elected at the same time to the positions of Prof. of Natural Sciences and Lady Principal of the same institution. After filling these places for two years both were elected to the same positions in Lane University at Lecompton, Kansas, but declined the honors conferred.

Preferring pastoral labor, Rev. Macklin, in August, 1886, was recognized by the Miami Conference of Ohio, and has served under its direction since, having been assigned successively to charges at Greenville, Lewisburg and Germantown, being now (1893) stationed at the last named place.

Mr. Macklin being well known as interested in moral reforms, he was nominated by the Prohibition Party of Ohio, in convention at Cleveland, on June 28, 1893, as their candidate for Governor of Ohio. Though he was leader of a "forlorn hope," he entered into the political canvass industriously, and won more respect, confidence and admiration than votes.

Wedded to his clerical calling, Mr. M. did not abate ministerial duties; a few days after defeat at the election he was serving as Presiding Elder in conducting the Ontario Conference of his church, at Ontario, Canada, a service which detained him in the "Dominion" for about three months.

Rev. Macklin is a scholarly and popular lecturer upon literary subjects, and many demands are made upon him for such services wherever he is known.

REAR ADMIRAL E. O. MATTHEWS.

EDMUND ORVILLE MATTHEWS is one of five brothers who are prominent in scientific and commercial circles, and who merit the esteem of their fellow-men.

They were born in the city of Baltimore, Md. Inspired with enterprise, the family removed in the spring of 1842—when the subject of this paper was five years old—to St. Francisville, Clark County, Mo., upon the then borders of civilization. Three years later they removed to a farm near to Hannibal, Mo.

From this Western home Edmund Orville Matthews—then less than fifteen years of age—on October 2, 1851, entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., from which, after due course, he was graduated with honor.

As his official service has been varied, it may best be told in abbreviated form, as appears in the "Records of Living Officers," 3d edition, compiled and published by the Government:

Naval Academy 1851-5, as Acting Midshipman.

Frigate "Potomac," Home Squadron, Nov., '55, to May, '56.

Sloop of war "Saratoga," Home Squadron, May, '56, to June, '58, as Midshipman.

Promoted to Passed Midshipman Apl., '58, and ordered to sloop "Macedonian," of the Mediterranean Squadron, May, '58, to July, '60.

Promoted to Master Nov. 4, '58, and commissioned a Lieutenant June 27, '60.

At Naval Academy, as Instructor in Mathematics, Oct., '60, to April, '61.

Went with the Naval Academy to Newport, R. I., in the "Constitution."

With steam frigate "Wabash" May, '61, to Nov., '61; capture of forts at Hatteras Inlet, Aug., '61; prostrated by sickness and sent to Brooklyn Hospital.

Instructor in Seamanship Nov., '61, to Oct., '62.

Promoted to Lieutenant Commander July 16, '62.

Head of the Department of Gunnery and Ordnance Oct., '62, to June, '64.

With South Atlantic Squadron, commanding the "Sonoma" (double-ender), then constructing naval battery on Morris Island, S. C., June, '64, to July, '65.

Commanded Naval Light Artillery at Honey Hill, S. C., Nov. 30, and in the battles at Tullifeiny Cross Roads, Dec., '64.

On staff of Admiral Dahlgren from Jan. to July, '65.

Fitted out apprentice ship "Savannah" Aug., '65.

Naval Academy Nov., '65, as Asst. Department of Gunnery, etc.

Head of Department of Gunnery, etc., Oct., '66, to June, '69.

Head of Torpedo Corps June, '69, to July, '73.

Promoted to Commander April 22, '70.

Commanding U. S. Steamer "Ashuelot," Asiatic Squadron, Mch., '74, to Apl., '77.

Inspector of Ordnance at Navy Yard, New York, Apl. 1, '78, to Apl. 15, '81.

Commanding U. S. S. "Powhattan," on special service, Atlantic Coast, Aug., '81, to Feb., '83.

Promoted to Captain Sept. 14, '81.

In command of Training Ship "New Hampshire," at Newport, R. I., Mch., '83, to July, '84.

Member of Gun Foundry Board, appointed by President Arthur, under act of Congress: board composed of three army and three naval officers, Apl., '83, to Feb., '85. In course of this duty visited gun establishments in Europe.

Commanding U. S. S. "Brooklyn," first in Home Station, sailing Aug. 12, '86, for Asiatic Station, through the Suez Canal, visiting Persia, India, etc., Oct., '85, to Sept., '87.

Captain of the Navy Yard at Boston, Mass., Nov., '87, to May, '90.

Commanding Receiving Ship "Wabash," at Boston, May, '90, to July 31, '91.

Member of Board of Inspection and Survey from July, '91, to Mch., '94.

Chief of Yards and Docks, Navy Department, Washington, D. C., from Mch. 16, '94, as Commodore, and since June, '97, as Rear Admiral, which is his present official position.

The important commands and positions filled, under selection and orders of the Navy Department of the Government, are evidences of recognized ability. It may have been Commodore Matthews' misfortune to have been so young during the War of the Rebellion, as the opportunities for earning promotion and fame furnished by such conflict, occurs but once during generations of men. While filling official positions during the entire period of the war, I became persuaded that we had other Grants and other Farraguts if opportunities had been theirs.

RICHARD METHEANY was the son of one of the pioneers of Western Ohio, and inherited the enterprising characteristics of his parent. By availing of every possible source, as furnished in that early period, he secured an education which assured to him business successes.

As an obituary publication in the Lima (Ohio) Gazette of June 25, 1879—the date of his decease—tells the story of his life in brief lines, I repeat it:

“Mr. Metheny has been a conspicuous figure in the history of Lima, and of Allen County. He was a rare man, a very useful, just and honorable citizen. Born in Brown County, Ohio, in 1805, he, in 1834, moved to Two-Mile, then in Allen, now in Auglaize County. In 1836 he married Esther A., daughter of Judge Levering. They had twelve children, all of whom, but one, are living.* In 1844 he moved to Lima, having been appointed Clerk of the County Courts, which office he held until it was vacated by operation of the new State Constitution of 1851.

At that time Mr. Metheny became interested in Railroad enterprises. He took an active part in establishing what has become the great Pennsylvania Line. When completed he became its representative at Lima.

In 1855 he was elected County Auditor, which office he held for two years, since then he has been a grain and produce merchant, dealing extensively.

*Since the death of Mr. Metheny a son, John Milton Metheny, who had joined the Pennsylvania Railroad management, has departed this life.

Mr. M., during most of the time of his residence in Lima, has filled some municipal office, and was ever foremost in local affairs.

To his children he gave ample opportunity for scholarly and business education. His sons have become prominent railroad officers. Taken as a whole, we regard the family as the most advanced, of which we have any personal knowledge, in this locality.

His funeral was held under the auspices of the Shawnee Commandery of Knights Templar, of which he was an honored member."

[CONTRIBUTED BY RT.-REV. JOSEPH M. LEVERING.]

GEORGE BENJAMIN MILLER, son of Anna Johanna (Levering) and Rev. George Godfrey Miller, of Emaus, Lehigh Co., Penna. When seven years of age, in 1802, he was sent to school at Nazareth Hall, the well known Moravian institution at Nazareth, Pa. In 1810, he entered the collegiate and theological department, which was opened there in 1807, under the learned Professor Ernest Lewis Hazelius. Upon its temporary suspension he left Nazareth in February, 1811, and consequently never followed his father, and grandfather, Bishop Burchard George Müller, into the ministry of the Moravian Church. He, with Dr. Hazelius and another Moravian collegian from Nazareth,—the Rev. Henry Immanuel Schmidt, D. D.: 1848-80 professor in Columbia College, New York,—became intimately associated in the Lutheran Church, especially in connection with Hartwick Seminary, in Otsego Co., New York, in which they all figured and with which the name of Dr. Miller is most prominently identified.

Prior to 1827, when his career in that institution began, he had taught in Philadelphia, at New Germantown, N. J., at Lebanon, N. J., and at Canajoharie, N. Y., where he also founded a Lutheran Church, having in 1818 been examined and licensed, and on May 29, 1821, been ordained and admitted to the Lutheran Synod of New York.

He entered the Hartwick Seminary as an assistant under Dr. Hazelius, the first Principal, and when the latter, in 1830, left for Gettysburg, Pa., the Trustees of the Seminary elected him to the position made vacant. Excepting a period of five years, 1839-44, when he lived at Dansville, N. Y., in feeble health—and his friend, Dr. Schmidt, took his place—he remained at the head of the institution the rest of his life.

Dr. Miller was distinguished as a theologian, linguist and master of literature; was a most able instructor; an untiring worker; a man of deep piety; singularly modest, but of a vivacious temperament, inherited, it is said, from his mother. His wife was a niece of Mrs. Hazelius.

The centennial anniversary of his birth was observed, on June 10, 1895, by a memorial service at the institution which he had served so long and so ably. Of his thirteen children, one son and seven daughters, with fifty-three grandchildren, and forty-three great-grandchildren, were living at that time.

Not only were he, his father and his grandfather, clergymen, but one of his sons, five of his sons-in-law, and three of his grandsons have belonged to this profession.

RALPH D. MOORE.

[From the LaFayette (Ind.) "Sunday Times" of April 7, 1895.]

SELDOM has any event occurred in LaFayette which caused such a painful thrill to pulsate through the community, than the sudden and deeply-regretted death, from heart disease, of Ralph D. Moore, which occurred early on last Friday morning, at the family residence, corner of Twelfth and Hartford streets.

A bright intellect, a grand and consistent Christian character and a warm, generous heart were stricken, as if by lightning, and the genial, helpful and useful life, which had won so large a degree of favor for itself in the bosoms of all, went out forever without a pause and, haply, without a pang.

Ralph Douglas Moore was a native of Butler County, Ohio. He creditably and bravely served his country during the War of the Rebellion. He came to LaFayette in 1866, and in 1867 entered into the drug trade with Henry C. Tinney, from which he retired in 1875 to engage in the real estate and loan business with Col. John Levering, and where he has since remained.

In 1871 Mr. Moore married Miss Emma W., only daughter of Colonel Levering, and she survives, with two children, Emma Levering and Elsie Douglas.

Mr. Moore's activity in promoting the cause righteous was proverbial, and in and out of the Baptist Church, in the various religious organizations of the city, his labors for good were ardent, honest, reaching and effective, for none brought to the work a more sincere earnest and faithful spirit. He was a gentleman as well as a Christian, and the dignity and beauty of his life, though not displayed for public applause, will long remain a treasure to the friends he has left behind him. No man in the city could be more sadly missed.

Various societies and organizations, benevolent and religious, of which the deceased was an honored member, have vied in offering testimony of respect and sorrow, and to-day, in the First Baptist Church, will be held public memorial services. Rev. C. M. Carter, pastor, will preach this morning on "The Life and Works of Ralph D. Moore," and at 2:30 P. M., in the church, the special services will include eulogies by Rev. Carter, Prof. C. H. Hall, of Franklin College; Col. R. P. DeHart, Rev. Pfanstiehl of the Second Presbyterian and Rev. Tippy of Methodist Episcopal churches, and other members of the local clergy. Representatives of the Royal Arcanum and the Grand Army will escort the body. The Boys' Brigade of the Baptist Church, which was organized and uniformed by Mr. Moore, will follow as mourners and flower-bearers.

The funeral (private) will occur to-morrow at 2 P. M., from the family residence, Rev. Carter and Rev. W. B. Riley, of Chicago, officiating. Interment at Spring Vale Cemetery."

The religious and business friends of Ralph D. Moore have, since his decease, erected a memorial chapel in the northeastern suburbs of LaFayette, where he organized, and for more than twenty years maintained, a Mission Sabbath School, embracing children of all religious denominations.

DANIEL PASTORIUS.

[The local celebrity, FRANCIS DANIEL PASTORIUS, who founded Germantown in 1683, was a learned man. The dearth of books and educational facilities at that period induced him to provide manuscript lessons for the youth. A volume of about 1,000 pages, finely written, in several languages—mostly in English—and which he entitled THE BEE HIVE, is still preserved. In it is a biographical sketch of his ancestry, and a genealogical record, continuing to his gr. son DANIEL, the subject of this sketch, who married Sarah, eldest daughter of Amelia (Levering) and Abraham Shoemaker. To preserve this in print Daniel Pastorius Bruner, Esq., of Germantown, Philad., has, at my request, translated the record from the German MSS., as follows:]

Christianus Pastorius, a citizen of Warburg. Martinus Pastorius, Assessor of the Electoral Court at Erfurt, the metropolis of Thuringen—"a man high born and of good estate"—in 1629, was Imperial Councilor of King Ferdinand II. He married Brigitta Von Flinsberg, daughter of Christian Von Flinsberg of Mulhausen.

Melchior Adam Pastorius (5th child), born in the city of Erfurt, Sept. 21, 1624, was educated in the German College at Rome for a priest, afterward studied law, and receiving the degree of Doctor of Laws, returned to Germany. Settled at Sommerhausen and practiced law in Wartzberg (two German miles from Sommerhausen), in Pfringenlandt. Here he associated himself with the Lutheran party. He married January 22, 1650, Magdalena Dietz, daughter of Stephan Dietz, Steward at Northausen and Commissary in the Court of King Gustavus Adolphus. She was born February 2, 1607, and died March 27, 1657; buried at Sommerhausen, leaving only one child, Franciscus Daniel Pastorius, who was named after his godfathers, Franciscus Semperfrey Von Lunburg and Daniel Gering of Sequitz. He (Melchior Adam Pastorius) soon after moved to Windsheim, where he served in Public office for many years; was Public Councilor, Senator, Auditor of the Province, Inspector and Professor in the Gymnasium, Mayor, Elder Burgomaster, Judge and Chief Justice, and finally, at the age of 70, he resigned and retired to a mansion in the Garden of the Marquess of Brandenburg, Beyruth, near the city of Nurenburg, where he died on February 4, 1702.

Francis Daniel Pastorius was born at Sommerhausen, September 26, 1651. Attended several of the Universities and finally took his degree, Doctor of Laws, at the University of Altoort; practiced law at Windsheim and in Frankfurt; traveled through Holland, England, France and Switzerland, and returned to Frankfurt November 18, 1682, where he assembled with his friends, Dr. Spencer, Dr. Shultz, Notarius Fenda, Jacobus Van de Walle, Maximilian Lerhner, Eleonius Von Merlan and others, who informed him that they had purchased fifteen thousand acres of land in Pennsylvania, in America. He became so much interested that he gained permission from his father to emigrate to Pennsylvania, and became a member, with the others named, of the Frankfurt Company. He sailed from England in the ship America, Captain Joseph Vasey, on June 10, 1683, and arrived at Philadelphia August 20, 1683. Upon the same vessel was Thomas Lloyd, first Deputy Governor of Pennsylvania, who was, long as he lived, a friend of Pastorius. He married, on November 26, 1688, Ennecke Klostermann, daughter of Dr. Johann Klostermann, born at Mulheim December 15, 1658, and died at Germantown March 9, 1735.

Mr. Pastorius was the representative and a member of the Frankfurt Company. The charter of Germantown, which he had founded, was granted in London August 12, 1680. In the instrument he was made Bailiff and Judge. He served in the Assembly 1687-1691; was appointed Judge August 19, 1684, and May 6, 1693. Mo died December 27, 1719, in Germantown. His will, written by himself, was proven January 13, 1720.

John Samuel Pastorius, son of Francis Daniel Pastorius and father of (114) Daniel, was born in Germantown March 31, 1690 ("the 31st day of the 1st month, called March"), and died there on the "29th day of 2d month, April, 1722." He married Hannah, youngest daughter of Jan Luken, 15th day of 6th month (August), 1716. Both were buried in the Friends' ground at Germantown.

LAMECH RAMBO.

LAMECH RAMBO was born August 6, 1821, in the Owl Creek Valley, near to Levering, Knox County, Ohio. He is of substantial Pennsylvania stock, descended from one of the first Swedish settlers on the Delaware River below Philadelphia. His father, William Rambo, of Montgomery County, Pa., married Grace, daughter of Daniel Levering, in Bedford County, Pa., on February 9, 1813, upon the eve of the family emigration to Ohio, where they arrived in April, 1813.

Daniel Levering purchased a large area of land, one quarter section of which (n. w. $\frac{1}{4}$, 4, 18, 19) he appropriated to the use of his daughter Grace, and upon this tract, eight years later, Lamech was born.

Imbued with industrious and enterprising tendencies, which he inherited from both parents, he, in June, 1836, when but 14 years old, entered a wool-carding and cloth-dressing establishment at Fredericktown, Ohio, to learn the trade. By application he accomplished this when 19 years of age, and at once commenced manufacturing on his own account, renting a factory three miles south from Fredericktown. His success there encouraged him to larger enterprise. He rented a similar factory on Rocky Fork, in Licking County, Ohio, where, in 1845, the increase of business required an addition made to the building, wherein he manufactured various cloths, such as were worn by farmers and others, and he prospered well. But "The best laid schemes o' mice and men Gang aft agley,"

As, on the 8th of January, 1848, everything in his building went up in smoke. Being his own insurer, the loss fell heavily. As strength and energy were incombustible, these were left to him. He so invested them that in June of the same year he was running a one-set woolen mill at Newark, Ohio, contracting debt to secure it (1851). In 1851 he sold out at Newark and established the Dresden Woollen Mill, at Dresden, Ohio, which is still (1892) in operation, in the name of L. Rambo & Co., with a reputation for goods of superior quality.

Like many others, his prosperity beguiled him into investments outside the line of his education and watchcare, and resulting from this his ledger shows on the wrong side of profit and loss, viz.: In 1874, a wheel factory burned, $4,500; in 1884, a large flouring mill burned, $50,000; in 1887, a woolen mill at Findlay, Ohio, burned, $8,000, and a large farm dwelling house was added to the holocaust.

Having been a subscriber and reader of the New York "Tribune" for forty-seven years, we may judge the trend of Mr. Rambo's political idiosyncracies. In 1875 he was nominated by the Republican party for State Representative, and was the only one on his ticket elected. Even now, with his three-score and ten expanded, the same energy serves him well, being extensively engaged in wool-buying and shipping.

P. S.—Mr. Rambo died on July 31, 1896, at Dresden, Ohio, in which town he was Mayor. A published obituary states:

"Out of respect to the dead Mayor and honored citizen, every business house was closed from 2 to 4, and flags hung at half-mast. The town officials attended the funeral in a body," etc.

GEORGE WASHINGTON RIGGS was the oldest son of Elisha Riggs, a prominent and successful merchant at Georgetown, D. C., where the subject of this sketch was born on July 4, 1813. He was educated at Round Hill School, Northampton, Mass., and at Yale College, where he was graduated in the class of 1833.

Marrying Janet Shedden in 1840, he formed in that year a partnership with William Wilson Corcoran, of Washington, D. C., under the firm name of Corcoran & Riggs, in the banking business, Elisha Riggs furnishing capital. The house, from its establishment in Washington, took a creditable position in the financial world, acting an especially conspicuous part in the placing of the Mexican War loans of the United States Government. Mr. Riggs retired from the firm in June, 1848, his place being taken by his half-brother, Elisha Riggs, the firm name continuing unchanged.

Elisha Riggs, Sr., died in 1853, in New York City, where he resided after his second marriage.

In 1854 W. W. Corcoran and Elisha Riggs, Jr., retired from the firm which bore their family names, and George W. Riggs re entered the bank as their successor, and the present existing house of Riggs & Co. was established.

For the remaining twenty-seven years of his life Mr. Riggs filled an important and influential position in the banking business, as well as in the community of which he was a conspicuous and respected member. Devoting himself to his profession with an industry rarely equaled, he took an active part in many public movements as well as in private enterprises. Naturally retiring and modest in disposition, his judgment was prompt and his conclusions just. A student and a man of excellent education, the soul of honor and of every honorable impulse, he surrounded his life with refined and gentle elements.

Mr. Riggs was a trustee of the Peabody Education Fund, director in several corporations in the District of Columbia, Treasurer, from its beginning, of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association as well as of many other organizations. No private citizen of Washington was more widely known or more highly appreciated. His excellent wife died in London in 1871.

Mr. Riggs died at his country seat, Greenhill, Md., near to Washington, on August 24, 1881, after a brief illness. An Episcopalian by inheritance and education, he died a Roman Catholic, the faith of his wife and children.

JOSEPH SATER is a native resident of Hamilton County, Ohio. He was born in Crosby Township November 20, 1824. His earlier years were spent upon a farm, the while attending district school for a few weeks in each year until the winter of 1845-6, when he became a student at Cary's Academy at College Hill, near to Cincinnati, where he held the head of his classes. After his academic term he returned to the farm. He married Miss Eliza Ann Hedges in March, 1849, when they located upon a farm near to Preston, in the same county, which they have occupied ever since, engaged in the pursuit of a successful farmer, his labor diversified by contributing his full share of public service as demanded by his fellow-citizens.

He was elected Township Treasurer for seventeen years, and served as a member of the local School Board continuously for thirty years.

In 1869-70 he was elected Assessor of Real Estate, and served the term; in 1871 was elected a Commissioner for Hamilton County, on the Democratic ticket, and had a majority of 2,000 votes, notwithstanding the Republican party elected all other candidates to county offices. In 1874, not being nominated by his party, Mr. Sater ran as an independent candidate for re-election, and was chosen by 600 majority over the regular nominees, his first term having testified to his capacity for the office and rendered him popular with the public. During his service he was instrumental in correcting numerous abuses and irregularities, as well in preventing the payment of illegal claims and otherwise saving public funds.

At the close of his second term as County Commissioner, November, 1877, a complimentary dinner at the St. Nicholas in Cincinnati was tendered to "Honest Joe," as his friends were wont to call him, at which many State and county officials were present, presided over by Governor R. M. Bishop, who in his remarks said:

"I feel complimented in being called on to preside on the present occasion, which is intended by the friends of Mr. Sater as a compliment to a man who has filled a position for the past six years not only with credit to himself, but with credit to the county which he has had the honor to represent."

Upon the same occasion the County Solicitor expressed the opinion that Mr. Sater had saved the county of Hamilton one hundred thousand dollars per year, to the great disgust of certain contractors. Similar remarks were made by other prominent personages present.

In 1881, and again in 1886, Mr. Sater was appointed a Jury Commissioner by the Hamilton County Court, and he was selected to make examination of the proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners and of other county officers for the three years previous, and in 1884 was made foreman of a special Grand Jury called to investigate the cause of the destruction of the Court House by fire.

Mr. Sater was also assignee under the bankrupt law, and filled other fiduciary positions, as in the settlement of many decedents' estates.

The subsidence of political ambition gave room to consider the latter end, and the waning of the year 1889 found Mr. Sater a candidate for membership in the United Brethren Church, in which he made his election sure, and in which his energy is made manifest both in spiritual and secular matters. For many years he had been a liberal contributor to religious, educational and benevolent enterprises.

DR. EDGAR LEVERING SHACKLETON was born near Wapakoneta, Ohio, on the 22d of April, 1839, and died at Auburn, California, the 22d of January, 1882.

The terms usually applied in condolment at the loss of a friend seem insufficient to express the feelings of the community at the loss of Dr. Shackleton. It was truthfully said of him that he was not only everybody's friend, but everybody loved and admired him. He was possessed of a keen and commanding intelligence, yet never did he vaingloriously display his attainments. He was public-spirited and found pleasure in that which tended to elevate humanity. He was noted for his affability, and politeness with him was a marked characteristic. It was these traits that won for him the esteem in which he was held. The traits and success of the man become the more remarkable when we contrast them with the limited opportunities for education he enjoyed when a boy, which were limited to a three-months' winter school in the then wilderness of Northwestern Ohio. He studied medicine and graduated with honor at the Medical College of Ohio; practiced his profession at St. Mary's, Ohio, until 1875, when he went to Auburn, California, for the benefit of his health. Here he pursued his profession and enjoyed a lucrative practice until September, 1880, when he relinquished labor because of impaired health, and sixteen months later he succumbed to that agency which sooner or later obtains the mastery over all. He bore his sufferings like a martyr and awaited the inevitable result with that calm unconcern which is known only to those who have confidence in the wisdom and goodness of the Allwise Father.

Dr. Shackleton was a member in good standing of the fraternities of Masons, Odd Fellows and Workmen, all of which orders were represented in the large force at his funeral. The whole town nearly and many from a distance shared the obsequies. All mourned the loss of so good a man and sympathized with his family.

ROBERT SHOEMAKER.

[From the Philadelphia "Public Ledger" of December 18, 1860.]

AFTER an illness of five weeks, Robert Shoemaker, the well-known druggist, died yesterday at his home, 1736 Green Street, of ailments which resulted in congestion of the lungs. He was born February 1, 1817, at Shoemakertown, Montgomery County, Pa., his father, Richard M. Shoemaker, being a prosperous farmer of that vicinity, and in which the Shoemaker family settled when they immigrated from Germany in 1686. In the autumn of 1832 Robert was apprenticed to William Scattergood, of Philadelphia, to learn the drug business. He matriculated and attended the courses of lectures at the College of Pharmacy during the years 1835-36.

So apt was the young man at the drug business that in 1837, when but 20 years old, he purchased the store of Mr. Scattergood, located at Second and Green streets, and embarked in business for himself, continuing at that stand for thirty years.

In 1852 Mr. Shoemaker took into partnership his brother, Benjamin H. Shoemaker. In January, 1856, they removed to their present location at the northeast corner of Fourth and Race streets, and branched out into the wholesale drug business, and handled not only drugs, but paints and window glass.

In 1866 they divided the extensive storerooms and the business, Mr. Benjamin H. Shoemaker conducting the plate and window-glass business, the drug and paint business being continued by Robert, who associated with him his sons, William M. and Richard M. Twelve years ago William M. withdrew from the firm, which at present is composed of the father and sons, Richard M., Thomas Fair and Benjamin H., Jr.

Robert Shoemaker, at the time of his death, was perhaps the oldest druggist in Philadelphia, with one exception. He became a member of the Board of Trustees of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, March 27, 1843, and on March 20, 1860, was elected Vice-President, which office he held at the time of his death.

In 1894 the college conferred upon him the title of Master of Pharmacy.

On January 22, 1861, Mr. Shoemaker signed the call for the meeting to form the Philadelphia Drug Exchange. He was Vice-President of the Exchange in 1866, and was President from 1867 to 1870. In 1891 he was made an honorary member. He was one of the incorporators of the Consolidation National Bank, and was a director of that institution at the time of his decease.

Mr. Shoemaker was a member of the Fire Insurance Association of Philadelphia, the Delaware Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and was President of the Druggists' Fire Insurance Company.

He always took an interest in common school education, and gave fifteen years of active service as Director in the Cheltenham School District, in Montgomery County, the public school at Shoemakerstown being named after him. He lived at Cheltenham Hills, Montgomery County, more than thirty years prior to 1891, when he moved to his late residence. He was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church at Cheltenham Hills, being for the past thirty-two years Accounting Warden and Treasurer. He was interred in the cemetery adjoining this church.

It is eminently worthy of record in this connection that Mr. Shoemaker was one of the trustees appointed for the settlement of the affairs of the popular banker, Jay Cooke, in 1873. He was engaged constantly in this work for ten years before all lands and securities could be disposed of without sacrifice. The estate aggregated about fifteen million dollars, and the adjustments were made mainly upon the advice and direction of the subject of this sketch.

The resolutions relating to the death of Mr. Shoemaker, as copied in the records of various insurance companies, banks and mercantile organizations, will be reminders in future years of his general usefulness while in relation to them.

HON. THOMAS GUILFORD SMITH.

THOMAS GUILFORD SMITH was born in Philadelphia, Pa., August 27, 1839. He was educated primarily in the private and public schools of his native city, graduating from the Central High School with degree of B. A. with salutatory address, in 1858. He subsequently entered the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., and was graduated with the degree of Civil Engineer in the class of 1861, and two years later the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him by the Central High School of Philadelphia. At this time he was employed in the Engineering Department of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, as Resident Engineer of the Company in the Mahanoy district of the Anthracite coal fields, which he resigned in 1865, and was employed as manager of the Philadelphia Sugar Refinery until in 1869.

In 1870-71 he was Consulting Engineer to various railroads and mineral enterprises in the South and West, and the following year he spent in England and on the Continent of Europe, in connection with railroad enterprises, and as a delegate to the International Prison Congress of London. After his return—from 1873 to 1878—he was Secretary of the Union Iron Works at Buffalo, N. Y. From that year to 1883 he was Western Sales Agent of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company.

In 1883 he became associated with Mr. Albright—as Albright & Smith—as Sales Agents of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Co. for New York State and Canada, and continued this business for six years, since which time he has represented the well-known Carnegie Steel Company, as their Sales Agent, and is Vice-President of the New York Car Wheel Works.

Mr. Smith's scientific and mechanical education has received merited recognition from the principal organizations of the country. Early as 1866 he was elected a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, and, in 1871, was elected to membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers, also of the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

In 1890 he was elected, and is still, Regent of the University of the State of New York, and Chairman of the Museum Committee of the Board of Regents.

A continuous membership in the Union League of Philadelphia from 1866 indicates a degree of loyalty which betokens good-citizenship, and his relation among the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, to represent Colonel Christopher Meng, Asst. Deputy Quartermaster-General of the U. S. Army of Continental times, shows his predilections well founded.

Mr. Smith is connected with various other literary and scientific societies. He resides in the city of Buffalo, New York.

SURGEON-GENERAL G. M. STERNBERG.

(545 of G.)

[From "Appleton's Cyclopaedia of Biography" and Other Sources.]

DR. GEORGE MILLER STERNBERG, son of Rev. Levi (D. D.) and Margaret Levering (Miller) Sternberg, was born June 8, 1838, at Hartwick Seminary, Otsego County, New York, and educated there. Commenced the study of medicine in 1857, at Cooperstown, N. Y., under Dr. Horace Lathrop, and after regular course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the city of New York, was graduated in the class of 1860.

Dr. S. was appointed Assistant Surgeon in the U. S. Army May 28, 1861; was assigned to duty first, with Gen. George Sykes' command, in the Army of the Potomac; then, after four months of hospital duty in Rhode Island, joined General Banks' expedition to New Orleans, and served in the office of the Medical Director of the Department of the Gulf until January, 1864. Later he did hospital duty in Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, until April, 1866, after which he was stationed at various Government posts. December 1, 1875, became Surgeon, with the rank of Major. Subsequently, while on duty in Baltimore, he followed experimental researches in bacteriology at Johns Hopkins University, as "fellow by courtesy." In 1879 he went to Havana as a member of the Yellow Fever Commission, sent by the National Board of Health, and in 1885 was a delegate to the International Sanitary Conference at Rome, Italy.

On May 30, 1893, Dr. S. was promoted to the position of Surgeon-General of the United States Army, with the rank of Brigadier General. He is an honorary member of the Royal Academies of Medicine at Rome, Rio de Janeiro and Havana, and a Fellow of the Royal Microscopical Society of London, besides being a member of medical and scientific societies at home and abroad.

In 1887 Dr. S. was the President of the American Public Health Association. He is the author of several medical and scientific works of recognized value, as well, of many articles contributed to scientific journals. In a volume entitled "Physicians and Surgeons of America" are listed the numerous scientific productions from his pen.

Dr. Sternberg's military service continued after the War of the Rebellion. The War Department bestowed brevet commissions "for faithful and meritorious services during the war"; that of Lieutenant Colonel "for gallant service in performance of his professional duty under fire in action against Indians at Clearwater, Idaho, July 12, 1877."

Recognizing his literary and scientific attainments, the degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by the university of Michigan in 1894, and by Brown University in 1896.

His lineage may be learned from the genealogical part of this volume.

At the annual session of the American Medical Association, held at Philadelphia on June 4, 1897, Dr. Sternberg was elected President of the organization.

MACDOWEL (name on reaching maturity changed to George Macdowel), the second son of Daniel and Eliza Shoemaker Stroud, was born at Stroudsburg, Pa., October 12, 1795. As a boy he was strong, active and affectionate. He lost his mother when he was but fourteen years old. Having received the rudiments of his education at the place of his birth, he entered Princeton College, where he graduated in the class of 1817, with distinguished honor, being valedictorian of his class. He studied law in Philadelphia under Judge Hallowell, and was admitted to practice in June, 1819. He married Eleanor, daughter of Judge Hallowell, August 7, 1828.

Beside attending to his legal business, he prepared and published several editions of the Digests of the Laws of Pennsylvania, with copious notes of the judicial decisions relating to them. He also published a work upon slavery, a condensed, clear and systematic analysis of the laws of all the States in the Union, with judicial decisions from the adoption of the Constitution to the time of its printing from the press. Mrs. Stowe refers to this work as the source of her legal knowledge on the subject, when writing Uncle Tom's Cabin.

In 1835 Mr. Stroud was appointed by Governor Wolf, Judge of the District Court of Philadelphia, for a term of ten years. After the expiration of this term he resumed practice at the bar, in which he continued about three years, when he was reappointed by Governor Shunk. In December, 1851 (the Constitution having been amended, making the office elective), he was chosen to the position he had formerly filled, and was successively elected at each recurring period, until in 1871, when, in view of approaching age, he declined renomination, having filled the position for thirty-three years.

Judge Stroud was brought up in the Society of Friends, but in mature years he united with the Protestant Episcopal Church, in which he continued during his long life. He was for many years Rector's Warden, and was elected Delegate to the Diocesan and General Conventions a number of times. Shortly before his retirement from the bench, he removed with his family to Germantown, where he spent his time with his family, his friends, and his books. About the middle of May, 1875, he had an attack of apoplexy. His strength gradually declined, and with a peaceful trust in the promises of God, he very quietly departed on June 29th of the same year, in the 80th year of his age.

Judge Stroud was strong in his affections, sound in his judgment, social in his nature, had a keen sense of humor, and was an inimitable story teller.

JAMES H. STROUD.

[From public press of Stroudsburch, Pa.]

JAMES HOLLINSHEAD STROUD died at his residence in this place on Thursday afternoon, in his 75th year. He had been feeble during the last year.

Mr. Stroud was one of the landmarks, so to speak, of this Borough. He was of the third generation of the original Stroud family of this town. His grandfather, Colonel Jacob Stroud, was born in Amwell Township, Hunterdon County, N. J., on January 15, 1735, and came to this place in about 1757, and soon after married a Miss Macdowel, whose parents then resided in Cherry Valley, this county. He was a first settler, and purchased about 4,000 acres of land in this vicinity, including the area embraced within the limits of this Borough. He took an active part in the Revolutionary War, and commanded at Fort Penn, which was located near the center of this town. The Colonel was a member of the State Legislature, and also a member of the convention which formed the first Constitution of our State. He was a man of much force and of more than ordinary capacity, which characteristics have been inherited by his posterity. At the time of his death, which occurred July 14, 1806, but five dwelling houses had been erected in this place. After this his son Daniel, the father of the subject of this sketch, widened Main street, sold off lots, and in his deeds of session required the houses to be built back a certain distance from the street line. From that time the town began gradually to improve.

James H. Stroud was, more or less, identified with almost every public enterprise or movement in which this town has been interested in the last sixty years. He held for six years the office of Prothonotary, also various offices in the Borough, such as School Director, Town Council, etc., and was for a long number of years a reliable and popular Justice of the Peace. He was guardian, executor and arbitrator in a large number of cases. The public confidence reposed in him was almost unbounded. On the organization of the Stroulsburg Bank, in 1857, he was chosen the cashier, which position he held until 1867.

He, after an interval of several years, engaged in the mercantile business with C. R. Andre, of this place, but after a short period sold out his interest and retired from the firm. About this time his failing health became so pronounced that he was almost constantly confined to his house and bed, until death came and kindly set his spirit free, after he had exceeded by more than seven years the allotted three score and ten.

Mr. Stroud never married, and but two of the large family bearing the name remain in this town. He died April 18, 1877. His remains were interred with his kindred in the old burying ground at the lower end of town.

GEORGE MIFFLIN WHARTON.

(2479)

[From the Public Press.]

BORN December 26, 1806. Died February 5, 1870. Graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1823; elected trustee 1841.

It is with profound regret that we record the death, on the 5th inst., of George Mifflin Wharton, Esq., one of our ablest lawyers and most distinguished citizens. In the decease of this gentleman the Philadelphia bar has lost one of its acknowledged leaders and the community one of its best and most useful members. Mr. Wharton has held a conspicuous position in the public eye for many years, and his character was fully appreciated and held in the highest esteem by his fellow-citizens.

As a lawyer he stood deservedly in the front ranks of the profession. He brought to the examination of the most difficult questions a mind singularly clear and well balanced, a judgment eminently sound and practical, and an abundant store of legal learning. In the convention of the forum he displayed faculties of logical and persuasive argument of the highest order. The current of his discourse was always calm, clear and deep. He adorned the profession not less by the high tone and spotless integrity of his character and the amenity of his deportment than by his talents and acquirements, and his loss will be deeply deplored by his professional brethren, who looked up to him as a model of excellence.

Mr. Wharton's labors were not confined to the arduous duties of his professions. He participated largely in matters affecting the public welfare, and took an active and leading part in the questions of the day. The cause of public education interested his earnest sympathy and support at an early period of his career.

He took a deep interest in public schools, and was for many years one of the most active and useful members of the Board of Directors, and for some time was President of the Board on Control.

After the disruption of the old-time Whig party, his judgment upon national issues induced him to attach himself to the Democratic party, to which he adhered to the time of his death.

He served his fellow-citizens for several years as a member of the Select Council and President of that body, and held the post of District Attorney of the United States for this district during a part of the administration of Mr. Buchanan.

In private life Mr. Wharton was distinguished by sterling integrity and an amiability which endeared him to all who knew him. He was a man of eminent virtue, and what is still better, a devout and unostentatious Christian. His judicious counsel will be missed in that branch of the Church, to which he was devotedly attached and in whose affairs, as a leading member for many years of her diocesan convention, he took an active interest. It is impossible in this notice to do justice to the character and services of Mr. Wharton. They require a larger space than we are able to give on this occasion, but we can not let it pass without paying this faint and very imperfect tribute to his memory.

DR. JOSEPH P. WIDNEY was born in Miami County, Ohio, December 26, 1841. His ancestry was of mixed Scotch-Irish, English, Huguenot and Danish blood. Family name Danish. Direct descent from Colonel Widney, who commanded a regiment in the army of William, Prince of Orange, against King James, for which service he received a freehold in Ireland from King William.

The family, upon removal to America, settled in Franklin County, Pa., in early days. Afterward this branch removed in 1811, to Ohio. He received the early portion of his collegiate course at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, but health failing, he removed to California with the family, receiving the degree of A. M. from the University of the Pacific, and M. D. from the medical department of the University of California; afterward receiving the degree of LL. D. from Miami University.

He bore arms in the Union army from Ohio, and, after graduation in medicine, was a surgeon in the army for several years in the Indian wars of Arizona. He settled in Los Angeles, Cal.—his present residence—in the practice of medicine in 1868, continuing in active practice for more than twenty years, and accumulating a competency. He was a member of the State Board of Health; President of the City Board of Education; founder and editor of the Southern California Practitioner; one of the founders of the University of Southern California; founder and for ten years Dean of the College of Medicine, holding professorships of Theory and Practice of Medicine, and for several years the chair of English Literature (elective course) in the College of Liberal Arts, and the chair of English Bible in the College of Theology. He was for four years President of the University of Southern California.

He has published numerous scientific and literary papers in the current journals and magazines.

Resigning from the presidency of the University, he, together with his wife—nee Mary Bray—entered upon a mission work among the poor of the city, which they had been planning for many years—establishing in connection with Rev. P. F. Blesse, D. D., the Church of the Nazarene, a primitive, apostolic, independent church, in which himself and Dr. Bresee are joint pastors. This work has been attended with a marked success from the beginning, a membership of over four hundred and fifty having been received within the first sixteen months, while the attendance fills a large tabernacle. It has been an almost continuous revival.

[Condensed from "Cathcart's Baptist Encyclopedia".]

ROBERT F. YOUNG, son of Thomas S. and Elizabeth (Rambo) Young, was born at Coatesville, Chester County, Pa., September 4, 1810, and descended from Ninian Young, who settled in East Fallowfield Township, Chester County, about 1754. Robert F.'s ancestors were mostly Presbyterians, but in 1774 his grandfather, Robert Young, a Presbyterian elder, married Martha (sister of Deacon Thomas) Shields, of the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia, and to this graft of Baptist stock is probably due the fact that later the family were largely baptistic in religious profession.

Mr. Young was baptized at Hephzibah Church in 1824, and licensed to preach by the Bethesda Baptist Church in 1831. He studied at Hamilton, New York, at what is now Colgate University. His first pastorate was at Milestown (now Oak Lane), Philadelphia, which church he organized. On January 1, 1835, he became pastor of the Chestnut Hill (Philadelphia) Baptist Church, which had developed from his labors there, as an out-station, while settled at Milestown. For four years he alternated with Rev. Horatio Gates Jones, D. D., in supplying the church at Balligomingo, in Montgomery County, Pa., on Sabbath afternoons. Subsequently, as a result of his work at the "school house," at Cold Point, Montgomery County, on Sunday afternoons, the Baptist Church at Plymouth was organized; he, building by subscriptions, obtained its first meeting house. In April, 1838, he baptized the first seven persons at the Falls of Schuylkill, the germ of the present church there.

On October 1, 1849, Mr. Young removed to the First Baptist Church at Salem, New Jersey, where he passed a successful pastorate of five years. Among other results of his ministry at Salem was the suggestion by him and the establishing of a school of higher grade by the Baptists, which is now well known as the flourishing South Jersey Institute at Bridgeton.

In 1854 he returned to Chestnut Hill as pastor, remaining another five years, and rebuilding their house of worship as it now stands. In March, 1859, while still at the "Hill," he organized the Cumberland Street (now Frankfort Avenue) Baptist Church.

On the first Sabbath in January, 1862, he assumed charge of the Haddonfield Baptist Church, New Jersey, where he remained until his death, on the eve of his twenty-second anniversary as pastor there, January 5, 1884. He was buried in the Haddonfield church yard.

A consecrated follower of Christ, from the time of his conversion in boyhood, he was a most vigilant watchman on Zion's walls; an earnest preacher, with a pleasantly modulated voice, and a successful winner of souls, he having baptized about a thousand converts.

I well remember Robert F. Young, since my boyhood, when he was a welcomed visitor at our home.

COL. T. ELLWOOD ZELL.

TRACES his lineage upon his father's side to Johannes Zellus, or Zell, who took part in the first Crusade and was knighted at Jerusalem in 1099, by Godfrey of Bouillon, King of Jerusalem. Upon his mother's side, from David Ogden, who came with Penn, upon the ship Welcome, to Pennsylvania. The first will on record in Philadelphia, is said to bear his name as a witness.

In 1561, Johann Heinrich Zell, a grandson of John Ernst, duke of Zell, founded the City of Zell, in Baden, and established the Porcelain Works, which have become famous, and are, or were, recently, still in operation. He had four sons. The second, Johann Heinrich, followed William Penn to America, in 1684, became a Quaker, and the progenitor of the Zell family, in this country.

The subject of this sketch has been well known in educational and literary circles for many years past, as the publisher and editor of many important works, prominent among these is Zell's popular Encyclopedia, 5 vols. folio, of which he was co-editor. His United States Business Directory is the most extensive and costly publication of its kind ever gotten out in this country.

Born in 1828, in Philadelphia, of strict Quaker parents, he was brought up as a Friend, hence the title he earned in war times as Colonel, appears anomalous. Upon the breaking out of the late Rebellion, inspired by a love of country, he entered the military service as Captain in the 121st Regt. Penna. Vols.; he subsequently raised, at his own expense, a battalion, which he commanded in the field. At the expiration of his term of service, he was tendered by the Secretary of War, the command of a regiment of infantry, which he declined; the war being nearly over, he resumed his business as publisher.

Upon the assassination of President Lincoln, Colonel Zell was chiefly instrumental in forming and organizing the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, of which he was the first acting commander. This order now numbers about 10,000; composed of the commissioned officers of the Army and Navy, an honorable and enduring monument of his patriotic endeavors.

Col. Zell still retains his membership with Friends. He is not in any business, having retired, and passes his winters at his southern home, at Zellwood, Florida, and his summers at his home in Germantown, Philadelphia. The title deeds to his land tracing back to the original Levering settlement in Germantown, in August, 1685.

OUR STORY.

[Dedicated to the Levering Reunion.]

BY MANDA LEVERING CROCKER.

Of all the stories told to you and me,
Tales of the land, or tales of the sea,
There are none, I ween, on which I dwell
So fondly as those our own may tell.

Tho' the sweetest songs are still unsung,
And clearest notes remain unrun,
And grandest stories are yet untold,
And undiscovered the brightest gold.

It may be, in waking my muse to-day,
I may touch a chord to sound away—
Somewhere, somehow, a thought may come
To fold white wings in a warm heart-home.

Then a story, our own in rhyme to be,
Its scarlet chapter from over the sea,
Its golden pages this side the foam,
Rung on the key-note "Home Sweet Home."

When victories are won, and laurels prest
 On the victor's brow and jewelled breast,
 The world at once measures his fame,
 And anxiously seeks the ancestor's name.

And, if forefathers ever came to the fore,
 It is when a descendant makes a score,
 Or when, perchance, some awful wrong
 Crops out where better ought to belong.

Then the world wags its head: 'tis understood.
 His fathers were so: 'twas in the blood.
 And the world is right, we presume: very well—
 Now give us the story our blood tells.

Hark! the opening chapter from over the sea
 Triumphantly comes to you and to me:
 Our life-current, pulsing sweetly to-day,
 Has much that is noble and true to say.

Columbia has heard the pean of praise
 Sung for the heroes in darker days,
 When those to whom, by blood, we belong
 Had the psalms of David for battle songs.

For Right and Reform they, tireless, strove,
 Upheld by Him whose name is Love.
 At Carras, before their enemy's tent,
 Down on their knees these Huguenots went.

The enemy shouted, "They surrender! aha!"
 The leader knew better. A moment in awe
 He stood: then said, "You'll fight hard to-day";
 Behold these Huguenots kneeling to pray."

Those were the days when the lilies of France
 Were crimsoned by blood and torn by the lance:
 Where the brave Coligny fought long and well
 Until on the mad mob's sword he fell.

Then it was that the sixty-eighth psalm
 Went up to the ear of the great I am:
 "Let God Arise!" Sacred, grand old song!
 The battle-cry of the Huguenot throng.

Yes! Our blood, throbbing thro' decades of years,
 Scarcely ever a-weary, undaunted by fears,
 Tells of a vigorous, proud old name,
 Wreathed in the glory of martyrdom's flame.

And we, to-day, breathe Columbian air,
 Secure and happy in homes so fair:
 Blest with freedom because o'er the tide
 Of the mighty old ocean, the Levering pride.

And honor, and love of liberty came ;
 Establishing here the grand old name.
 Aye ! The very ground on which you stand
 Was sealed by the touch of a Levering's hand.

This side the water, they too, were the same
 Defenders of right ; winning the name
 Of God-fearing, home-loving people ; and so
 Rocked Liberty's cradle in th' long ago.

To-day, with reverence, we name the men
 Who honored the name of Levering then :
 Jonathan, Jacob and John, noble ones,
 Are counted in with Liberty's sons.

And when our proud flag, in sixty-one,
 Was menaced, insulted, and war begun,
 The first volunteer to say "here I am,"
 And give his all to protect Uncle Sam

Was a Levering too ; Andrew his name
 And from St. Paul, Minnesota, he came.
 Yes, blood tells ; from this we can see
 Our name is ever along with the free.

When Owl-Creek Valley was densely wild
 And echoed the shout of the red man's child,
 When the block-house, strong, for refuge stood,
 Came a trio, a Levering brotherhood.

To roll back the forest with sturdy hand,
 To till and to toil for the wealth of the land,
 To bear the hardships of pioneer life,
 To build a home for child and wife.

And now, broad acres of well-tilled land
 Lie, worthy the brush of an Angel's hand ;
 Thus you will find, from sea to sea
 Our name in the lists of industry.

Then, born to be jolly, we're second to none
 For a good gala time, under the sun ;
 We're lovers of art, of song, and of lore,
 And love one another. Can you ask more?

And, no matter which side of the water his birth,
 A Levering's a Levering all over the earth ;
 And nothing so sure, in this world of woes
 As this : What a Levering knows, he knows.

But, worthy and staunch, the grand old name
 We bear ! Do nothing to tarnish its fame,
 Or wound or blemish the family tree
 So nobly cherished for you and me.

LEVERING FAMILY REUNION.

BY MRS. KATE LEVERING BRADSHAW, OF PHILADELPHIA.

How pleasant 'tis to gather here
In these green, shady bowers,
Beneath the blue of summer skies,
'Mong summer's fairest flowers.
Here let each care forgotten be Upon this happy day;
Let kind affection rule the hours,
And Mirth assert her sway.

The charms of this dear woodland scene
'Tis joy to rove among;
Charms, pictured by no artist hand—
By no rapt poet sung;
Yet never meets the traveler's eye,
In wanderings far and wide,
A sweeter, fairer spot than this—
The peaceful valley's pride.

Here stately trees that grace the grove
Invite the balmy breeze,
And 'mong these boughs the wild birds sing
Their sweetest melodies,
That mingle with the murmurs soft
Of water flowing near.
Such pleasant sounds as these, of yore
Our fathers loved to hear.

Our fathers—they who reared their homes
This valley stream beside,
Who by its winding silver wave
Their ceaseless labor plied:
Our fathers, hardy pioneers,
Those men of valor true,
Who were imbued with faith and zeal,
Whose souls no baseness knew.

Our fathers faced with dauntless hearts
The forests unsubdued,
And in their sturdy strength hewed down
The giants of the wood;
And they the hamlet planted 'mid
The trackless wilderness.
These were the victories of men
Who labored but to bless.

O, richer far, with fertile lands,
 They were than wealthiest kings.
 And never toil forsook to dream
 Of pleasures affluence brings.
 Grandeur and ease their souls disdained ;
 They trod life's common ways,
 And from the world for good achieved
 Claimed never meed of praise.

Sure were they of a blest reward
 Above for duty done,
 And, like their fathers, never wore
 Honors they had not won.
 Those souls that sought, while journeying here,
 For treasures of the sky,
 No Heavenward-pointing column need
 To tell their home's on high.

Their noble deeds were ne'er enrolled
 In songs of high renown,
 And for their brows was never wreathed
 The victor's laurel crown :
 But ah! their names are written fair
 In the bright Book of Life—
 For they, like Enoch, "Walked with God"
 Amid life's sin and strife.

Our noble-hearted fathers lived
 In "days of deeds sublime,"
 And may the lustre of their worth
 Still brighter grow with time!
 Brave, true, good men were they, and though
 The world ne'er called them great,
 We'll honor and revere their names—
 Their virtues imitate.

Then call it hallowed ground where first
 This vale the settlers trod
 And breathed in peaceful sylvan shades
 Their grateful prayers to God ;
 And O, let none but reverent steps
 Their place of slumber tread.
 Where, after toiling long, they rest,
 Among the sacred dead.

O, Thou who didst our fathers guide
 Through all their pilgrim way,
 Be with Thy children gather'd here
 Upon this festal day.
 A family supremely blest,
 Our fathers' God, we raise
 To Thee hearts filled with gratitude—
 Souls filled with love and praise.

LEVERING HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION.

THE organization of the CLAN LEVERING had its inception at a social assembly, held at the residence of Hon. John C. Levering, near to Levering, in Knox County, Ohio, on the evening of the 11th of September, 1890, being the date and the occasion of the sixty-first birthday of the host.

While the holding of a family reunion had been discussed upon other occasions, the enthusiasm of this event encouraged the initial step which developed into an association for the purpose of learning family history and inciting family converse and sociality.

When called to order, Charles B. Levering, of Chesterville, Ohio, was made chairman, and Clayton F. Graham (a relative), Secretary, of the assembly. A committee on correspondence was appointed, to confer with and learn the wishes of absent members of the family, and October 25th, prox., was determined as date for an adjourned meeting, to be held at the same place.

At this second meeting much interest was manifest, time and place for a family reunion were fixed (Aug. 6, 1891, in Brown's Grove, near to Levering, O.); a committee on program and invitation was created, and officers elected, viz. :

President.....CHARLES B. LEVERING, of Chesterville, O.
Vice-Prest.....DAVID LEVERING, of Woodview, O.
Rec. Secretary....CLAYTON F. GRAHAM, of Knox Co., O.
Cor. Secretary...HON. JOHN C. LEVERING, of Levering, O.
Treasurer.....SHANNON LEVERING, of Levering, O.

Executive Committee—Hon. John C. Levering, Chairman, Charles B. Levering, Mrs. Sattin Levering, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Cook, John B. Levering, Mrs. Carrie Levering, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Brown, Hon. Allen Levering, Mrs. Lydia Levering, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Cook, Simpson Levering, Mrs. Mary Levering, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Graham, Riley Levering, Mrs. J. B. Levering, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, Edward Levering, Mrs. Zetta Levering, and Mrs. Elmira Brewer.

All being of the family relation.

Adjournment to November 22d, prox., was taken, at which meeting a program and a circular letter of invitation were submitted and approved.

Several subsequent meetings were held ; the labor of preparation for the contemplated reunion was imposed upon various committees, all of which performed well their allotted parts, as evidenced by an account of the Reunion, as published in a local newspaper, as follows :

THE LEVERING FAMILY REUNION AND PIC-NIC.

Thousands Gather to Do Honor to the Occasion.

[From "The Banner," Mt. Vernon, O., August 13, 1891.]

OVER two hundred years ago two brothers, named Wigard and Gerhard Levering, left their mother country and settled in America, at Philadelphia, Pa. They came of a sturdy and prolific race and to-day several thousand of their descendants are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land, and the name is honored and respected wherever it is found.

On Thursday last, 6th inst., a reunion and basket pic-nic of surviving members of the Levering family was held in E. W. Brown's grove (a relation by marriage in the family), on the banks of Owl Creek, in Middlebury Township, Knox County, just east of Levering, Ohio, and on lands entered and formerly owned by Daniel Levering, deceased, and still owned by his descendants.

The day was one of the most bright and beautiful of the summer season, and preparations on a grand and elaborate scale had been made for the entertainment of the immense throng that was expected in attendance. The anticipations were grandly realized, for fully four thousand people—men, women and children—assembled in the cooling shades of the beautiful grove, which covered a tract of twenty acres of ground.

Willing and industrious hands had been at work for a week or more in advance of the date, in preparation of the sumptuous feast, which was spread on the ground at one end of the grove, and represented a solid acre of food, both substantial and otherwise. A young beef had been killed and cooked for the occasion. There were scores of turkeys, spring chickens by the hundred, delicious bread by the wagon load, pickles by the barrel, innumerable cakes and all kinds of toothsome viands. Then there was a reserve supply almost equal to that spread upon the ground. In addition to this hundreds of people brought their own well-filled baskets, but the multitude partook of the grand feast prepared for them, and like the Bible story, there were many basketsful left over.

The exercises of the day began about 9:30 A. M., and a most entertaining program had been prepared. Mr. Charles B. Levering, of Chesterville, acted as Chairman, and called the vast audience to order, when he made his appearance on a spacious speaker's stand. The structure was a substantial one, the top being constructed in evergreen boughs and limbs of trees. The national colors were entwined and festooned over the front, across which was hung a banner with the inscription:

1691—"LEVERING REUNION"—1891

In the center of this was a device representing two clasped hands. Suspended at different points in the stand were family portraits, among the number being those of William, Noah, John, Nathan and Joseph Levering, all of whom have long since "joined the immortal caravan and gone to the pale realms of shade."

When the Chairman had secured the attention of the throng, an invocation to the Deity was offered by Wm. H. Levering, of LaFayette, Ind., followed by an address of welcome by the Chairman.

Col. John Levering, of LaFayette, Ind., was introduced, and read a very interesting paper on "The European History of the Levering Family."

This was followed by a musical selection by the Crescent Cornet Band of Levering.

A paper on "The American History of the Levering Family," prepared by Horatio Gates Jones, of Philadelphia, was read by Mr. Frank O. Levering.

Clint Levering's superb orchestra, from Chesterville, next rendered an inspiring selection.

A letter was then read by Wm. H. Levering relating to the services of Jacob Levering, who rendered invaluable aid to his country during the Revolutionary war, by acting as a scout for Gen. Washington.

At this point dinner was served, and it was nearly 2 o'clock when the second part of the program was commenced.

A paper entitled "The History and Pioneer Life of William Levering," was read by Hon. Allen Levering, of Mt. Coland, Ohio.

Music by the band was followed by "History and Pioneer Life of Daniel Levering," prepared and read by Hon. John C. Levering, of Levering, Ohio.

Original poem, entitled "Our Story," by Manda Levering Crocker, of Shelby, Mich., read by Mrs. Cora Penn.

Music by orchestra.

Declamation, subject: "The Old House with Father and Mother," by Miss Nettie Levering.

Letters from Hon. Wm. Windom (recently deceased) and Gen. George W. Morgan were read by Wm. H. McKee.

The proceedings closed with more singing and music by the band.

The actual number of Levering descendants present on the occasion is estimated at five hundred. The names of as many as could be obtained were recorded in a handsome register especially prepared for that purpose.

Among the more prominent ones in attendance were: Newton Levering, Orofino, California; Col. John Levering and Wm. H. Levering, of LaFayette, Ind.; J. A. Levering, of Albion, Ind.; Columbus Levering, of Pompeii, Mich.; Mrs. M. Sawyer, of Kendallville, Ind.; Mrs. Drusilla L. Boyle, Holden, Mo.; Mrs. Nancy Forsythe, Logansport, Ind.; Mrs. Carpenter, Roxborough, Pa.; Mrs. Nellie Charlton, Washington, Pa.; John Cook, John Donaldson, and Mr. and Mrs. Small, Cannonsburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Herendeen, Chicago. Besides these, there are many others from Kansas, and from many portions of Ohio.

A personage who attracted no little attention was John Blair, aged eighty years, who enjoys the distinction of being the first white child born in the Owl Creek valley west of Fredericktown.

The proceedings were enlivened throughout the day by a number of vocal selections rendered by the old "Metropolitan Glee Club," an organization formed some thirty-five years ago. Six of the survivors were present and sang such familiar tunes as, "The Old House at Home," "The Joys of Western Life," "The Tea Party," the latter being a piece descriptive of the incident of throwing tea overboard in Boston Harbor.

Quite a number of relics and heirlooms presented by different members of the Levering family, were placed on exhibition on tables adjoining the speaker's stand, among which may be mentioned the following:

A box made from the headboard of a cradle of Dr. Isaac Watts, the immortal hymnologist, who was born at Southampton, Eng., July 17, 1674. The box descended to Hannah Howell, who married John Levering, January 8, 1770, and is at present the property of William H. Levering, of LaFayette, Ind.

Lace made in England, in 1680, by Anna Watts, sister of Dr. Isaac Watts.

Cup and saucer, part of a set presented to John and Hannah Levering at their marriage, January 8, 1770.

A picture of the Levering homestead in Gemen, Germany, 1652.

Picture of Franz Levering and family, of Gemen, Germany.

Daniel Levering's Bible, over 100 years old, containing the record of his parent's family.

The proceedings of the Reunion in detail will be published in book form for distribution among the Levering family descendants.

At a meeting of the association held soon after the reunion in 1891, Colonel John Levering, of LaFayette, Indiana,—who had, during years past, gleaned much historical and genealogical information concerning the family,—was solicited to undertake the collection and compilation of a complete family history. This he consented to do, and the result, as contained in this volume, exceeds the expectations of all interested. The work has consumed more than five years of industrious effort, in addition to the accumulation of years which he possessed, before consenting to the wishes of the association.

The association is still maintained with the same official organization, except that impaired health compelled treasurer, Shannon Levering, to resign, in May, 1892, when Noah C. Levering, of Levering, Ohio, was elected to succeed to the office. Further, the decease of President Charles B. Levering, of Chesterville, O., on May 31, 1893, left "one vacant chair." This was filled at a regular meeting of the association, on July 29, 1893, by the election of William A. Levering, of Philadelphia, Pa.

The canvass for membership was not so generously responded to as expected, hence the treasury was inadequate to expenses incurred and paid by the historian and corresponding secretary.
